Acheson Hits Dulles Policy as All Wrong

Retaliation Threat Empty or Means War III, He Says

NEW YORK — (UP). Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today the Eisenhower administration's policy of instant retaliation against aggression will not deter Russia from striking at the free world.

Acheson, secretary of state under former President Truman, gave his views on the policy announced in January by Sec. of State John Foster Dulles, in a signed article in the New York Times Sunday Magazine.

"The plan of meeting any aggression with massive retaliation in places of our choosing certainly suggests that we propose to strike not at the place that the aggressor group has chosen but at some other place," Acheson said.

If the United States did this, "it would be foolish" not to think that the aggressor would counterattack.

"And then we would be in World War III," he said.

"So the threat means that we would meet any aggression by precipitating World War III. Clearly, we would not and could not mean this."

He said no responsible, democratic government could use strategic bombing except to "meet an all-out attack with the full attendant horrors of atomic war."

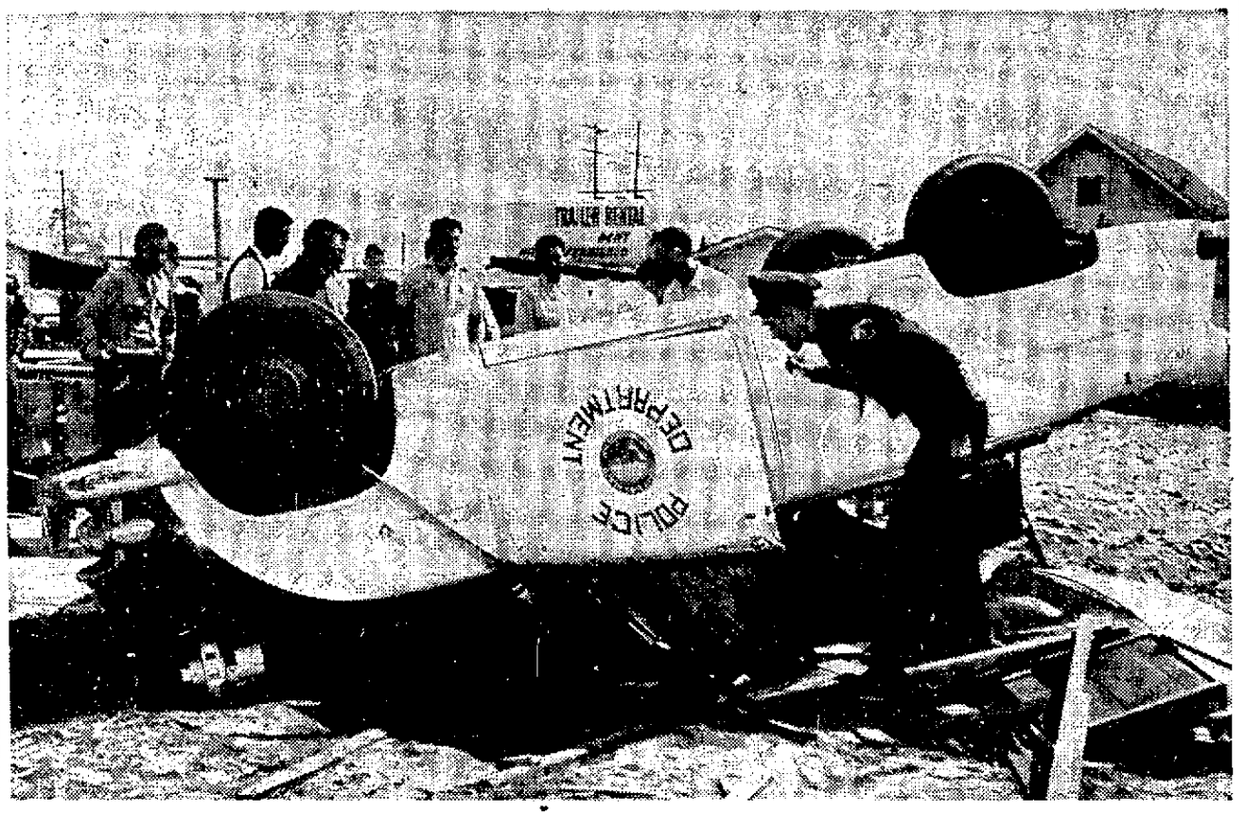

"So, as a threat, which we do not mean, the policy (of instant retaliation) would not deter," Acheson said.

As to seizing the initiative in the cold war, Acheson said the free world never can take the initiative in one field—"the initiative in aggression."

"We must by our very nature

New Mass-Killing Weapons Produced

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON—(AP). The spectacularly growing power of hydrogen blasts—and the prospect another will be set off next month—may be diverting attention from scientists' work on a whole selective arsenal of mass killers.

These weapons, in existence or being devised, would give the user a choice of lethal effects in a split-second, minutes or years. They include radiological developments, gas and germs.

But on a happier note a Senate-House atomic energy subcommittee predicted Saturday that atomic power may within 10 years be producing economical electricity for peaceable uses. The subcommittee disclosed details of a $200,000,000 five-year program to develop power plants capable of doing so at competitive prices.

The subcommittee recommended that Congress support this program, which is under the Atomic Energy Commission.

As for hydrogen weapons, the Pacific test area is the site for a new monster hydrogen explosion still apparently scheduled for April. It could be bigger than the Mar. 1 blast which to all appearances surprised the experts with its violence.

Informed atomic committee sources said Saturday they know of no "deliberate postponement or cancellation" of the tests and Rep. Van Zandt (R-Pa.), a committee member, said he is flying to Bikini during the Apr. 16-26 recess, to witness further "hydrogen weapons" tests.

Congressional sources have said a second major H-blast was originally scheduled for Apr. 22, and that it would be larger than the first explosion, which was three or four times more powerful than expected.

As for defense against the ever more menacing weapons, one practical suggestion came out of Senate briefings on the subject—learn to hike.

Senators who have listened to top secret plans for defending the civilian population confirmed Saturday that one of the basic proposals for mass evacuations involves organized movement on foot to collection points.

They said that the likely targets for nuclear weapons would be such thickly populated centers that terrific traffic jams would develop if residents tried to leave in their automobiles.

As for radiological, germ and gas weapons on which U. S. scientists are busy, it is altogether likely that foreign nations are working on at least some of them too.

The United States has no monopoly on the general principles of the weapons, although it may possess superiority in them and hold a good lead in the means for delivering.

Overshadowed by the official announcements and speculation about the H-bomb and the A-bomb, which kill in the twinkling of an eye, is the so-called "C-bomb."

Actually, a "C-bomb," in itself, will not be an explosive weapon designed primarily for mass destruction by blast and heat but a deadly vehicle for radiological warfare. It would be an additive

21-INCH FRIGHT

Wife Shoots, Thug Scoots, TV sss-BAM

Mrs. Joan M. Johnson, 21, of 4325 Vermont St., is heading toward Canada for a three-month vacation, her nerves twanging like guitar strings.

Here's why:

Mrs. Johnson, whose husband, L. H. Johnson, works nights at the Douglas plant, was sitting home Wednesday night with her 22-month-old son, Bradford, when she heard a prowler knock over the garbage can in her back yard.

Nervous, she investigated. The prowler had gone.

However, he returned Thursday night and stumbled over the same garbage can.

On Friday night, Mrs. Johnson was prepared.

When she heard the prowler on the front porch, she fired her husband's .22-caliber revolver into the living room floor to frighten him off.

At the shot, her television set "exploded." It crackled and smoke poured out.

Mrs. Johnson called firemen who had to partially dismantle the set in order to put out the fire.

Enough was enough. Mrs. Johnson notified her husband that she was taking their son and going to visit relatives in Cloverdale, B. C., for a nice, long rest.

SCHOOL SHOP HIS MUNITIONS PLANT, ALMOST

COMPTON—A 15-year-old Walton Junior High School pupil made a pair of brass knuckles in a shop class at the school, Compton police revealed Saturday.

The juvenile delinquent was relieved of the weapon by Mrs. E. H. Veatch, vice principal, who notified the police.

Officer R. R. Robbins, who investigated, said a sharp knife was taken from the same offender some time ago.

Officer Robbins advised the youth to confine his shopwork to more conventional pursuits.

L.A.C. SAYS:

6.9 Million Widows

There are three widows to every one widower in this country. The population of 6.9 million widows means that one in eight females over 14 years of age is a widow. Women now number 58 million to 53.6 million men. It is the higher death rate of men in all age brackets that is causing a real social problem. It is one of the major reasons why life insurance and social security is becoming so important to a man who takes an interest in what might happen to his family in event of his death.

About half the women are widowed due to heart disease. Approximately half the male deaths are due to that cause. The next worst killer is cancer, accounting for about 15 per cent of the deaths. The death rate per 100,000 men under 65 years of age is almost equal to those who live beyond that age. That is the reason there are so many young widows. The life expectancy of the female is about six years more than the male. On that

Navy to Cut Medical Staff in Half at Isle Infirmary

Half the doctors at the Terminal Island Naval Station Infirmary will be transferred to other duty within the next two months, causing a "drastic curtailment" in the care which can be provided at the medical facility for dependents of Navy personnel, it was disclosed Saturday.

An order has been received to reduce the number of physicians assigned to the infirmary from 10 to 5, according to Lt. Comdr. W. J. Hagerty, officer in charge of the Navy unit of the Armed Forces Public Information Office in Los Angeles.

Capt. M. C. Heine, base commanding officer, has written the Bureau of Navy Personnel in Washington asking for re-consideration of the proposed reduction, Hagerty said.

"The order would practically eliminate out-patient treatment at the infirmary for dependents," Hagerty declared. "Five doctors would be able to treat only Navy personnel at the station."

He pointed out that Corona Naval Hospital is the principal installation in this general area for treatment of dependents of Navy personnel.

Since the Long Beach Naval Hospital was turned over to the Veterans Administration in 1950, civic leaders have sought repeatedly but unsuccessfully to obtain a federal appropriation for construction of a new Navy hospital here.

8800 Decide for Christ in Graham Drive

LONDON — (AP) American Evangelist Billy Graham rounded off the first month of his London crusade Saturday night with two full-house meetings in Harringay Arena.

"We have chalked up our largest-ever monthly total of decisions for Christ in this London crusade and nearly reached our all-time record of 400,000 visitors in four weeks," a spokesman for the crusade headquarters said.

In London, 8880 persons have come forward after the meetings to register their "decisions"—an agreement to take an active part in the work of their local churches.

Police turned thousands away from the vast sports arena Saturday as Graham discontinued his matinee performances.

Graham will begin preaching over a network of 20 British telephone lines next week because Harringay Arena cannot accommodate the crowds.

Telephonic connections with many British cities are being arranged so that local clergymen can switch on Graham's sermons from Harringay for audiences in local halls.

Dockers to March on White House

Barkley, 76, Candidate for Senate

ALBEN W. BARKLEY
Out of Retirement

PADUCAH, Ky.—(UP). Former Vice President Alben W. Barkley came out of political retirement at the age of 76 Saturday night to announce he will seek to regain the United States Senate seat he held for 22 years.

Barkley, who said he feels as spry as ever, announced from his stately southern home "that he was not making the race to gratify any personal ambition, but in answer to the requests of many Kentuckians."

Assured of the Democratic nomination in August, Barkley will oppose the incumbent Republican, Sen. John Sherman Cooper, of Somerset.

The battle could prove vital to control of the Senate in the 84th Congress next year. The Senate now has 48 Democrats, 47 Republicans and one Independent.

Before becoming vice president in 1948, Barkley served 22 years in the Senate and 14 in the House of Representatives.

The battle with Cooper may prove to be one of the hottest for Barkley in his long career.

Cooper has proved his ability to draw votes in Kentucky, running some 28,000 votes ahead of President Eisenhower in Kentucky in 1952.

Both men rank among the all-time top vote-getters in Kentucky politics. Such a campaign would be a direct test of strength between a man who has been called "Mr. Democrat," on the one hand, and an Eisenhower Republican on the other.

Mme. Tone-Neal Rewinds the Reel to Rewed Payton

HOLLYWOOD — (AP). Blonde Barbara Payton, storm center of a real life battle between actors Franchot Tone and Tom Neal, said Saturday she will remarry her first husband.

The former actress said that Air Force Capt. John Payton will come here from Kansas City within two weeks for the ceremony, after which they will return to Missouri.

"The other day I asked him if he'd like to come here to see me and our son, John," Miss Payton explained, "and he told me he'd like to come back to us both forever."

The actress divorced her first husband in Los Angeles on Sept. 11, 1950, when she was 20. She testified that Payton, then 30 and an automobile salesman, objected to her acting career.

Current Kills Man Standing on Wet Floor

TORRANCE—A man washing his car was killed by shock here Saturday evening when electricity from an extension cord coursed through his dampened body.

Ralph P. Duarte, 31, had just completed washing his car in the garage of his home at 2602 W. 178th St. when he plugged a vacuum cleaner into an extension cord.

The current crackled into his body through his fingers and he fell to the floor in full view of his mother, Mrs. Celerina Duarte, who had just plugged the other end of the extension cord into a garage outlet.

Officers said the victim, clad only in shorts, was dripping wet. The water on his body, combined with that on the floor at his feet, greatly intensified the effects of the current.

The body was removed to the Stone and Myers Mortuary, Torrance.

Incendiary Fire Destroys Jailed Indian's Home

ARTESIA—The trailer home of a 64-year-old full-blooded Indian woman, who is in county jail awaiting trial on a charge of disturbing the peace, was destroyed Saturday night by a fire which sheriff's arson investigators said was deliberately set.

Tilley Lashoo, resident of a trailer at Elaine and 162nd Sts., was arrested Thursday on complaints of her neighbors, with whom she was accused of feuding.

Investigators said that the fire, which broke out early Saturday night, was arson. The blaze had been kindled in two places, they said.

Bull at L.A. City Hall

LOS ANGELES—(UP). Police who last week searched vainly for a panther that wasn't there, spent a couple of hours Saturday capturing four bulls that definitely were there after the critters broke out of a slaughterhouse truck. Before three were caught and the fourth shot, one bull did a short promenade on the city hall steps.

Sec. Mitchell, Dewey Rile Striking ILA

NEW YORK — (AP). Members of a striking waterfront union Saturday night planned a march on Washington after federal and state officials denounced their port-paralyzing walkout as a "criminal conspiracy."

Union sources said between 600 and 1000 members of the old International Longshoremen's Association would make the trip by bus and automobile early Monday.

Plans called for demonstrations before the White House from 9 a. m. until noon to protest the government's role in the troubled waterfront situation.

The strike began March 5 in defiance of a federal injunction and is costing the port of New York an estimated million dollars daily.

It was denounced as "primarily a criminal conspiracy" in a joint statement Saturday by Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Mitchell met with Dewey and other officials as the representative of President Eisenhower. A statement later promised coordinated efforts to halt the strike.

The present port situation is an outgrowth of a dispute which began when the AFL expelled the ILA last summer on grounds that it harbored racketeering elements.

A new AFL-ILA was set up and the strike itself grew out of a jurisdictional struggle between the unions.

While official union comment was not forthcoming, it appeared certain that the Washington demonstration would bear at least indirectly on a hearing scheduled Tuesday before the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB will consider an examiner's recommendation that a recent bargaining election between the unions be voided.

The ILA had a margin of 1492 when the ballots were counted last December, but some 4000 challenged votes never have been officially tallied.

Examiner Arthur Leff recommended that the entire election be thrown out on grounds that voters were coerced by violence and threats.

An ILA spokesman said the demonstrators will proceed to Washington after gathering outside Newark, N. J., at 2 a. m. Monday.

The demonstrators plan to carry banners with such slogans as "GIs in 1941; Goons in 1954."

Arabian King Mediator in Egypt Feud

CAIRO, Egypt (Sunday) — (AP). King Saud of Saudi Arabia met as peace-maker early today with President Mohamed Naguib and Vice Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, chiefs of the rival factions in Egypt's feuding military government.

The king, here on a state visit for the first time since he succeeded last year to the throne of his late father, King Ibn Saud, suddenly appeared in the role of pacifier after a day of tension and widespread disturbance Saturday.

His meeting with Naguib and Nasser broke up at 2:30 a. m. The president and vice premier, who have been locked for a month in a grim struggle for power, emerged on apparently friendly terms.

The president of Egypt's state council (Supreme Court) who also attended the meeting said no decision had been reached but added that King Saud is postponing his departure until Monday in order to continue mediation talks throughout Sunday.

While Cairo seethed with disturbances, rumors and general unease, President Naguib and King Saud spent Saturday on a leisurely inspection tour of Alexandria, Egypt's big Mediterranean seaport.

Dulles to Give Indo Policy Talk Monday

WASHINGTON—(AP). Secretary of State Dulles was reported to have obtained President Eisenhower's endorsement Saturday of a major policy statement he will make Monday night on the Indochinese crisis and the question of recognizing Red China.

The secretary's public declaration of U. S. principles in the Far East will be made in the wake of a series of recommendations laid down Saturday night by a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee. The House group, reporting on a 30,000 mile Far Eastern study trip, said the United States should continue its opposition to recognizing the Chinese Reds and declared that any Allied attempt to seek a truce in Indochina would mean "appeasement' equivalent to an Indochinese 'Munich'."

The subcommittee urged stepped-up American aid to the anti-Red forces in Indochina.

One effect of Dulles' policy statement, officials said, should be to remove the question of recognition of Red China from any diplomatic bargaining at the April 26 Geneva conference so far as the United States is concerned.

The report by the House Foreign Affairs group called for accelerated American military aid to Indochina and recommended internationalizing and continuing the conflict there under the United Nations. The French have opposed this.

The congressmen also proposed that American and French authorities "vigorously explore" methods to improve the morale of native Allied troops and to speed their military training.

Chairman Judd (R-Minn) told a news conference that if Indochina developments brought a French call for American troops "it would require the gravest consideration by the executive branch and the whole Congress."

The subcommittee implied that the Apr. 26 Geneva conference on Indochina and Korea would be a stalemate or would profit the Communists. Other members are Reps. Marguerite Stitt Church (R-Ill), Adair (R-Ind), and Zablocki (D-Wis).

"The moment is quickly approaching," the report said, "when the rising tide of Communist could engulf Asia.

"The Communist danger cannot be overestimated. Delay and indecision operate to the advantage of the Communists.

". . . It is the security, even the survival, of the free world that is threatened in Asia."

be defenders, not offenders," he said.

"That is the basis of our moral position in the world. And to make it appear that we have the initiative in this field through our so-called massive retaliatory power is a fraud upon the words and upon the facts. Retaliation is not initiative, but is the reaction to some one else's initiative."

The alternative to the policy of massive instant retaliation, he said, is to rely not only on atomic retaliation but to provide the means to meet "piecemeal or creeping aggression."

"This is expensive, very expensive, in human, financial and physical resources," he said. "It means that we and our allies must be prepared to commit men to battle in far-off places, and that our men and people should willingly accept this burdensome task, if the need arises."

He derided the idea that the nation cannot afford any more wars like the Korean War because "such a war is the only kind that we or anyone else can afford. Only a madman would attempt to avoid it by plunging into the unspeakable disaster of a world war."

The former Secretary of State also criticized the administration's plans for cutting defense expenses by trimming the size of the Army to get a "bigger bang for a buck."

"Unfortunately," he said, "it is easier to present easy and comfortable courses than hard and difficult ones. Tax cuts and reduced expenditures are more popular than the task of providing, in men, money and materials, a military program adequate to meet the dangers before us. Munich with its promise of peace in our time, was popular until a year later war swept away the illusions it created."

U.S. Works on C-Bomb, Other Killers

to a powerful explosive weapon, like a fusion or fission bomb. The explosion would disseminate the radioactivity impregnated in the element cobalt — whence comes the name "C-bomb."

The natural "fall-out" of radiated material from an atomic cloud, with its short life, would be inadequate for some military requirements. When the problem is to keep alive, at a deadly high level, the radioactive contamination, military scientists believe the mineral element cobalt is the answer.

American military scientists now are ready to speak somewhat more freely of another weapon—nerve gas.

Saturday, when a reporter made inquiry about nerve gas, the Pentagon for the first time was ready to provide details in the form of data prepared by the Army's Chemical Corps.

From the cold, medical phraseology of that data comes a picture of agonizing death.

There are several forms of so-called nerve gas. They are without color and without smell.

Gas may be absorbed by breathing, through the skin or eyes or swallowed. Here is what happens to a victim:

He becomes confused mentally; the skin turns blueish; there is vomiting; blood pressure drops sharply to the point of shock; the heart slows down; the pupils of the eyes constrict to pinpoints. There is a "sudden inability to breathe," coughing, choking, spasm—and death.

The other item in the arsenal of flexible weapons, capable of doing jobs in several ways, with or without death, is bacteriological warfare.

Like gas, it is difficult to detect quickly. One of the greatest eventful advantages of "BW," a weapon long under experiment but still not entirely perfected, is that it can be applied under the long-range plans of strategic operations. Its effect "hangs fire," may not be felt for the days or weeks required for incubation of a disease.

It is a weapon devised for use against cattle and crops as well as man. Used in this strategic manner, it could reduce or destroy food sources of a nation, wrecking the war goods production capability and destroying the will to fight.

Information Agency's Independence Aided

WASHINGTON — (UP). President Eisenhower Saturday transferred to the director of the U. S. Information Agency authority to hear charges brought against its foreign service personnel.

That authority previously was in the hands of the Board of the Foreign Service. The White House said the move was one more step in setting up the U. S. Information Agency as an independent government agency.

China Commies Rushing Supply Roads for Vietminh

HANOI, Indochina—(UP). Communist China was reported Saturday to be pushing the construction of new supply roads to the Reds in Indochina in an apparent effort to offset the increasing flow of American aid to the French Union forces.

Thousands of tons of supplies already have funneled down new roads to the Communist Vienminh armies besieging Dien Bien Phu in northwestern Indochina, according to French officials.

The report of the massive Red Chinese road-building program came from officials of the royal Laotian government in Ventiane.

According to reports reaching them from China they said one-fifth of the 1954 Yunnan Province budget has been earmarked for building and expanding supply routes to the Indochina border.

Yunnan, southermost province of China, borders on two of the three associated states of Indochina — Laos and Vietnam — as well as Burma.

French officials said there are already two main routes over which coolie and truck convoys are carrying supplies to the Indochinese Reds. It was estimated that some 500 Russian-built "Molotov" trucks and 80,000 coolies are involved in the Red supply program.

One road was opened only a month ago, cutting some 300 miles off the old route from the Red China border to Dien Bien Phu.

Government officials said it was understood that other mountain trails are being widened and surfaced to take automotive traffic.

Fighting slackened Saturday around Dien Bien Phu, and French Supreme Commander Gen. Henri E. Navarre broadcast a personal appeal to Communist Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap to stop shooting at Red Cross planes evacuating badly wounded French Union troops from the isolated fortress. Dien Bien Phu has been cut off except by air for more than three months.

Salvation Army Opens Salvage Week April 26

The Salvation Army will conduct its annual Salvage Week campaign in Long Beach April 26 to May 1, according to Ken McCafferty, chairman of the local citizens committee which will assist in the drive.

Other committee members follow: Churches, Rev. Virgil Fisher and Joseph Sousa; schools, George Geiger; fraternal orders, Clarence Wagner; miscellaneous clubs, Mrs. Nelson Torpey and Mrs. Marjorie Clark; PTA groups, Mrs. J. J. Koekkoek; radio, Clinton Fowler and Bob Lamb; service clubs, Harry Christensen; speakers bureau, Mrs. Patricia Fish; veterans groups, Charles H. Martinsen; visual exhibits, Fredrick Sykes; union and trade groups, Carl Fletcher and Ed Brown, and women's clubs, Mrs. William T. Lambe.

During the campaign a special fleet of Red Shield trucks will call at homes and offices to collect castoff but still usable articles, which will be reconditioned in workshops of the Salvation Army Social Service Center at 1370 Alamitos Ave.

Brig. Ranson D. Gifford, manager of the center, said salvage materials donated by local residents will enable the Salvation Army to continue a social rehabilitation program which aids hundreds of homeless and handicaped men.

He reported that discards last year provided an all-time high of 261,640 hours of occupational therapy, 58,704 meals and 19,092 lodgings. In addition to the regular program, thousands of dollars were given in direct relief—food, clothing and household articles—to needy families.

The brigadier reported that the center needs discarded clothing, shoes, furniture, bedding, dishes, toys, stoves, radios, appliances, bric-a-brac, bicycles, rugs, rags and miscellaneous items.

Chairman McCafferty urged local residents to telephone the Social Service Center, 7-1293, to bring a Red Shield truck to collect discards.

A discussion of off-street parking will be presented Monday by Howard E. Deems, national consultant on off-street parking, at the second of a series of urban development conferences sponsored by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The special one-day conference will be geared toward the stimulation of new business in all sections of the city. It will be open to the public.

At the meeting, opening at 8 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce board room, Deems will review his observances in working with major eastern cities in their attempts to solve the parking problem.

BANDIT HANDY AT DATES, AS WELL AS CASH

BAYTOWN, Tex. — (AP). F. S. Russell, 77-year-old liquor store proprietor, was held up by a young man who took $234.

"This is not the right thing to do, son," Russell said. "Why I'd be glad to give you a job."

"Thanks for the offer, pop," the man replied. "Look for me next Thursday. I'll bring your money back and take the job."

Russell checked a calendar—Thursday is April 1.

75 M.P.H. Chase Cracks Up 4 Cars; 2 Youths Captured

Cop, Fugitives, Women Drivers Injury Victims

Careening at 75 miles per hour in a stolen car along busy Pacific Coast Highway, a 20-year-old youth recently released from federal reformatory led a pursuing police radio car Saturday afternoon from Long Beach to Wilmington in a wild chase that was ended in a four-car accident.

The pursuit was climaxed when the fugitive car, driven by Danny Jerrield, of Phoenix, Ariz., hit a dip in the highway at Alameda St., bounced out of control and struck an auto driven by Mrs. Chancie Vines of Los Angeles. Mrs. Vines' auto was slammed into a third car, driven by Mrs. Ruth M. Nihart, 40, of 374 E. 237th St., Wilmington.

The highway dip caused the police car, driven by Officer Jackson T. Foster, 3271 Gale Ave., to spin out of control, skid over a curb and flip over on its back.

Jerrield, although injured, attempted to flee from the scene but was chased and caught by a group of persons who witnessed the accident.

His 15-year-old companion, Ronald H. Myhand, who reportedly had run away from his home in Arizona, climbed out of the car and escaped on foot. He was arrested later in the afternoon when he entered Harbor General Hospital to obtain treatment for a lacerated nose.

Both Myhand and Jerrield were booked by Long Beach police on charges of grand theft auto. Myhand was also being held by juvenile authorities as a runaway.

Los Angeles police charged Jerrield with hit and run felony because of his attempt to leave the scene of the accident, Los Angeles Officer Ray Callahan reported.

Foster took after Jerrield on PCH at Santa Fe Ave. In the mile-long chase west on the highway, Jerrield tried several times to force the police car from the road, Foster reported.

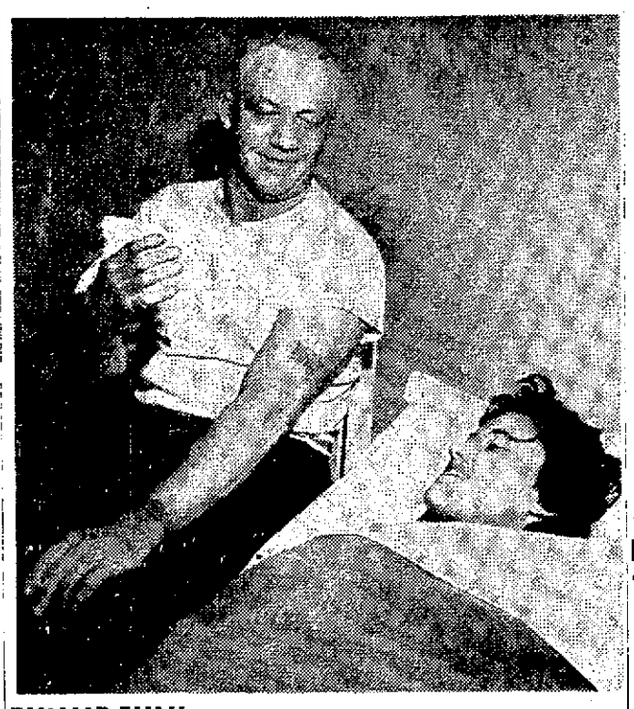

The tip of Foster's right thumb was severed in the accident but it was retrieved by a fellow officer, Paul Goforth, who took it to Seaside Hospital. A doctor sewed the end of the thumb back on Foster's hand. Foster also was hospitalized at Seaside for treatment of lacerations and bruises.

Mrs. Vines was admitted to Seaside for treatment of possible severe injuries to her back and neck.

Mrs. Nihart was treated by a private physician for possible neck and back injuries.

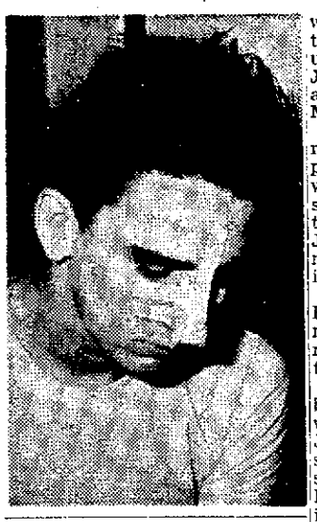

Jerrield suffered knee and head injuries. Police said he was recently released from El Reno, Federal Reformatory in Oklahoma, after serving five years on a grand theft auto conviction. He and Myhand had been living at a Los Angeles hotel, police said.

The car Jerrield was driving was stolen Saturday morning near the Sear's Store here. It is owned by Robert Barber, 36, of 1010 Anaheim St., East Wilmington.

Freak Wreck Kills Boy, 11, Hurts Mother

WESTMINSTER — A freak wreck involving two pickup trucks and two automobiles Saturday night killed David Lee Johnston, 11, of Westminster, and critically injured his mother, Mrs. David Ernest Johnston, 31.

Johnston, a building contractor residing at 7811 E. 12th St., had parked his pickup truck and was entering it from the driver's side while his son climbed in the cab on the other side. Mrs. Johnston had parked her automobile nearby and was entering it at the time of the accident.

Another car, droven by Arthur B. Potter Jr., 35, of 7432 Westminster Blvd., Westminster, rammed the Johnston pickup truck head-on.

The impact pushed the truck back into a second parked truck, which in turn smashed into Mrs. Johnston's car just as she was stepping through the door. Johnston told California Highway Patrolmen he saw the car coming and made an effort to push the boy back through the door but was unable to reach him in time.

The youngster was thrown to the pavement and struck by the Potter car as it bounced away from the truck.

The boy was dead on arrival at Santa Ana Community Hospital, where the mother was hospitalized. Potter was given medical treatment for a head injury at the Westminster Emergency Hospital. Johnston escaped injury.

DEAR CAPTAIN:

It Really Takes Something to Make Pvt. Tim Skip Drill

(Editor's Note: Staff writer Tom Head was en route to duty with the Army reserves Saturday afternoon when he found himself in the thick of a police chase and multiple crashes. Here is his special report.)

DEAR CAPTAIN HERNANDEZ, U. S. Army, Ft. MacArthur:

This will explain why I missed the reserve meeting Saturday afternoon.

I was riding along (about 30 miles an hour, Captain) west on PCH near Alameda when I heard a terrific series of crashes directly behind my car.

I looked in the rear vision mirror (you said a soldier ought to always guard his rear) and saw four cars spinning, skidding and crashing all over the highway.

I stopped my car, grabbed my camera and rushed back to the crash scene. A police car had flipped over. A crowd was running across a field toward Alameda after a man who had jumped out of a smashed up convertible. People were flocking around four dented cars.

Well, I had my camera, Captain, and the deadline of the P-T night final was creeping up and the editor had to get the facts.

I forgot about the reserve meeting until it was too late.

Be there on time next time, Captain, if I have to march.

Yours truly,

PVT. TIM HEAD

Village Marks Anniversary of Explosion

LEWIS, Ind. — (AP). You'd hardly know it today, but this sleepy little village of 400 persons was almost blown off the map a year ago.

On Saturday night, Mar. 28, 1953, an ammunition train jumped the tracks, setting off an earth-shattering series of explosions which destroyed or damaged nearly every building in town.

Deadly 105 and 155-mm. shells contained in three cars exploded at intervals, ripped a 20-foot-deep crater in the ground, leveled homes and stores and set the village aflame. About 24 persons were hurt, but all townsfolk miraculously escaped death.

But even as demolition crews worked at unearthing and exploding hidden shells weeks after the blast, Lewis residents got busy to rebuild their town.

Today, a few scars remain, but for the most part, Lewis is a thriving community again.

LYNWOOD -- Two spider monkeys Saturday enjoyed a scant 39-minute sprint for freedom after a mad escape from their cage at 11915 Peach St., Lynwood.

Their loss was reported to Lynwood Police Department by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Smith of the Peach street address.

Eighteen minutes later, Mrs. J. Barger of 11624 S. State St. informed the police that the two culprits in her back yard seemed to be having an early morning patio party.

A 21-minute pursuit by Lt. Clair Dedrick resulted in the ultimate capture of the pair.

Sportfishers Explain Why They Buck New Coast Guard Power

By KEN CHILCOTE

Sportsfishing landings are heartily in favor of stressing safety at sea but legislation pending in Congress would be the death knell for deep sea fishing enjoyed by millions in California waters each year, declares J. E. McClintock, president of the Southern California Sportfishing Assn.

Explaining why representatives of public landings will be in Washington this week to oppose the legislation, McClintock said: "we want it known we are not opposing safety at sea.

"But," he continued, "if the Coast Guard is empowered the way the bill reads, it will mean the end of this sport which last year alone drew more than 150,000 persons to Long Beach boats."

Under the bill, he explained, the commandant of the Coast Guard is empowered to interpret rules governing all types of vessels carrying passengers for hire. Not only does this include the types of hulls, repairs and alterations but it gives him the power to regulate the route a boat must follow and to regulate the manning of the vessel.

"Anyone knows that a sportfishing boat cannot follow a set route. You must find the fish," continued McClintock. "A school moves fast and you must move with them.

"Yet under this proposal our boats would be subject to seizure if we left our route."

McClintock, co-owner with William Nott of Pierpoint Landing, was armed with facts and figures to prove that sportsfishing is a big business in California.

The United States Chamber of Commerce survey showed sportfishing is a 6-billion-dollar-a-year business and based on fishing licenses the report said California shares 25 per cent of the total, McClintock continued.

"Our landing alone carried more than 60,000 passengers last year and year by year we have been increasing. Perhaps the public doesn't realize but these landings not only bring many visitors to the city but revenue as well.

"In 1953 we paid the Long Beach Harbor Department $38,685 in rent. Our rental is based on a percentage. In 1952 it was $34,806; 1951, $29,544, and 1950 it was $19,451.

"In four years we have paid to the city $122,466 in rent just from our landing. Other landings will show heavy payments as well.

"We realize there has been some agitation for strong laws governing fishing boats after some disasters. But the public may not realize there has never been a disaster involving any boat operating from a legitimate, licensed and supervised public landing in Southern California.

"It is the boat operating from what we term 'a plank' which has no supervision, insurance inspection or other controls, that causes the grief.

"Speaking for the operators of more than 300 public boats operating from Santa Barbara to San Diego, I will stress that we would like to see regulations to bring all boats into a better classification of caring for life and safety at sea. We want legislation but we want the kind that will correct conditions and not legislate us out of business."

Rep. Craig Hosmer (R-Long Beach) fought delaying action in Congress last week until representatives of the Southern California landings could get to Washington this week to present their case.

SEA LION PSYCHIATRY

Didn't Like Oahu Zoo

SAN PEDRO—Saul, the schizophrenic sea lion, is due to return to his native habitat here today in an effort to cure an anti-social neurosis he developed in a Honolulu zoo.

Crewmen aboard the Matson Navigation Company's freighter SS Hawaiian Rancher will serve as psychiatrist's aids when they plunk Saul into the sea from the ship as it nears the local harbor.

He is being brought from the zoo at Hawaii, where he became a problem because of his inability to get along with other sea lions.

Veterinarians diagnosed his difficulty as schizophrenia, brought on by his removal from his native environment along the California coast. Psychiatrists say that the mental disturbance often is brought on by distance from familiar surroundings, even in humans.

They Keep the Breakwater Lighthouse

By Charles Neiswender

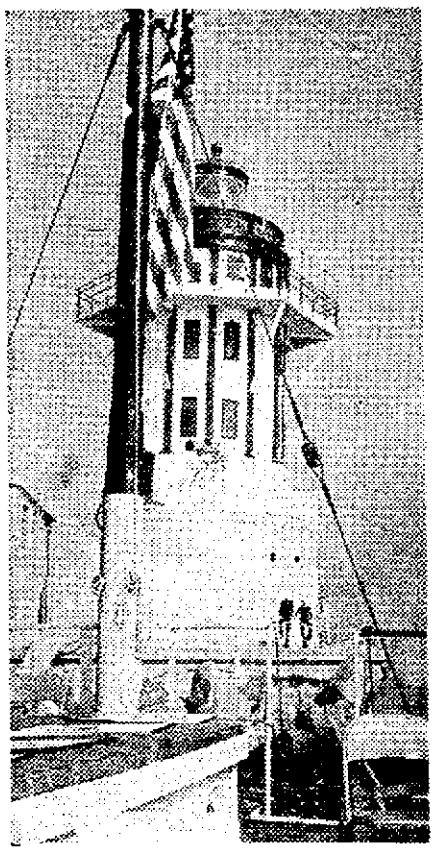

Prisms that flash beams far out to sea are shown here. Chief Henry Heikkila of the harbor breakwater light, makes an adjustment. He has four assistants.

TIME WAS when an old sea-dog who had too much salt and spray and was looking for a soft spot to retire without leaving the sea completely hired out as a lighthouse keeper.

All he had to do in the lonely tower on a rocky island or desolate seaward cliff was light the kerosene lamp in the evening and blow it out in the morning.

Today, there still remain a handful of these grizzled sea veterans and the kerosene-lamp lighthouses, but usually a modern lighthouse is manned by young Coast Guardsmen and there is far more than a wick to watch.

Seen from the deck of a harbor boat maneuvering close in are the breakwater light, 3 crewmen.

The installation on the tip of the breakwater at the entrance to Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor is more than a flashing beam of light . . . it is the home of a complete set of aids to navigation.

In charge at the Coast Guard-operated station is Chief Boatswain's Mate Henry Heikkila who directs four assistants in the operations of the lighthouse.

With Chief Heikkila are Oren Dinsmore, EM1; Kenneth Ritchey, EM3, and Seamen Albert Brechyne and Howard Sellz. It's "good duty," all five say, with 48 hours on and 48 hours off, despite the complexities and responsibilities of the post.

A MODERN LIGHTHOUSE is a fabulous place for a landlubber to tour. Atop the structure is the light, merely a 500-watt bulb encased in a removable green shield. Below, on the next deck, is the electronics equipment. The next deck down is the living quarters and galley. Below this is the power room with its massive generators.

Detailing the complexities, starting with the "mere" 500-watt bulb, shows that the bulb is not too important but the green shield is.

Long series of tests were made to uncover the exactly right color of shield to make the light different from any that might show miles at sea from the Long Beach, Wilmington, or San Pedro shoreline.

While it is called green, the shield is something of an unusual mixture of blue and green when it sweeps out to sea . . . unlike any light from land in its color.

A dual set of prisms, precisely ground and impeccably cared for surround the light. The prisms, made in France and installed when the light first went into operation in 1913, came in six separate circles of glass on each side and a "bullseye" for each side, looking somewhat like a round clam with its ribbed shell.

Still in use are two other circles of glass on one side and one on the other that were damaged in shipment from Paris. Since they are on the outer orbit of the prisms they do not affect the focusing of the light from the small bulb.

Within a few feet of the bullseyes, the focused light is intensely hot. Its beam, under ideal weather conditions can be seen for more than 20 miles. Far at sea, only the small circle of the bullseye is visible.

LIKE EVERYTHING else in the lighthouse, the mechanism that rotates the light has a dual power system run with electricity. If one fails the other can be switched on. If both fail, a weight-operated mechanism rotates the light.

The room containing electronics equipment is the heart of the lighthouse. From there, the light and fog horn at the tip of the Long Beach breakwater is operated by remote control as well as small lights at the tip of the central section of the breakwater and Fish Harbor on Terminal Island.

Some of the remote functions are carried out by control panels in the room and some through telephone. Again, all equipment is duplicated at the distant points to guard against failure.

Aside from the lights and foghorns, the electronics room controls the special calibrating transmitter that allows ships at sea to adjust navigational equipment through what is called a radio beacon, and serves as a distance-finding station. A network of Coast Guard radio beacon and distance-finding stations stretch from Scotch Cap at the tip of the Aleutian Islands to Pt. Loma near the Mexican border.

ANOTHER PART of the operation is a series of three clocks, weight-driven because electricity allows more than the minimum variation from Naval Observation Time of five seconds in 24 hours.

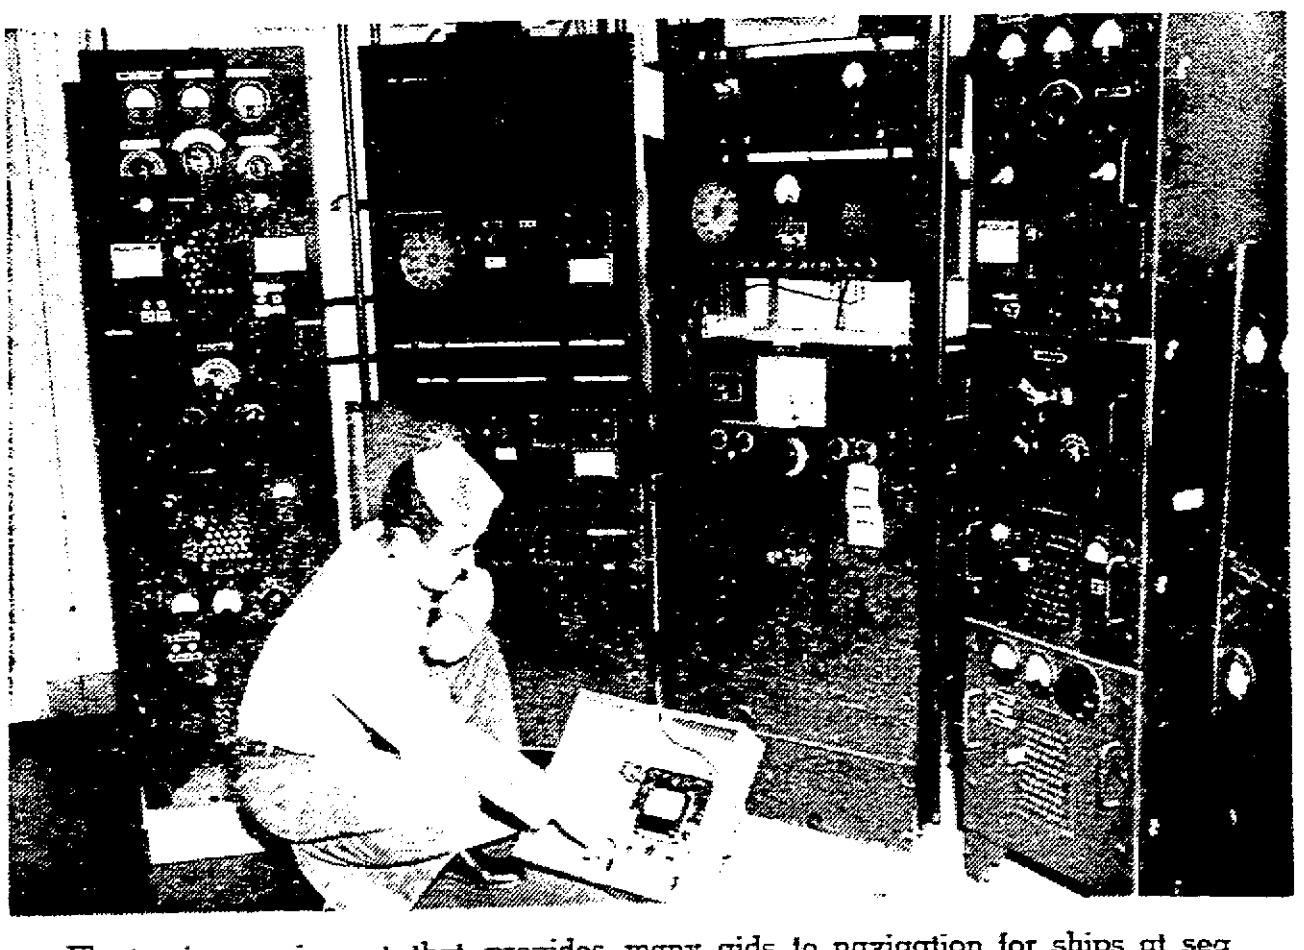

The clocks set off the radio beacon signal on time, regulate the timing of the radio beacon and the fog horn to provide for distance finding in fog, and generally time the intricate pattern of light, horn, and radio signal. Precise timing is needed because this lighthouse is timed with others along the coastline and even a split second would "foul" the operations of the different installations.

Skipping the galley and living quarters for a moment, a look in the power room discloses

Fishing is a crew recreation. Here is Cliff Dolan, EM1, a visitor, who snagged string of perch in few minutes.

Electronics equipment that provides many aids to navigation for ships at sea is checked here by Oren Dinsmore, EM1, principal assistant to Chief Heikkila.

IT'S ECONOMICAL, TOO, SAYS STATE ENGINEER

Landscaping Makes Highways Safer

By Ken Adams

—State Division of Highways photos.

On this section of freeway on Hwy. 101 near Oceanside, soil will be kept in place by ice plant and natural grasses on adjoining hillsides and in ditch separating roadways, thus keeping down maintenance costs.

THE PLANTING of shrubs, trees, and ground cover along California highways is primarily a matter of safety and economy. The often-used term "landscaping," says State Highway Engineer G. T. McCoy, is in most cases a misnomer.

Actual landscaping, in the sense of roadside planting for improved community appearance, is rare. It represents only a minute portion of state highway construction costs, McCoy said. In view of the state's vast highway needs, funds for landscaping are rigidly restricted as a matter of policy.

"Criticism of the Division of Highways for expenditures on so-called landscaping," he said, "has overlooked the fact that most of the roadside planting is an essential element of practical highway design, necessary to protect the public's interest in safety and ease of travel. A more truly descriptive term for this necessary function is 'roadside development'."

Expenditures for roadside development on state highways are approved only if they will:

1. Improve traffic safety.
2. Control weeds and reduce fire hazards.
3. Prevent erosion, thus keeping down future cost of upkeep and repair.

In the past two years, McCoy reported, the total cost of construction on state highways has totaled some $183,000,000. The outlay for roadside development was about $1,176,000, or about 64 cents out of every $100 of construction. For landscaping, included in the total for roadside development, the amount expended was only $86,441.

SOME OF THE PROJECTS included under the heading of landscaping, McCoy said, serve practical as well as aesthetic purposes. For example, "landscaping" items in recent years are the sections of lawn along the Hollywood and Santa Ana Freeways which have proved easier and cheaper to keep clear of wind-blown papers and trash than other types of planting. Another is the high thick screen of Japanese privet which absorbs traffic sounds along portions of the freeways in the Los Angeles area.

An example of roadside development to augment traffic safety on multi-lane divided highways is the planting of high-growing shrubs in the median or dividing strip. At the same time it provides a barrier against illegal and dangerous random crossings of the dividing strip.

Some of the level stretches of the U. S. 99 expressway through the San Joaquin Valley lend themselves readily to this type of natural safety treatment. Careful selection of plants which flourish in the particular region, such as oleanders, helps hold down maintenance and replacement costs.

ANOTHER TYPE of planting for the purpose of headlight screening consists of vines planted along fences between the roadways. Portions of the Arroyo Seco Freeway between Los Angeles and Pasadena offer examples of this type of screening.

Off-ramps on the Hollywood Freeway are marked by distinctive plantings. In urban areas, where city streets dead-end abruptly at freeways, a row of trees straight ahead in his path tends to make the motorist ease up on the throttle long before he can read the "Not a Through Street" sign.

THE MOST WIDESPREAD use of planting is to keep the roadside soil in place wherever it slopes up or down from the highway. It is much safer and cheaper. McCoy pointed out, to plant a little vegetation than to keep scraping off the roadway the dirt washed down from a cut slope or to keep shoring up an embankment undermined by gullies.

The Arroyo Seco Parkway is one of the best examples of multiple-purpose planting. The thick green English ivy which covers the cut slopes along this famous freeway, while appreciated for its ornamental value, was actually planted for erosion, weed, and fire control.

Similarly, the colorful ice plant on the slopes of the Atlantic Boulevard interchange on the Santa Ana Freeway is there because it will save thousands of dollars in maintenance costs. The "landscaping" effect, McCoy said, is purely a by-product.

WHERE TRUE LANDSCAPING is undertaken for the sake of attractiveness, McCoy said, it is a matter of preserving and enhancing the appearance of the community rather than of the highway. It is done only where there is general agreement as to the desirability and necessity of the work.

Also, in accordance with the California Highway Commission policy, no landscaping along state highways is authorized unless proper local ordinances are in effect to protect the investment against detractive sign installations.

McCoy emphasized that all highway expenditures, including those for roadside development along state highways, are rigidly scrutinized.

"No such expenditures are recommended to the Highway Commission," he said, "unless we are certain that they will more than pay their way in terms of greater traffic safety, control of weeds and fire hazards, and keeping down the costs of highway maintenance."

Mature oleander bushes separate north-bound and southbound roadways on U. S. 99 south of Fresno, screening opposing headlights at night.

Trees and shrubs grouped on straight and level section of U. S. 40 call attention of motorists to fact that they are nearing a bridge.

GOP Seeks Speedup on Ike's Major Bills

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON — (AP). Republican leaders Saturday spurred the Senate toward action on President Eisenhower's legislative program in an apparent effort to reclaim the spotlight from Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said he is trying to expedite committee action so the Senate can speed up work on major administration bills.

"It's obvious that if we are to hit our July 31 adjournment deadline, we can't wait until July to get these bills before the Senate," he said.

Sen. Ferguson of Michigan, also calling for a speedup, said he will ask the Senate Republican Policy Committee next Tuesday to outline a long range schedule of Eisenhower priority bills.

Neither Ferguson, who heads the Senate Policy Committee, nor Knowland would concede that the furore over McCarthy's clash with Army officials had delayed action on the legislative program. Eisenhower has said this program will be the principal issue in November, when control of Congress will be at stake at the polls.

Knowland said he knows "of no legislation that has been held up because of the McCarthy - Stevens controversy," although he said that public attention has been drawn away from the Eisenhower program by the row.

"I think it is fair to say that public attention has been distracted from the program," he said.

But the California senator struck back at an assertion by Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell in Gary, Ind., Friday night that because of the McCarthy-Army row he doubts "if the average citizen even recalls that the President has a program."

"That is just a political statement made for political purposes," Knowland declared.

KANSAS CITY—(AP). Prof. W. Albert Noyes Jr., internationally known chemist of the University of Rochester, is the 1954 winner of the Priestley Medal, highest honor in American chemistry, it was announced Saturday night.

GOP Chiefs Urge Popular Farm Planks

OMAHA — (AP). Republican leaders from 14 states steered wide of the McCarthy controversy today and called on Congress for a farm program "we all can go out and sell."

The Midwest and Rocky Mountain Republican state chairmen's association, in a strategy meeting, agreed after their two-day workshop "if we can get out the farm vote we will win the congressional elections this year." The conference did not attempt to tell Congress what kind of a farm program to write.

The Republican chairman also announced the administration's over-all program "will provide the most effective appeal to all voters—Republicans, Democrats and Independents."

State chairmen were willing to talk individually about the controversy between Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) and top Army officials but stuck to their pre-conference predictions that talk about McCarthy wouldn't be permitted to sidetrack the strategy meetings.

The strongest comment came from National Republican Chairman Leonard W. Hall, who addressed the chairmen Friday night. He made no mention of McCarthy in his speech, but said earlier in an interview McCarthy "has done more harm than good" in his row with the Army and his "Senate effectiveness has diminished in recent weeks."

Hall indicated, however, there was no change in McCarthy's relations with the national committee. He had referred to McCarthy some weeks ago as an "asset" to the party.

Hall's comment was in contrast to the attitude of Wisconsin State Chairman Robert L. Pierce, who blamed the McCarthy furore on people outside Wisconsin.

Pierce said he believed McCathy could poll more votes now than he did when he was re-elected two years ago. Pierce also said he believed if President Eisenhower were to yield to pressure to castigate McCarthy publicly, it would hurt the President's prestige in Wisconsin.

Morton H. Hollingsworth, Illinois state chairman, was named vice chairman of the 21-state group, succeeding William L. Lloyd of Colorado, who recently resigned as state chairman. Ray C. Bliss, O., and David T. Martin, Nebr., hold over as chairman and secretary respectively.

Of the 21 states in the association 14 were represented. They are: Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Ohio, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Kansas and Wyoming. Not represented were Arizona, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota and Oklahoma.

LOVE, FUN COMING UP---MARILYN LATER

Russ Shore Would Like Our Gary in Red Film

CANNES, France—(U.P.). A top Soviet movie director said Saturday the Russians are getting sick of films about war, factories and machines and announced he would like Gary Cooper to star in his next movie as a jovial American caviar buyer.

Gregori Alexandrov, three-time Stalin prize winner and one of the leaders of the Soviet delegation to the Cannes film festival, also confided to westerners that Moscow does not have a Marilyn Monroe yet.

Alexandrov aired his complaints about Russian movies and movie makers to reporters in the lobby of the Carlton Hotel. He smiled throughout the proceedings, and so did Serge Youtkevitch, another Russian director. Youtkevitch, who apparently does not know English, did not say a word. He just smiled.

"Our public is getting sick of films about war, factories and machines," Alexandrov said.

"They want more love stories. Unfortunately there is a group of script writers and directors in our country who think love is old fashioned.

"Most of us now realize the people want to laugh and see more of real life—not just movies about work. Life is not all work. It is love also."

Alexandrov said his next movie would be a comedy about a group of foreigners traveling freely through Russia.

"One of the travelers will be a very pleasant American wanting to buy caviar," he said. "I would like the American, who will be presented as a very agreeable character, to be portrayed by a true American actor.

"Gary Cooper can certainly play the role of the American, if he wants. Why not?"

Soviet actors and actresses live very well, Alexandrov said. A top star earns about 150,000 rubles, or the equivalent of about $37,000 a year, he said. Six per cent of that is paid in taxes, he said.

A reporter asked Alexandrov if there were any pin-up girls in the Soviet Union.

"Pin-up?" he asked. "What's that?"

He was told Marilyn Monroe was an outstanding example of a pin-up girl.

"Them. Oh, yes," he said. "Ahem . . . well, we don't have one—yet. Of course we believe beauty is very important in film acting, but we still place art above beauty."

Alexandrov said the Soviet people would like to see more American movies, but the Russians have trouble getting them.

"The U. S. doesn't seem too interested in selling to us," he said. "There is an impression abroad we do not like Americans. That is not true. We like them and have no special discrimination against them. We would like to work together and create good relations.

"We want to enter the field of joint production with any country that desires it—including the U. S. We want to see more foreign films. We like them. And we want to send our films all over the world."

MD Who Operated on Cleveland Dies

NEW YORK — (AP). Dr. John F. Erdmann, renowned surgeon who once helped perform a secret operation on President Grover Cleveland, died Saturday on his 90th birthday.

He had practiced here since 1887, performing operations until he was 87 years old.

The doctor was called New York's "grand old man of surgery," and the operating amphitheater at University Hospital was named in his honor.

While Dr. Erdmann performed more than 20,000 operations in his lifetime, his most vivid memory was of that on President Cleveland. The operation, in 1893, was for cancer of the jaw.

It became necessary at a time of domestic crisis in the nation—the tumult over the issue of free coinage of silver.

To keep from alarming the country, Dr. Erdmann and other physicians performed the operation on the President aboard a yacht anchored in Long Island Sound. Neither Congress nor the public knew about it till afterward.

Most of the President's upper jaw was removed, and a hard rubber artificial jaw substituted.

Murder Charged to GI in Killings of 2 Yanks, Girls

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP). An American soldier was charged with murder Saturday in the quadruple slaying of two other GIs and their German girl friends.

He was identified as Pfc. Abraham Thomas of Dooly County, Georgia.

A U. S. Army spokesman said Thomas would be tried before a general court-martial at Augsburg on Apr. 5 on charges of premeditated murder.

Thomas was arrested after the bodies of Sgt. Lafayette Bennett, 28, of Kansas City, Kan.; Cpl. Edward Peters, 32, of East Chicago, Ind., and two German girls were found in a cottage last Feb. 23 on the outskirts of Augsburg.

Douglas Ends 189-Mi. Hike to Save Canal

WASHINGTON—(AP) Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, leading a little "blister brigade" of hikers, Saturday finished a 189-mile eight-day walk along the historic old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

As the last of nature lovers ended the march, Secretary of the Interior McKay, whose department has jurisdiction over the unused waterway, met them with a classic greeting:

"Justice Douglas, I presume."

The hike grew out of a friendly argument between Douglas and two editorial writers, who favored the building of a scenic highway through the territory, which is largely untamed nature. Douglas wants the canal kept as it is, and challenged the writers to a hike to see for themselves.

The party arrived at canal lock five miles above Washington in complete agreement—that a mule-drawn barge is a lovely thing. They sat on the barge while the mules gently towed them the last five miles into the capital. The rest of the way, along the abandoned towpath from Cumberland, Md., was footslogging.

Queen Guarded Against Polio Epidemic

PERTH, Australia—(AP) Queen Elizabeth II dined at the governor's mansion Saturday, virtually sealed off from the threat of polio which has reached epidemic proportions in this part of Australia.

The Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and the rest of the royal party ate in a specially fumigated room. Their host, Lt. Gen. Sir Charles Gairdner, governor of western Australia, dined in another chamber .

All food for the Queen's party was cooked aboard the royal liner Gothic and brought to government house in refrigerated vans. Members of the royal household staff handed the food to the Queen.

At her own request, Elizabeth today broke restrictions on handling articles which could pass on the infection. She personally laid a wreath at the cenotaph in Perth.

The Queen's medical adviser, Comdr. Steel Perkins, told her the risk would not be too great, if she wore gloves. After the ceremony the gloves were burned.

Elizabeth will not attend religious services in Perth today. Instead she has invited the Archbishop of Perth, the Most Rev. R. W. H. Moline, to conduct services aboard the Gothic.

'The Living Desert'

THE MYSTERIOUS LIFE and allure of the desert, with its animal ferocities, its strange devotions, spectacular beauty and odd native humor—all blended in a magnificent pageant—is the scene and substance of Walt Disney's first full-length True-Life Adventure which won an Academy Award Thursday night as the best documentary feature film.

The region covered in "The Living Desert" is the so-called Great American Desert, sprawling across loosely connected sections of the Southwest.

Here animal life persists in its primal ways, undisturbed by human encroachment, to work out its own destiny in accordance with the inscrutable designs of Creation. To see it, as the True-Life Adventure cameraman-naturalists have recorded it, is to peer back into geological time a million years and more from that comfortable theater seat just a few steps off Main St. or Broadway.

In these desolate solitudes, shunned by humans, Disney's collaborative wildlife photographers found an amazing variety and profusion of creatures, bizarre and beautiful, where life of any kind might be thought least likely to exist.

The picture answers with an incredible pageant of animal life the endless curiosity about the earth's wastelands: What lives here? How does it exist? What goes on behind the shimmering heat mirages? What ghosts of past inhabitants haunt its stony scarps and hidden arroyos?

DRAMATIC HIGHLIGHTS of wild life in action against the magnificent vistas of weird and beautiful landscape offer a constant succession of factual wonders and excitements.

Weaving the spell of the desert, natural comedy in animal antic balances the grimmer affairs of survival with which the picture seethes and holds compelling attention.

So profuse is the film footage brought in from the desert's most secret and remote places—so packed with dramatic incident—that fully 70 minutes of close-packed action are needed to do justice to the material.

Patient stalking and observation of western desert life by some of the nation's leading naturalist-photographers to compile "The Living Desert" occupied more than two years. Some of their trophies have never been seen on theater screens before.

Strangely stirring is the defense of her young by a valiant little kangaroo rat mother who kicks dust into the eyes of a serpent to divert danger. . . And the frantic dance of her tribal neighbors in joyous celebration of the victory.

Exciting is the furious chase of a trespassing bobcat by an outraged family of Javelinas, or desert peccaries, who run the abashed intruder to the tip of a giant cactus to lament his mistake.

THE GIDDY COURTSHIP dance of a pair of scorpions in the moonlight, claw holding claw in primitive affection, is appropriately set to the measures of a hillbilly square dance in the picture's outstanding musical score.

Endlessly fascinating are the desert dwellers and their varied ways. Pictured also in their interlocked fate, are the roadrunner, the gekko lizard, the Gila monster, the chuckwalla, coati mundi, pocket mouse, spotted skunk, kingsnake, centipede, the tiny sober-faced elf owl of the cactus thickets and clouds of cliff-dwelling bats sallying out on their nightly foray -- each kind having its brief moment or dramatic episode on the screen.

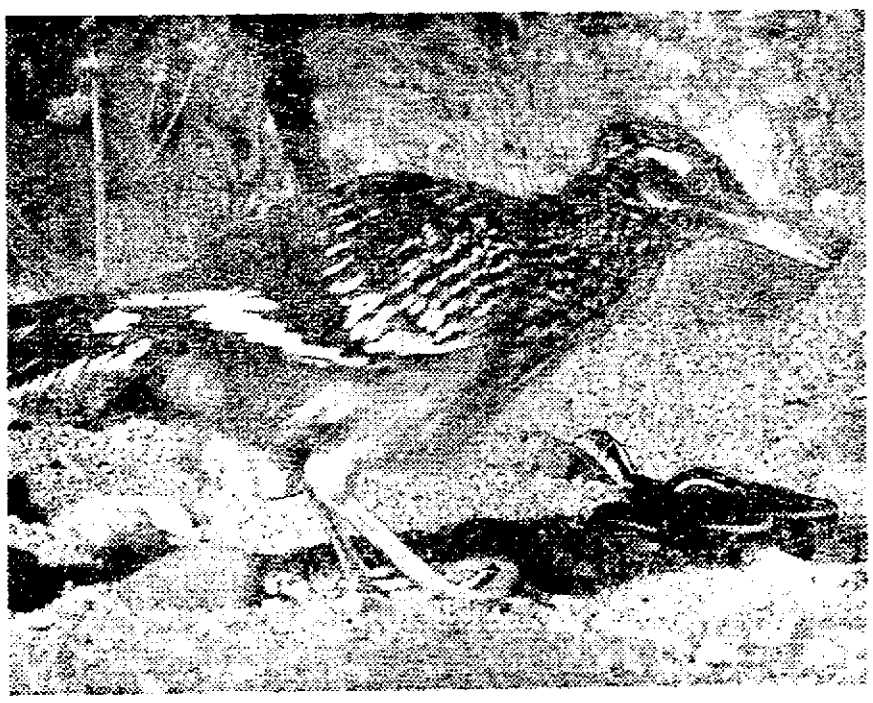

The picture adds up to an achievement far beyond mere skill with a lens!

It's lunch time for the ground squirrel in this full-length feature in Disney's True Life Adventure series.

Kangaroo rat mother saves her family by kicking sand in serpent's eyes in Disney's dramatic nature movie.

A hapless little garter snake meets his nemesis, the swift, ruthless roadrunner, in one of many episodes.

An angry beauty of the desert thickets, young female bobcat, hisses hatred at a band of prowling javelinas.

The ring-tailed cat is one of the shiest creatures in the great family of desert-bred animals seen in film.

No fearsome visitor from outer space, but the close-up of the fighting face and pose of the Wolf Spider.

Don't Blame the Weatherman

By Art Edson

Associated Press Newsfeature Writer

HOWEVER UNCERTAIN a weatherman may be, he's pretty sure of one thing: Nowhere is the weather any more tricky or more unpredictable than where he is.

Associated Press reporters have interviewed forecasters from coast to coast. The results are in, with this conclusion: Each weatherman really does have his special problems, and plenty of them.

If the forecaster is on the west coast, he's worrying about unseen storms hatching over that vast incubator, the Pacific Ocean.

In the middle west, he's watching weather that breeds rapid temperature changes.

If he's in the south, and the weather is near freezing, a drop of one degree can be disastrous.

If he's along the east coast, he may be worrying over what one weatherman has called "the most cantankerous, capricious, aggravating critter in all the meteorological world," the hurricane.

ROUTINE WEATHER in one area may be a calamity in another.

A. K. Showalter, chief of the joint analysis center of the weather bureau, Air Force and Navy, gives, this example:

"In Kansas City a 2-inch rain isn't too unusual. But if it rains that much in Los Angeles, where I used to forecast, the hills come down."

The weatherman's problems may involve decisions which—if correct and given quickly enough—will save lives and millions of dollars in property.

Or they may range down to that once faced by Forecaster Charles H. Pierce of Boston. A lady called in to ask what the weather would be like in two weeks.

"I need to know," she confessed, "because I am planning to have an affair in my garden that night."

Let's drop in on the forcasters, traveling as the weather usually does, from west to east.

First stop, San Francisco, with R. Corday Counts Jr.

Counts says the trouble is, weather isn't an exact science yet.

"There are factors we don't understand," he says, "or are not able to observe. And every forecast center has other problems caused by the influence of mountains, valleys and water areas."

THE WEATHER BUREAUS on the west coast depend on ships for news of weather out at sea. Since the ships often are widely scattered, Counts says, "a storm may be threatening the west coast for hours before we know about it."

Local boosters sometimes berate the weatherman for not being more optimistic in his forecasts. But Counts thinks the most enthusiastic Los Angeles rooter must have been satisfied with a forecast made there a few years ago. The forecaster promised:

"Sunny today, tonight and tomorrow."

J. C. Thompson holds the weather fort in Los Angeles today. He says his hardest job is to predict the first rain after the long summer dry spell. Everyone is interested one way or another, he says, so a miss becomes very public.

Up in Seattle, Carrol Elford says weather possibilities often boil down to a 50-50 proposition. But, he adds a little wistfully, "nobody's ever satisfied with a forecast which says 'It may, then again it may not'."

J. C. Eberhardt of Salt Lake City says he has his roughest times forecasting cold fronts. He can never be certain the cold air masses will not be stopped by towering nearby mountains.

Kansas City's H. L. Jacobsen finds that in Kansas, three great air masses from Canada, the Rockies and the Gulf may meet.

"It's hard to imagine," Jacobsen reports, "when there's not an emergency."

EVERY FORECASTER has a prediction he's particularly proud of. On Jan. 1, 1949, Kansas City weathermen were able, after close study of upper air data, to predict a storm would turn into eastern Nebraska and become a blizzard.

It did, and dumped 4 feet of

Keating Drops Opposition, Aids Brownell on Wire Tap

WASHINGTON — (UP) Rep. Keating (R-NY) surrendered to Atty. General Herbert Brownell Jr. Saturday and offered a substitute bill to legalize wire-tap evidence.

To get away from the onus of the words "wire tap," the subcommittee bill is called the "Anti-Traitor Bill," a term being used by administration lieutenants to drum up votes for the controversial legislation.

It is exactly what Brownell wanted. It would authorize use of wire-tap evidence obtained by the FBI or military intelligence with the attorney general's approval in prosecuting traitors, spies, saboteurs and seditionists in national security cases.

Keating, who previously had insisted that federal court orders should be required to obtain such evidence, said he changed his mind after conferring with Brownell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

He said they convinced him that federal law-enforcement agents "would be seriously hampered in bringing to justice the enemies of our country if they were required to obtain court approval before tapping a wire."

He added that he was "authoritatively informed" that wire-taps already have produced information on "serious crimes involving disloyalty to our country."

"My conscience," he said, "does not permit me to be responsible in any way for the suppression of such evidence."

Junior Statesmen in State Convention Here on Friday

Three hundred teen-agers from 50 high schools of the state, interested in local, state, national and international government, will attend the annual state convention of Junior Statesmen of America, Friday and Saturday, in the Lafayette Hotel.

In convention sessions patterned after the state legislature they will consider such questions as:

Should liquor license requirements be stiffened and should re-sale of liquor licenses be forbidden?

Should proof of public liability and property damage insurance be required before automobile licenses are issued?

Should Junior Statesmen have an intrastate "ham" radio network so the regions and chapters may communicate with each other?

Junior Statesmen will elect a governor and a lieutenant governor Saturday morning; the governor will appoint an attorney general, clerk and treasurer and all the officers will be honored at the annual governor's banquet Saturday night.

Gov. Lester Mazor of Hayward and Lt. Gov. Steve Tallant of Santa Rosa will preside over the sessions.

Long Beach has a strong contender for election to lieutenant governor—Jim Ragan, 16, Wilson high school junior, parliamentarian of the Wilson chapter and vice president of the Inter-Club Council at Wilson. Jim came to Long Beach last year from Alhambra, where he also was active in Junior Statesmen.

Host chapter will be Long Beach's only Junior Statesmen chapter, organized eight years ago at Wilson. The chapter, with 100 members, is headed by Jeanne Garvrick, president; Frank Smead, vice president; Peggy Osler, recording secretary; Pat Carey, corresponding secretary; Sherry Hossom, treasurer; Fred Betts, sergeant-at-arms.

Convention arrangements are directed by the Southern Region, of which Russell Wylie of El Monte is mayor.

Local Maccabees to Attend Parley

A delegation of about 25 Maccabees from the Long Beach chapter, headed by Victor J. Alsford, district manager, will attend the quadrennial state convention of the Maccabees Great Camp for California, Friday, in the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel.

Douglas V. Chapman of Los Angeles, great commander, announced that Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles and Supreme Trustee Ruben Young of the Maccabees would address the morning business session.

Election and installation of state officers will take place in the afternoon.

REGIONAL POLITICS

Judge Race Narrowed; 2 Seek Office

By THE LOOKOUT

Two candidates withdrew Saturday, leaving the contest for Municipal Judge Position No. 2 to Moses E. Lewis Jr. and Mayor Lyman B. Sutter.

The shakedown in the judicial race came after the announcement of results of a Long Beach Bar Association plebiscite. Lewis got the highest vote in the lawyers' poll on a ballot on which were entered the names of Sutter, Lewis, Milo Horn and J. C. Spence Jr.

Spence and Horn promptly withdrew from the judge race.

Spence said that he had previously pledged to support the candidate endorsed by fellow lawyers in the poll. Therefore, he said, he will not run but will support Lewis' candidacy.

Horn said that it is his feeling that a large field of candidates would require a lengthy campaign and the pressure of his private practice makes it impractical for him to run. He also said he would support Lewis.

Sutter is expected to file as planned early this week. With Sutter and Lewis the only contestants, one is certain to get a majority of the votes at the June 8 primary, which will determine the election. They are running for the bench position now held by Judge Charles Wallace, who voluntarily is relinquishing office.

Sutter, mayor of Long Beach for about a year and for three years Second District Councilman, is giving up his Council seat without a contest in order to seek the judgeship.

Actual votes received by the candidates in the bar plebiscite were not announced.

COUNCIL FILINGS

Six of the nine Council incumbents have filed their declarations of candidacy for the May 11 primary. Only "hold-out" among those who have been generally expected to file is Councilman Max Livoni, who has until April 6 to decide. Councilmen Lynn Parmley and Lyman Sutter announced some time ago they would not run.

The first week of municipal filings saw Auditor John R. Mansell, Prosecutor Kenneth E. Sutherland and Attorney Irving M. Smith putting their names on the line, as expected. In addition, 32 filed for Council.

Here is the list, by district, of Council candidates who have filed declarations:

District 1—Don May, Lewis D. Reese, Gordon Feekings.

District 2 — E. Curtis Clark, Gerald Desmond, James W. McHenry.

District 3—Raymond C. Kealer, incumbent; Mrs. Frances Bach, Wilburt J. Mallory.

District 4—James R. Seaton, incumbent; Carl W. Grier, A. Charles Koerner, Raymond F. Downey.

District 5—Clarence E. Wagner, incumbent; Mrs. Antoinette Aldrich, Robert F. Burns, John V. Eberle, Mrs. Ruth Bach, John M. Brooks.

District 6—Lawrence O. Jackson, John O'Brien.

District 7—Carl Fletcher, incumbent; John F. Baker.

District 8—Glenn D. Hughes, incumbent; George L. Giroux, George M. Vermillion.

District 9—Bazil U. Carleson, incumbent; Virgil Spongberg, Francis R. Crawford, Mrs. Opal Hutchins, Gordon G. Carmen, Martin L. Culley.

DEMO TRAINING

Long Beach Democratic campaign leaders will get intensive training on vote-winning methods at a "school" to be conducted at Lagoon Clubhouse, 5119 Colorado St., today. Emphasis will be laid on neighborhood-level campaigning.

Dr. Robert Pettingill, former USC economics professor, will serve as general chairman. His assistants will be Bob Jeans, group dynamics consultant, and Mrs. Mary Shaw, Long Beach area organization co-ordinator.

Democratic candidates meanwhile are getting their campaign going. Joseph M. Kennick, 18th District Congressional candidate, opened up Saturday with a salvo at the Republican Congress for its federal tax action, charging "lack of regard for the average citizen" and "slavish obedience to the special interests, big business and entrenched wealth."

American at Fifth DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH

OUR COVER

The picturesque snow scene on today's Southland cover, photographed in Ansco color by Ed Hecker near his mountain home at Lake Arrowhead, reminds that the deepest snow of the year lay during the past three or four days in areas easily accessible to Long Beach skiers. Naturally, with snow depths ranging from two to five feet--depending to a great extent on altitude—skiing was reported the best of the year. Depths, in inches, reported by the Automobile Club of Southern California as Southland went to press: Big Bear, 24 to 60; Blue Ridge, 50; Kratka Ridge, 48; Mount Baldy, 36 to 72; Mount Waterman, 48; Snow Summit, 24 to 60; Snow Valley, 36 to 54; Table Mountain, 36 to 60; Holiday Hill, 24 to 48; Green Valley, 36 to 48. Have snow-fun, all!

snow in a little more than 30 hours.

In Chicago, Forecaster Gordon E. Dunn wrestles with meteorological brain twisters worked up over the near-by Great Lakes.

"The peculiarity here," says Dunn, "is that there is normally more cloudiness and precipitation in the Great Lakes region than elsewhere and frequent precipitation always makes forecasting difficult."

Sounds like a simple solution: Predict rain.

In Atlanta, L. F. Thomas recalls his bureau was swamped with telephone calls--800 in 8 hours--one day a few years back.

"It was nothing but a little cold spell," Thomas recalls, "but in the south a little cold spell can spell big trouble. People here worry as much about a temperature of 32 as they do about zero in the midwest."

Georgia peach growers and other farmers can be ruined by a sudden cold snap.

FARTHER SOUTH, in Miami, Grady Norton is the nation's hurricane specialist. When a hurricane roars up in the Caribbean, Norton must keep constant track of it and issue frequent bulletins on its progress.

During the approach of one hurricane, the Miami Weather Bureau received 32,000 telephone calls.

Norton's appraisal of the hurricane: "It's a cantankerous, capricious, aggravating critter."

In New York City, Ernest J. Christie says making a forecast is only half the problem.

"Passing along what you know is probably as great a problem as forecasting," he says.

Christie's pet gripe is the broadcaster who cuts a forecast down to "cooler" or just "snow."

"If the reasons for the forecast were given," he says, "I think people would get more out of it."

Hi-Fi - - Newest

By John Frederick

Press-Telegram Radio-Television Editor

HI-FI IS SWEEPING the country with the same gusto that Monopoly, Mah Jongg, Chinese Checkers and Scrabble managed to muster, but there is a vast difference between games and good musical production.

The term, "Hi-Fi," for high fidelity, is the newest catchword of Americanese. There is science behind this new means of reproducing the very high and very low notes of any musical program, record or alive.

Fidelity is the measure of preciseness or fullness of tone and it follows that high fidelity is the very peak of excellence in precise reproduction. A true high fidelity set, either phonograph, record player or specially constructed system, must be capable of reproducing every tone, and overtone, which a musical instrument produces — within the limit of human hearing, of course.

Most important to remember in selecting your own Hi-Fi set is that it must not introduce any tones of its own to mar the perfection of the music offered. Distortion can come from a record player that is not perfect in its rotation or from a needle that is not fit to the recording grooves properly. It may also come from the amplifying system itself or from the speaker.

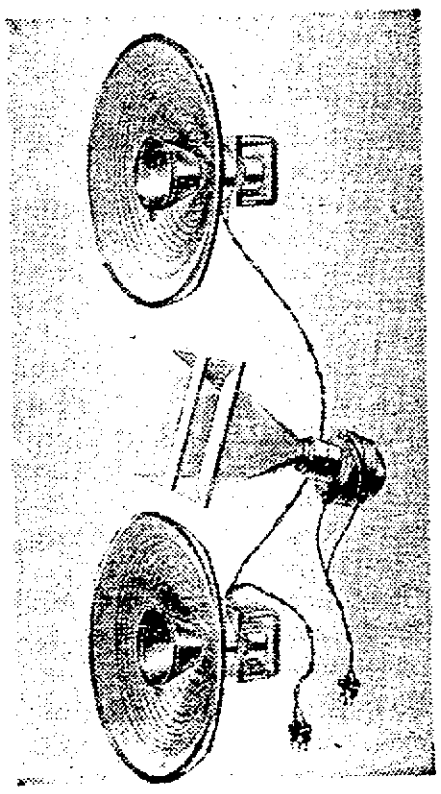

One of the first rules to remember in purchasing a Hi-Fi set is that you get what you pay for in most cases. Certainly this is true in nationally branded lines of record players, phonographs or combinations. Many people prefer setting up their own Hi-Fi system in their home, using two or more speakers.

The two-speaker system is very popular now, not only in radio, record players, etc., but in television. Many of the new sets have a speaker to handle the high notes and one to handle the low notes. Perfectly blended through the amplifier controls comes the music with the very high notes and very low notes harmonizing with the great middle structures.

NATURALLY, you want an FM radio for Hi-Fi — and it is wise to buy a set that has both AM and FM. Many programs on the standard bands are not on FM and others are on FM alone. Thus you would be providing yourself with both of the frequency sets against the time when some one program is to be enjoyed. FM is received without any static — no man-made interference — and gives as near perfect quality as can be obtained on radio.

Most of the big firms in the business of producing sound systems have come out with regular Hi-Fi sets that retail from about $150 up. They come in regular console or table model cabinets and are a nice piece of furniture when not in use.

However, it remains a fact that real enthusiasts for high fidelity will assemble their own systems to fit the acoustics of their room and please their own hearing. These installations can become very expensive, depend-

One Hi-Fi set comes with two speakers with sound diffusers and also a high-frequency horn speaker.

Referee Lack Delays M'Carthy TV Hearing

WASHINGTON—(UP). Senate investigators failed Saturday to obtain an impartial attorney to conduct the Army-McCarthy inquiry, and televised public hearings appeared certain to be postponed for a week.

Sen. Mundt, temporary chairman of the Senate permanent investigating subcommittee, announced that no selection of an independent counsel would be made this week end and not before Monday at the earliest.

That appeared to rule out any chance of the public hearing—which was to have begun last week—starting even this week. When a counsel finally accepts he will need time—at least three days—to familiarize himself with the facts in the angry controversy.

Thus far, the Democratic and Republican members of the subcommittee have been fruitlessly engaged in obtaining the services of a prominent attorney who would command the public's confidence in handling the dispute.

McCarthy himself took little note of GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall's statement that McCarthy's effectiveness had diminished since his fight with the Army. Hall said it would be up to local Republican committees whether they wanted McCarthy to speak for them.

McCarthy merely said requests for him to speak in election contests . "are increasing by the week" and half of the requests come from or through members of Congress.

GOP Power Try Charged to McCarthy

OKLAHOMA CITY—(UP). Sen. Mike Monroney (D-Okla) accused Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) Saturday night of "attempting to wrest control of the (Republican) Party from the hands of President Eisenhower and responsible Republican leaders."

Monroney, in a speech transcribed in Washington for local radio delivery, called the Wisconsin red-hunter "the No. 1 problem child of the Republican Party."

The address was a formal reply to McCarthy's speech, over the same radio station, last Saturday attacking the Democratic Party and labeling Monroney a "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and a "water boy for leftwingers." He was granted free time.

Monroney said McCarthy's investigations had "never yet convicted one single Communist" and added:

"The plain, simple fact is that he has found the 'Keystone Cop' chase productive of more headlines and notoriety than the grim business of real evidence and convictions."

Monroney called McCarthy a Johnny-come-lately on the Red-fighting scene.

"I was voting for laws strengthening our fight against subversion, for investigations and for additional agents for the FBI when Sen. McCarthy was accepting the support of the Communists. . . ." Monroney declared, in what he termed a Red-dominated labor organization in Milwaukee.

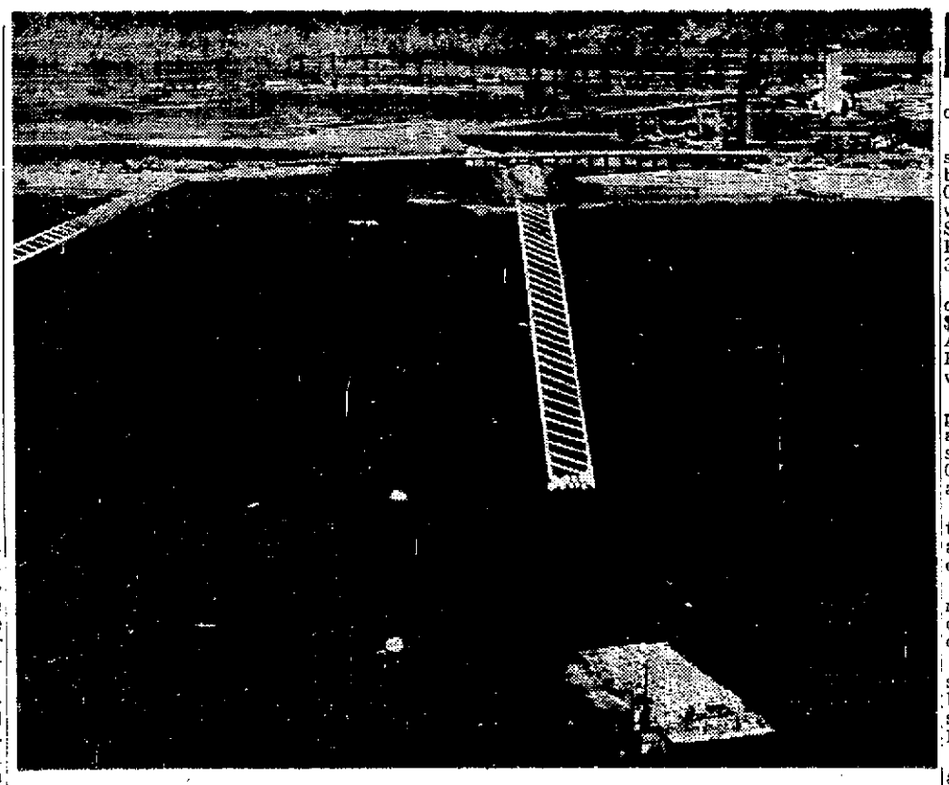

"I was voting to combat communism when Sen. McCarthy was selling a booklet on housing to the Lustron Corp. for $10,000—at the same time he was sitting on the Banking and Currency Committee of the Senate that controlled the RFC, which had outstanding and defaulted loans to this Lustron company."

"Certainly America needs and must have a watch dog to be on guard against internal subversion. But if our watch dog is given to biting the postman, the preacher, the teacher, the secretary of the Army, and the President, the former chief of staff of defense, George C. Marshall; if he snarls and bites these patriotic leaders and soundly sleeps as real Communists move out the grand piano, you'd trade him off for a better watch dog."

Monroney said Democratic congressional committees, the FBI and executive agencies had been rooting out subversives 20 years.

"While the department of justice, with FBI evidence, has secured more than 250 indictments and has not yet lost a single case it has prosecuted," he added, "McCarthy is still batting a zero in convictions, but 1000 per cent in headlines."

One Shot as Toughs Crash 'Peace' Party of Two Gangs

WILLOWBROOK — Party-crashing hoodlums who broke up a Friday night "peace dance" between two rival gangs here, causing a riot during which a 19-year-old youth was shot and a woman probation officer was injured, were sought by authorities Saturday.

The invading youths, believed to be from out of town, disrupted a party by Compton and El Jardin gangs, local factions which fought bitterly until they made peace last Jan. 28 at a meeting in Compton.

Members of both gangs were credited by probation officers with maintaining their Jan. 28 pledge and preventing a "free-for-all."

During the fracas, Frank Garcia, 19, of 9507 Anzac Ave., was shot in the thigh by one of the raiders and a woman probation officer, Florence Wallace, Los Angeles, suffered facial cuts when she was knocked down in the confusion.

The boy was taken to Los Angeles General Hospital, where he was said to be in "good" condition. The probation officer was treated at Physicians' and Surgeons' Hospital in Compton.

The Friday meeting at Garver School, 120th and Success St., was the most recent in a series of conferences and dances following the peace banquet between the two gangs.

Meanwhile, Norwalk sheriff's deputies revealed that an outburst of teen-age trouble had flared up in their area when a 14-year-old Norwalk youth was slashed with razor blades by five young hoodlums. He was not hurt seriously.

Otto Bert Packard, 15623 Thornlake St., told deputies that a gang of boys who, he said, had been "laying" for him, attacked him as he was on his way home from school.

Anyone interested may call 8-5843 for registration. Hunters are advised by Schuepbach to wear old boots and old clothes and to bring lunches.

Nursery School Heads Hold Confab on Nature of Tots

Johnny, aged 2½ to 5, isn't anywhere near as bad—nor as good—as his mother thinks he is. And neither is Susie.

They are normal, healthy, high-spirited youngsters, and they need understanding supervision and the chance to work and play with other Johnnys and Susies of their own age.

One hundred heads of co-operative nursery schools agree on that as they meet in Horace Mann elementary school this weekend for the 12th semi-annual convention of the California Council of Co-operative Nursery Schools.

Long Beach, host city, has 13 such schools with an average of 16 children per school.

Parents whose children attend the co-operative nursery schools take turns in assisting paid teachers in supervising the children's play, music, rhythms, hammering, sawing and finger and easel painting. They also take turns getting fruit juice down them and getting them onto their cots for naps.

Polly (Mrs. David) McVickar of Malibu, State Council president, is presiding over the convention which began Saturday morning and ends today noon.

Shirley (Mrs. Myron) Blumberg of Long Beach is convention chairman and Evelyn (Mrs. Leo) Shultz as Long Beach Council president is official host.

Dairy Aid Drops Thursday; Solons Stymied

WASHINGTON — (U.P.). Retail butter prices will fall about eight cents a pound as a result of the administration's slash in dairy price supports next Thursday, and congressional critics of the plan conceded Saturday there is little they can do about it.

The price of cheese also will fall—six cents a pound at retail. Fluid milk prices will not be affected.

Sen. Thye (R-Minn), leader of the opposition, said "there is not a chance" that Congress can prevent the order from taking effect on schedule next Thursday. Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) calls it "black Thursday" for dairy farmers.

But Thye said the fight for legislation to undo the order will go on. He predicted the lower prices will be effective for only a few weeks.

Thye and other Midwest members of Congress from dairy states have put terrific pressure on Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson to revoke or modify his controversial order, which reduces dairy price supports from 90 per cent of parity to 75 per cent. Benson, with President Eisenhower's personal support, has stood his ground.

Thye said he has made one last appeal to Benson for reconsideration, but he indicated he has no hope that will be done.

Dodge Quits April 15 as Budget Chief

WASHINGTON — (AP). Joseph M. Dodge, who was President Eisenhower's first official appointee, is resigning as director of the budget Apr. 15 to return to his banking job in Detroit.

Dodge, 63, reminded Eisenhower in his letter of resignation of his intention to leave "as soon as practicable" after the 1955 budget was completed and expressed regret that the time had come.

In a "Dear Joe" reply, Eisenhower accepted the resignation "only with the greatest reluctance" and said he would sorely miss Dodge's advice and counsel. Asserting Dodge's services had been "invaluable to the country," Eisenhower added:

"Your competence and knowledge in an exceedingly difficult field have immeasurably helped solve the gigantic fiscal and management problems that have faced this administration."

The White House said no successor has been chosen. The No. 2 man in the Budget Bureau is Rowland R. Hughes, a vice president on leave of the National City Bank of New York who was brought here by Dodge to be his deputy director.

In his letter to Eisenhower, Dodge recalled that he had devoted most of the last 11 years to government service, both at home and abroad.

During this period, in which he served as financial adviser to Gen. Eisenhower in Europe and to MacArthur in Japan as well as numerous other assignments, Dodge became known as a hard man with a dollar, a firm believer in balanced budgets.

Even if he had wanted to stay on longer, friends said the financial climate as it has been developing in Washington held no great appeal to him.

They cited, for example, the administration's swing in recent months toward easier money policies and the talk of big federal spending programs in case they should be deemed necessary.

Catchword of Americans

ing upon the extent of the system. Many new homes are being piped for sound in all rooms and many restaurants and retail stores in Long Beach use the high-fidelity FM radio for store-wide music reproduction.

MANUFACTURERS now provide matched component parts of a hi-fi system and this is rather expensive. But you can shop around and get the various parts you need without spending too much money. In doing your looking for a high-fidelity system take along one of your own favorite records and shop until you hear the set that gives your ear the most pleasing notes.

Here are the parts you'll need for setting up your own home hi-fi sound system:

TUNER ("Hi-Fi" word for radio). You can have AM, FM or AM/FM, depending upon your locale and the stations you receive.

RECORD PLAYER: Here you have your choice of two types. Automatic record changers which will operate on all three speeds (old 78 rpm and the longer-playing 45 and 33⅓ rpm). Check your player for unevenness of speed, which can well produce wavering tones. However, most experts agree that a turntable with a powerful motor and a manually operated tone arm will give best results.

AMPLIFIER: This controls the volume and tone. There are three parts to these high-fidelity amplifiers: pre-amplifiers, power amplifier and power supply plus many optional refinements. The amplifier takes the electrical impulses from your tuner or tone arm and delivers them to the speakers.

LOUDSPEAKERS: This converts the amplified electrical impulses into sound energy and delivers the music to you. You will need a "woofer" (a kind of horn that produces the low frequencies) and a "tweeter" (to deliver the highs). There are coaxial systems where the tweeter is fitted into the woofer and even tri-axial systems. Three separate speakers are considered as de luxe installations at the present writing.

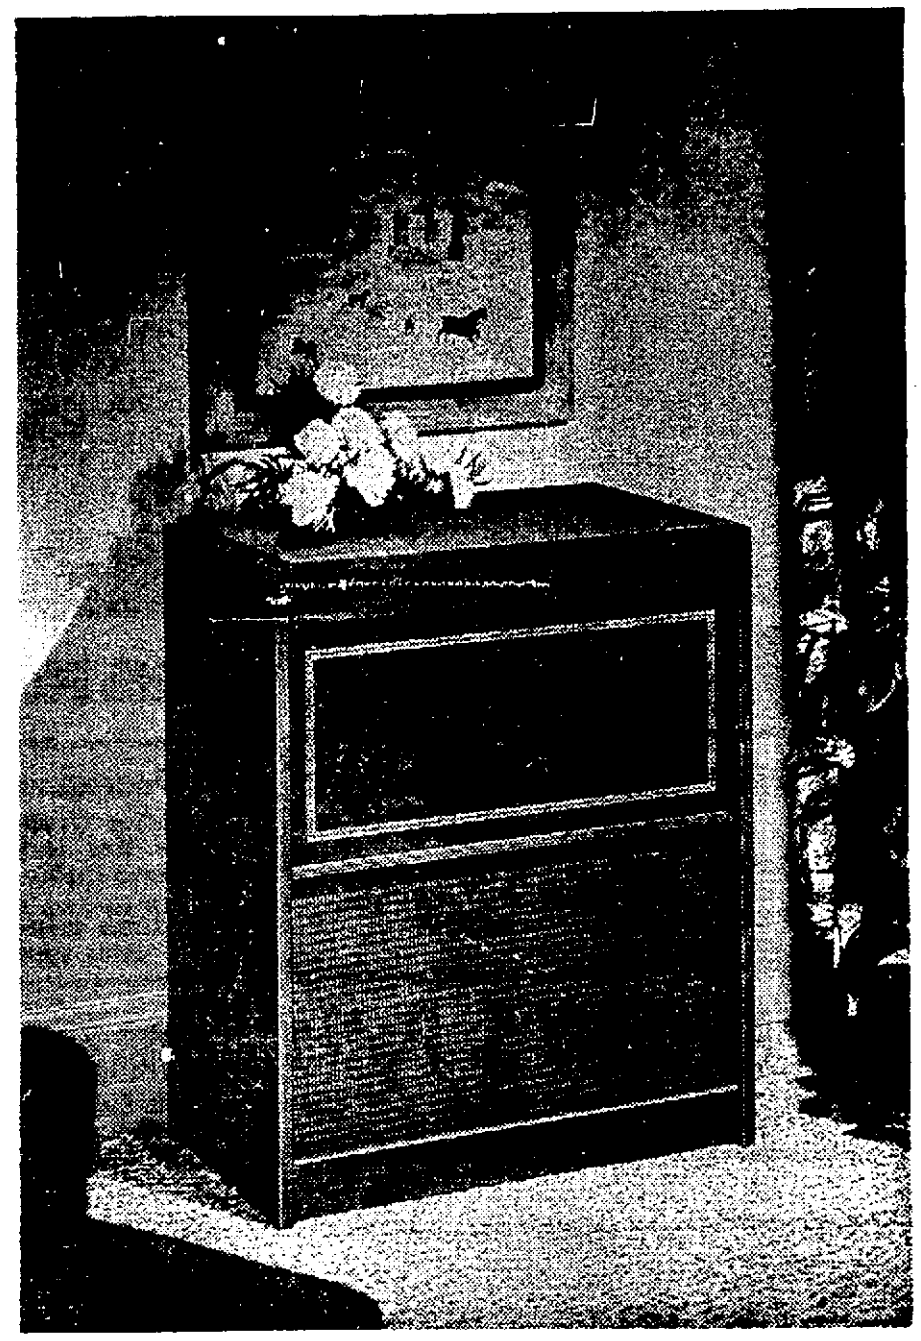

PICKUP CARTRIDGE: This is the gimmick that gets the music out of the recording. Magnetic pickup cartridges are the most popular as they provide no surface noise.

STYLUS: This is the "needle," as we used to know it, but not any more. There are hundreds of different types of stylus from which to select the right one for your system. The long-lasting diamond stylus is the most preferred but certainly the most expensive. Nearly every record player calls for a certain type of stylus and it is best to be sure to check with your dealer for replacement parts.

NOW, AS WE GET ALONG toward the close, let's remember one thing when assembling our high fidelity system. It is imperative to have more power than you use. A 40-watt system is ideal even though you will never use all that power. It is like driving a high-powered car at moderate speed for a far smoother ride than driving a low-powered car at the same speed.

Always keep your units easily accessible for repair work. If you build them into a wall or cabinet be sure they are easy to remove. Put your loudspeakers in a corner if possible and be sure you have a large enough speaker housing. Be sure the system is well ventilated as they generate a lot of heat and this can be disastrous to your sound system.

We hope you'll enjoy your new Hi-Fi system. Any dealer will be pleased to discuss the technical and fine points with you.

You usually get what you pay for in Hi-Fi. Get the best and you'll be repaid with fine music.

Cabrillo Overtakes the Lovely Goddess

By Aubrey B. Haines

FOR YEARS the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor has been a national shrine attracting many hundreds of thousands of visitors annually. But what almost nobody knows is that back in 1949 the Goddess of Liberty got a new rival which has been outdoing her in luring visitors every year since. In 1941, only 85,408 people went to see the Cabrillo monument in San Diego's harbor, a great contrast to the 452,143 who saw the harbor goddess. Cabrillo has been gaining on the goddess ever since. So last year saw 757,468 people at the Cabrillo shrine while only 714,345 sought out the Goddess of Liberty.

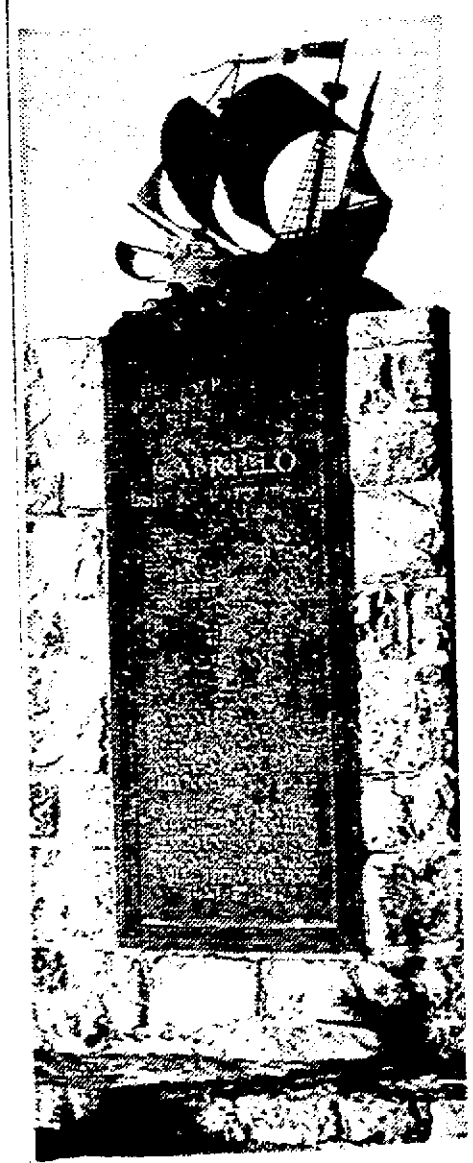

The Cabrillo National Monument, as it is now called, commemorates the discovery of the coast of California by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo on Sept. 28, 1542. His landfall at Point Loma, on which the monument is located, and his entrance and landing in San Diego Bay—which he called San Miguel Bay—mark the first contact of Europeans with this part of the New World.

Significant as Cabrillo's discovery was, it represents only an incident in the explorations which had such a profound effect on the institutions and the thought of our civilization. The voyage was one of many sea and land expeditions by means of which Spain extended its dominions in the New World and made known the continental character of the Americas.

TWO SMALL VESSELS, the San Salvador and the Victoria, sailed under Cabrillo's command on June 27, 1542, from Navidad on the west coast of Mexico. Crossing the gulf of California.

After three months of navigating, the two ships finally arrived at the islands that can be seen off the Mexican shore, opposite San Diego Bay.

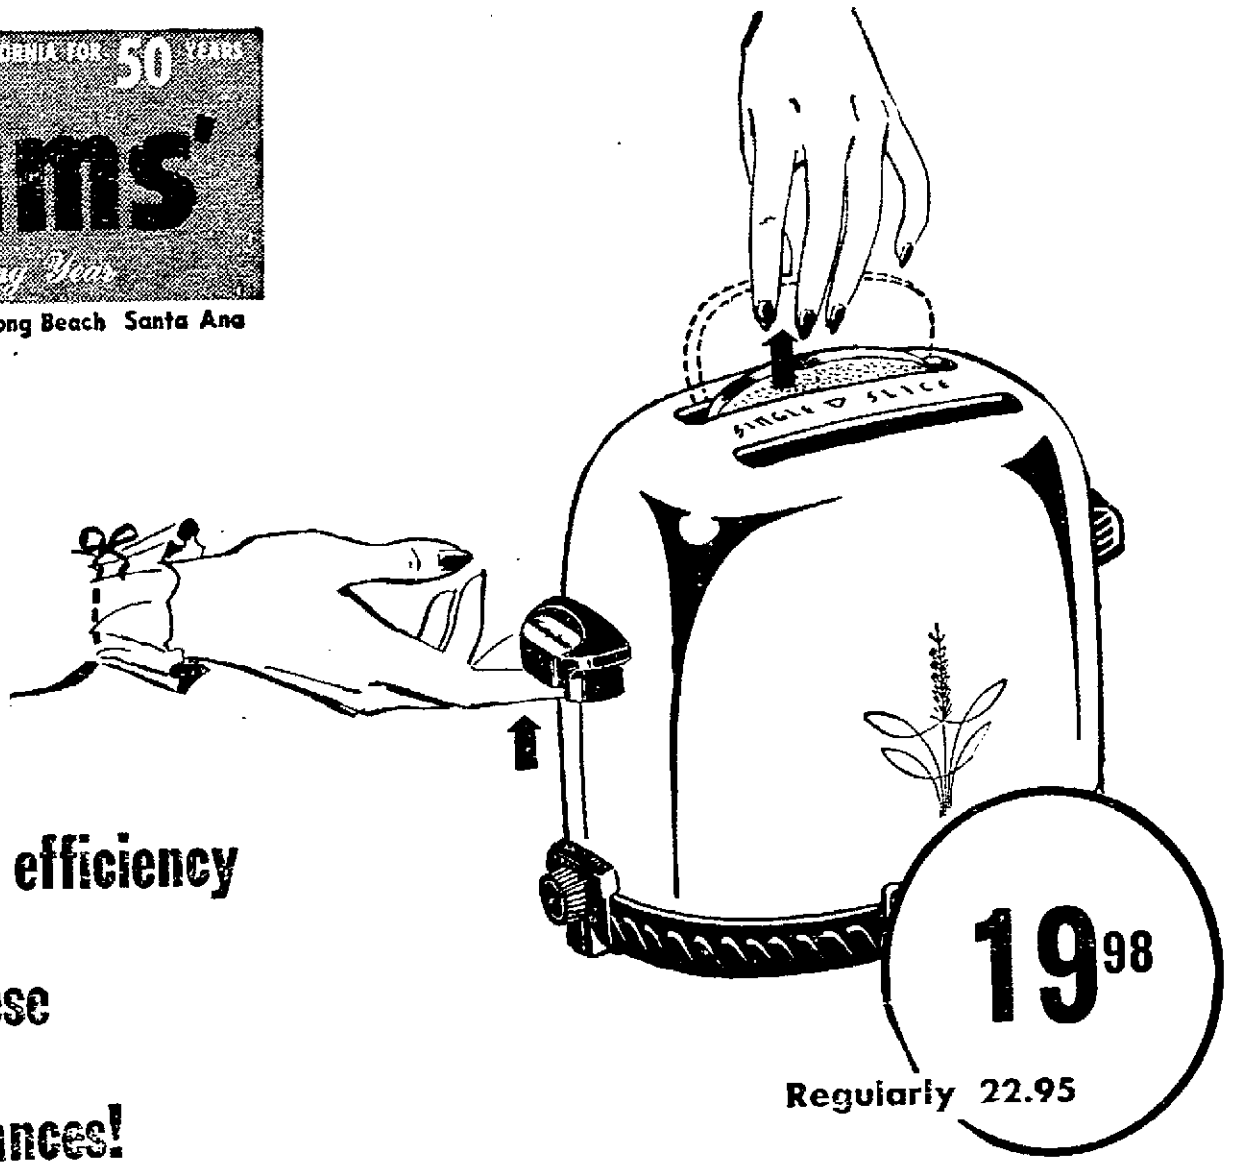

The Cabrillo National Monument consists of one-half acre and was established by Presidential proclamation in 1913. The old San Diego Lighthouse on Point Loma is the principal historical structure in the area and was first lighted back in 1855. From the tower of this sandstone building the visitor beholds one of the great seascapes of the world. An inspiring scene, it comprises the ocean, bays, islands, mountains, foothills, valleys, and plains surrounding San Digeo. Is it any wonder then that the Goddess of Liberty has had to give way to this new rival — the monument to Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo?

Bronze and stone marker tells story of Cabrillo.

Let's See the Plans

AFTER YEARS of talking about comprehensive park and recreation development, Long Beach at last is taking the realistic steps necessary to get such a program under way.

We have brought in a nationally recognized park consultant. He has prepared a broad program of recommendations and suggestions, applying to Long Beach's unique physical setup both imagination and practical principles that have survived trial elsewhere. And these broad concepts are now to be outlined to the people at a public meeting.

Park Consultant F. Elwood Allen's report in the Municipal Auditorium tomorrow night should be a high point in our civic history.

Mr. Allen confirms what farsighted Long Beach citizens have believed all along—that this city with its magnificent beach and other natural assets has the makings of one of the most beautiful cities in the world.

Local voters took the first important step toward this goal by approving in the recent special election the creation of a municipal park department. Availability of tideland revenue for upland improvements, and voter approval of development plans will make the hope a reality.

The proposals contained in the report made by Mr. Allen tomorrow night will be subject to changes, of course. But a preview reveals the report to be the necessary overall blueprint showing where we now stand in park and recreation development and suggesting the direction we should take.

Much credit for bringing us to this point must go to the Women's Council for Long Beach Beautiful, which has been tireless in its efforts for civic improvement.

There is not the slightest doubt that parks qualify for financing from tideland oil revenue. Any steps taken to beautify this community and improve its recreation facilities automatically benefit the entire surrounding area. And we are under a moral obligation, when spending tideland revenue on upland projects, to invest in projects of a regional nature.

The decision to have Mr. Allen present his report at a public meeting in the Auditorium, where a large number of citizens and all departments and officials concerned can hear the details first hand, was an execellent one.

We hope attendance at the meeting will reflect the degree of interest that is due such an important event. It is a meeting which should attract attendance from both the corporate city and the surrounding area, for many of the projects to be discussed will be of a region-wide value if they materialize.

Puerto Ricans Are Proud of Their U. S. Citizenship

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—A first visit to this beautiful, sun-drenched island, about one-half the size of Delaware, is an eye opener to the average tourist.

In the United States, we tend to think of Puerto Ricans as unfortunate, poverty stricken people who exist in New York and Chicago tenements, or work as itinerant laborers on the truck farms of Florida and Maryland for pitifully small wages.

Each year, some 300,000 Puerto Ricans are lured from their native land, either by the advertisements of unscrupulous promoters seeking a cheap labor supply, or by the desire to improve their economic condition in the United States.

KNIGHT

Of this number, about 225,000 eventually return to Puerto Rico. The pattern of migration, which Gov. Luis Munoz Marin calls a "continuous back and forth movement," will eventually taper off as living standards continue to rise on the island.

Under the progressive leadership of Gov. Munoz Marin, frightful slum districts are being replaced with modern housing. New industries are encouraged with 10-year tax exemptions. Government has built factories which are now owned by private interests.

The American-educated governor who received 64 per cent of the vote in the last election is a most remarkable individual. He is large in stature and mind, a shrewd though good humored politician who works energetically and intelligently at the job of showing his people the road to progress.

In this task, Munoz Marin follows no doctrine. He calls upon socialism, free enterprise or government as needed. This he describes as "the doctrine of realism." And it seems to work.

In a two-hour interview, the governor explained that most Puerto Ricans prefer their commonwealth status to either independence or statehood.

He pointed out that independence would be disastrous since the island can never be economically self-sufficient; that no benefits would accrue from statehood which Puerto Rico did not already possess.

Following the recent shooting of several members of Congress by fanatical Puerto Rican Nationalists, a few United States newspapers recommended a referendum on independence to "clarify the situation."

This suggestion reveals a complete misunderstanding of the situation. In the last election, the Independentista party which stands for complete separation of Puerto Rico from the United States by legal and peaceful means received only 19 per cent of the votes.

The Nationalist party, now turned to terrorism, and with less than 500 supporters, made no attempt to go to the polls.

To check the governor's statement, several newspapermen took a sidewalk poll on the question of independence. The Puerto Ricans interviewed expressed the fear that aroused by the Washington shootings, the United States might retaliate by giving Puerto Rico its complete independence.

That was the last thing they wanted to see happen since Puerto Rico has free trade with the United States, pays no federal taxes to the U. S. Treasury and can get assistance from the U. S. in times of need.

The governor added that Puerto Ricans are proud of their U. S. citizenship and that they understand and believe in the harmonious relationship which now exists.

When asked about Communists in Puerto Rico, the governor replied that they constitute no real threat to the government. The last Communist candidate received only 235 votes out of a half-million cast.

He thinks the fanatics who shot up the House of Representatives in Washington are not Communists, but anarchists. Their leader is Albizu Campos, who covers his body with towels to ward off the electronic rays which he believes are being directed at him from Washington.

McCarthy Spell Broken

OJAI, CALIF. A few days on the Pacific Coast have removed any notion I may have had that thinking and talking about McCarthy is a local obsession in Washington, or perhaps regional on the eastern seaboard. About affairs which are centered in Washington and concern the nation and its relations with the rest of the world nothing else commands serious and continuing attention. Other matters, be they the administration's program, bills before Congress, or great questions of war and peace, like Indochina, Korea and EDC, are scantily noticed. And, if I may judge from a brief but rather varied sampling of private talk about politics, only McCarthyism is much on people's minds.

LIPPMANN

There is little doubt that his bid for power is the focal point of a national obsession, which can not be put out of the public mind until it has been dealt with and disposed of. Nor is this an irrational obsession. The instinct of our people is right in feeling that until now we know who has the key power and the last word, other matters must wait. The merits of policies and of meaures can not be truly considered until the main question is decided: Is Sen. McCarthy going to succeed in capturing control of the Republican party, in dominating the Eisenhower administration, and in making himself in fact the big boss?

IMPOSSIBLE TO FOOL PEOPLE

In the early stages of his adventure it may have been true that the attention he got from the press helped to build him up. But it is not true now that the publicity he is getting is building him up. The national obsession which is giving him the fullest kind of attention is having the effect which the true believers in the freedom of the press have always counted upon. It is that given prolonged and uninhibited reporting, it is not only impossible to fool all the people all the time, but it becomes progressively more difficult to fool even some of the people all the time.

The breaking point in the movement of public opinion was reached when, in the ludicrous affair of the pink dentist, McCarthy accused the Army of coddling Communists. The American people have gotten to know the Army well because so many millions of them have been in the Army. They do not exactly think the Army is perfect, nor do they love it without reservation. Yet there is scarcely a family in the country which does not have invested in the Army something personal and poignant. Just about the last thing they would think of complaining about is that this Army, which has just fought a murderous war against armed Communists, and not merely against Fifth Amendment dentists, is coddling Communists.

There is a kind of prima facie absurdity, a self-evident incredibility, in accusing Gen. Zwicker of coddling Communists. When on top of that the people not only heard but actually saw the persecution of Mrs. Moss and on top of that the extraordinary solicitude of Mr. Cohn for Mr. Schine, something happened which can best be described as the breaking of a spell.

The spell that has been broken is that the McCarthy activities are a rough but a necessary and salutary defense of the government, institutions, social order and the religion of the country against the Communist conspiracy and revolution. Although McCarthy says that that is what he is doing, less and less believe it because he says it. After he had accused the Democratic party of treason, though they had armed the free world against Communist expansion, he went on to accuse the Eisenhower administration of conniving and of softness.

This has compelled the responsible Republicans to have another look at the claims and purposes of McCarthy's anti-Communism. When they looked, they realized that he has played no part in the great measures which the country has taken to resist the expansion of the Communist orbit—and here at home he has netted no spies but only a few minnows at the cost of terrible injustice, of enormous injury to the good name of America, and the filling of our air with poison and stink.

CHAMP?—OR CHAMPION TALKER?

For one reason and another our people are realizing that advertising yourself as the world's champion anti-Communist and being the world's champion anti-Communist are not necessarily the same thing. The fact that he denounces everyone who disagrees with him is not proof that he is more American, more loyal, and a greater patriot than anyone else. Our people have a long experience with advertisements of cures—cures for cancer, for baldness, for deficient sex appeal, and for deficient incomes. They are all in favor of curing cancer, of being beautiful and irresistible, and of getting richer as quickly as possible. But they do not believe that the label or the prospectus is true because it is printed in big bold type. They know that the most desirable objects, such as charity and the relief of suffering and the prevention of the calamities of life, are precisely those which quacks use to exploit the gullibility of men and women. When the nostrums are exposed, they do not suppose that the doctor who has exposed the quack is himself an advocate of cancer, of baldness, or of spinsterhood.

The people are, in short, becoming aware of the difference between the appearance and reality, between the claims and the facts, between the label and the contents of the package.

H-Bomb Worries Premier Malenkov

WASHINGTON—Ambassador to Moscow Charles Bohlen has sent the State Department a significant cable regarding the political repercussions of the gigantic hydrogen-bomb explosion in the Pacific.

The almost unbelievable power of this latest test, Bohlen believes, is probably the reason for Premier Malenkov's unprecedented statement warning against war. For the first time, the Kremlin publicly went on record with a warning that war would mean the destruction of Russia as well as civilization.

PEARSON

Ambassador Bohlen believes the Kremlin already knew something about the amazing results of the Pacific H-bomb test before Malenkov made this statement. Russian Geiger counters had had nine days to pick up radioactive evidence of the blast, and must have measured its ferocious force.

Faced with this grim fact, Malenkov decided to speak out and warn the Russian people, and Bohlen believes this may be the tip-off that the Kremlin is finally ready to be more conciliatory about control of hydrogen-atomic energy.

OUR SECRET ALLIES

Ambassador Bohlen's report high lights one of the most serious omissions of the Eisenhower administration and of the American public. We have been so busy with our own domestic problems, so busy worrying about McCarthy's alleged spies under the desk of every bureaucrat that we have neglected crucial opportunities in the Soviet Union.

It has now been one year since Stalin died—in itself a heaven-sent opportunity to drive a wedge between the Russian people and the Kremlin. Eugene Lyons, one of the best American experts on Russia, reports in his book, "Our Secret Allies," that almost every move the Kremlin has made since Stalin's death has been aimed at pacifying the restless Russian people.

The execution of Marshal Beria; the purges in Georgia, the Ukraine and Kazakstan; the riots in East Germany; unrest in Czechoslovakia and Poland all bear this out.

"Our secret allies," says Lyons, are the Russian people.

My own observations, and those of scores of U. S. and European observers bear this out. Boris Shub, a Russian-speaking officer of the American Army, who interviewed Russian prisoners captured by the Germans, has given overwhelming evidence to show that 3,000,000 members of the Red army surrendered to the Nazis not because of the strength of the German army but because they were fed up with the Communist regime. They looked to Germany for liberation.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Recession advice—President Eisenhower's economic advisers are urging him to back down on his statement that he will take government action if employment doesn't pick up this month. The economists warn that the recession may drag on through April and May, but they insist it still isn't serious enough to require emergency action. . . . President Eisenhower has installed a steak grill in the White House's green-tinted solarium—or glass-lined penthouse. He doesn't like the White House kitchen. It's too big. As a result, the Chief Executive can be found—at least one night a week—wearing a big chef's cap and apron and roughing it on the White House roof. . . . Italy's new prime minister, strong-man Mario Scelba, has promised Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce he will take action to smash the Communist party in Italy.

MALCOLM EPLEY

L.B. System Unique, but It Works

AS THIS is written, 32 Long Beach citizens have formally declared their intentions of running for membership on the City Council. Several filing days remain, and with political ambition running rampant this year, it's possible the total may advance to 35 or 40.

EPLEY

Long Beach voters, contemplating this array of candidates, can thank the designers of our rather unique local election system that they provided for district run-offs prior to the general city-wide election. District voting at the primary election on May 11 will reduce the number of Council candidates to 18, whose names will go on the city-wide ballot June 1.

The strain on conscientious citizens will be serious enough, with 18 on the ballot. Thirty-five or 40 on a Council ballot would present an almost hopeless situation, insofar as the chances for full consideration of the qualifications of all would be concerned.

Long Beach's Council election system is duplicated, if at all, in few American cities. Its merits and demerits are frequently discussed by local people interested in governmental reforms, and on occasion changes have been informally suggested. But it has lasted a long time, and there is much to be said for it.

It combines two principles—district representation and city-wide voting on the members of the municipal body. This is reasonable, because a Councilman's work is divided along the same lines. While he is expected to give attention to district matters, many of his most important decisions and actions are on questions of community-wide significance.

For the benefit of newcomers unfamiliar with the way it operates, perhaps it should be noted that under the system, voters of each district nominate two candidates in the primary. Then, in the general election, voters of the entire city pick nine Councilmen, one from each district.

ALTERNATIVES

The alternatives to this system would be: (1) To elect councilmen by district vote, only, or (2) to elect them by city-wide voting without respect to their places of residence.

There is something to be said, of course, for and against both methods. District voting only would assure that the Councilmen would be elected by a majority of the voters in the district, whereby under the present system that may not always hold. Those who favor city-wide contests argue that the best nine men available should be recruited for Council positions, regardless of where they live.

But under exclusive district voting, each voter would be deprived of participation in the choice of eight of the nine members of a body which consistently acts on matters of importance to the entire city. And under city-wide non-district contests, we would be faced with the possibility of dozens of candidates on one ballot, as would be the case this year.

Against these unfavorable aspects, the present system looks pretty good.

It may be argued that if such a system is good in the city, it should be adopted for State Legislatures and the Congress. The answer is that a city is an integrated unit, with all sections so closely related that the qualifications of citizens who may seek public office may be known throughout the unit. Many of them will live in one section, work in another, go to church in another, etc. Council district boundaries here are of such little significance that many people do not know, except at election time, in which district they live. Such factors, of course, do not hold in larger units such as the state or nation.

So the Council election system about to go into operation here, while unique, has some definitely strong points. If it doesn't produce a good Council, it's more likely to be the fault of the voters than the system.

L.A.C. SAYS:

6.9 Million Widows

basis alone we must expect an ever-increasing number of widows in the older brackets.

The survey shows that about 60 per cent of widows remarry. About 94 per cent of divorcees remarry. Almost a billion dollars a year is paid out to widows as life insurance payments. Another $26 million a year is now paid to widows from social security. The widow is entitled to a lump sum payment equal to three times the monthly benefits her husband was entitled to plus three-fourths of his monthly benefits thereafter. The sad fact is, however, that many of the present widows are not protected because social security did not cover their husbands in time.

It is a social problem which every man should investigate. He should recognize the hopeless position in which an older woman is left if she is not already working. A woman past 40 years of age, left a widow, will have a difficult time finding a job. Only about 35 per cent of present widows are employed. The rest are living with friends or relatives. Many are destitute from the day the husband passes away.

Expansion of the social security plan to take in more employed people is a great forward step. But social security is only a subsistence income at its best. The family that seeks a larger measure of protection should plan early to build an estate to supplement those benefits. That can be done by careful saving and investment over many years. But if immediate protection is the plan it can only be provided by a well-planned insurance program. Such a program provides for such an estate the day the policy takes effect. It can be paid for monthly or annually. But the important factor is to do something. A review of these statistics concerning the situation of widows should spur the thinking of every family that is together today.—L.A.C.

TOWN MEETING

McCarthy

TO THE EDITOR:

McCarthyism?

Look at it this way. It's well known that vice and narcotics officers know all suspected users and many of the runners. But it's useless and harmful to their efforts to make arrests until there is sufficient evidence for conviction.

Suppose we had a crusading councilman who insisted on exposing the little fellows to the public gaze, in the process ridiculing the enforcement officers and other city officials until their morale was destroyed. No incriminating evidence is provided. The little fringe operators have become hot, so the big boys recruit new channels of operation. Nothing has been accomplished except the destruction of the leads the law enforcement men have built up.

If it is the desire of our people to alter the Constitution, to exclude protection for a person of questionable loyalty, then change it. If a person is disloyal, his country owes him no protection. But until it is changed, it should be respected. Certainly no one should be convicted simply because he uses it to evade questions that were deliberately framed to distort the true picture . . .

Communism is now a crime in the eyes of most of our people, and a man should not be so accused until there is evidence to support the charge.

Too Much Gunplay

TO THE EDITOR:

I am a grandmother and a great-grandmother, and it is hard for me to get used to seeing the little fellows of today so taken up with their toy guns and the like.

I see shooting, fighting and killing pictures. For 50 years I have seen such pictures before the public, but have never been able to class them as enjoyable entertainment.

It is bad enough to read of the dark ages of feuding and fighting and lawlessness. But through the years of struggle for education and enlightenment, need we be reminded so much of the wicked past?

God wants his children to have happier thoughts. He wants them to be constructive, useful children and grow up in that environment and become honest and upright citizens.

Unwanted Papers

TO THE EDITOR:

I noticed in your paper an article on shameful trash habits. I can tell you one thing that makes our yards look so littered up.

There's never a day that we don't pick up from 10 to 15 papers and pamphlets in our yard. It should be a law that papers could not be thrown on one's property unless subscriptions were taken.

People drive along the boulevard and throw the papers from cars, some landing on roofs. Kids pitch papers carelessly, punching holes in screen doors.

These unwanted papers not only create a mess in the yard, but keep the back yard incinerators going, thus adding to the smog nuisance.

'Did It for Five Kids,' Bank Bandit Admits

WASHINGTON, Pa. — (U.P.) An unemployed farm laborer who held up an Indiana bank and shot a bank examiner was captured at a roadblock here Saturday as he tried to flee to Rhode Island with his wife and five young children.

"I did it for the kids," Carl D. Hoopengarner, 30, sobbed as he told state police how he robbed the state bank of Terre Haute, Ind. of $1716 at shotgun point Friday morning. "My wife and five kids had to have something to eat."

Hoopengarner, labeled "dangerous and armed" in a 48-state teletype alarm, surrendered meekly when officers closed in on his battered prewar model car when he halted for a red light.

Beside him sat his wife, Anita, 26. Their two sons and three daughters, ranging in age from two months to five years, slept on the shabby baggage piled high in the back seat.

Hoopengarner first denied he was the gunman wanted in Indiana, but told the story of the holdup after police found the cash from the robbery in a paper bag hidden under the car hood atop the battery.

Hoopengarner, who lost his $40 a week job with a mushroom company in West Terre Haute last week, said his wife did not know he planned the holdup. He said he took his shotgun, walked into the bank and demanded that "they give me the money."

"I was scared and the gun went off," he said. The blast wounded William Grady, 23, Racine, Wis., in the arm.

Hoopengarner escaped but his auto license number was spotted.

His wife said Hoopengarner had told her Friday morning to get packed and be ready to drive to Providence, R. I., where her family lives. After the holdup the family piled into the car and started driving east.

Hoopengarner said he had trouble making ends meet on his job, but things got worse when he was laid off. Virtually penniless, he went to a bar Friday morning and met a man who "kept talking about his new car and new television set."

"I did it for the kids," he said. "They didn't have enough clothes. When this fellow kept talking about his new car and TV, I guess it was more than I could stand."

During the interrogation by police, Mrs. Hoopengarner burst into tears.

"I just don't know what I'm going to do," she said. "I have six cents to my name. I just have to get to Providence."

Hoopengarner said he had hoped to start a new life in Rhode Island and even thought of "taking the money back" to the bank.

"Then I figured it wouldn't do any good," he said.

Unlocked Car Looted

Clio Banker's Kin Help Raise $156,000

CLIO, Ala.—(U.P.) Clio's wayward "banker" returned home Saturday for a second try at "straightening out" this town's tangled finances, this time with his family's money.

Royall Reynolds, who did a 12-day, fadeout with most of the $164,000 in the uninsured Clio Merchants Exchange last Mar. 6 and left his neighbors penniless, said $156,000 would be available to pay back from 85 to 90 cents of every depositor's dollar.

Mayor Dan Easterling called the situation more hopeful than we even thought it could be," and added, "we may be able to repay 50 per cent of the money by the end of next week."

Reynolds, who already has put up $5000 worth of war bonds and 1600 pennies, said $94,000 was in an Atlanta bank and that he and his relatives would contribute $62,000, leaving an $8000 shortage to be split among the depositors.

Friday night, 115 of the exchange's 136 depositors agreed to take the loss and signed statements that they would abide by decisions of the creditors' committee on its division. They hoped to avoid a bankruptcy hearing and the resulting court costs by settling the financial tangle themselves.

However, if any depositor holds out for a bankruptcy hearing, the committee plan would have to be abandoned and the whole affair turned over to the courts.

Reynolds said his father, 72-year-old Winston Reynolds, will put up $14,000; his aunt by marriage, Mrs. Vela Rae Reynolds, will contribute $24,000; four other relatives will make a joint contribution of $8000, and he, himself, will raise $16,000 through the sale of his house, two cars, furniture and personal belongings.

Easterling, chairman of the creditors' committee, said Reynolds' relatives have confirmed they will put up the money.

BLENDED LENSES
DO WHAT BIFOCALS DO - BUT MUCH BETTER!

THE SHADOW PROVES IT

How Blended Lenses Work
You use Blended Lenses like bifocals or trifocals. The big difference is that you Don't Have an Abrupt Jump when you move your eyes. You have gradual changes from reading to arms length and distance areas. Gradual changes are more acceptable to bodily functions than quick, abrupt shifts.
With bifocals, when you move your head and objects jump, beware of Stumbling. There is possible confusion of Seeing Double. When moving about or driving with Blended Lenses you are safe, because objects will not jump, and you will not see double through any part of lens.

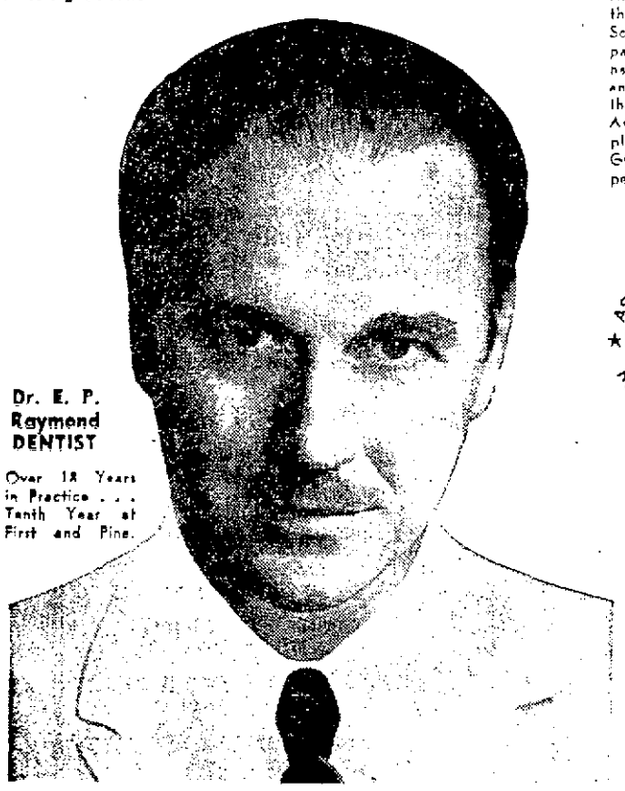

Trust to Pridham Davis' Experience
Pridham Davis started fitting Blended Lenses over six years ago. His success was so great that he has opened a total of eleven offices in Southern California to fill the demand.
Pridham Davis makes all types of glasses. Examination of your eyes will indicate the type of lenses best for you. Whether these be Blended Lenses, or any other type, Pridham Davis is prepared to fit you best for your needs.

Credit Makes Eyecare Easy
To make it especially easy for you, Pridham Davis will wait six weeks for you to make your first budget payment. Get the glasses you need now.

Apartment Refreshed

A cozy dining area is situated by the window in the 8th-floor O'Donnell apartment. Note planter and desk.

By Eileen Ball

JUST AS A FAMILY can outgrow a house, they may also outgrow an entire way of life. When children grow up and leave, and the head of the house retires, the need for a large house dwindles. And often the attractions of a more carefree apartment - dweller's existence beckons welcomingly.

However, it is occasionally difficult for former owners to accept the fact that such a roof is not their own. Too many years of hanging pictures where and when they wished, painting rooms to suit their fancy, and performing minor and major feats of redecoration can make the prospect of renting less intriguing.

The solution, then, for a leisurely, yet completely independent mode of housing might be

Army Murder May Result in Wide Personnel Recheck

TOKYO—(U.P.) The U. S. Army Saturday was reportedly considering a re-evaluation of personnel as a result of facts brought to light in the murder trial of M/Sgt. Maurice L. Schick, convicted and sentenced to die for the strangulation killing of a 9-year-old girl.

Although high Army officers here have made no official statement on the reported recheck of personnel, reliable but unconfirmed reports were thick that one is pending. It was generally conceded that only a lack of checking into Schick's background could have allowed such a man to reach his position when he committed his crime.

Schick, a Purple Heart veteran, held the responsible position of ward head in Anan Army Hospital when he got "an urge to kill" and brutally strangled the daughter of an Army colonel. He had been described as a "model soldier" prior to the murder.

Schick's record, brought to light during the course of the trial that ended in his death sentence, showed: a bad-conduct discharge from the Navy, a report from a previous commanding officer that he believed Schick "completely insane," an attempted murder of his own brother, a robbery in 1943 and an admission while under drugs that he murdered two girls in France.

Movie Program at L.B. Library

The second in a series of experimental film programs will be presented by the Public Library Film Service Thursday at 7:30 p.m. by Alamitos Branch Library, 1836 E. Third St. The public is invited.

Guest speaker at the program will be Dean Spille, local artist, who produced experimental films at UCLA as a student and who has worked in Hollywood studios.

Films to be shown are: "Flat Hatting," an abstract film from Cinema 16; "Pacific 231," a camera interpretation of Honegger's symphonic arrangement; "Lamentnt," Jose Limon's interpretation of a Spanish bullfighter; and "Odd Fellows Hall," a satire on detective stories.

Purchasing Agents See End of Slump

NEW YORK — (AP). The National Association of Purchasing Agents said Saturday, "The industrial business decline has abated and is leveling off."

It based the statement on a March survey of purchasing executives from coast to coast and in all lines of business—manufacturing, railroads, utilities and others.

Reports from 225 of the association's members, representing all sections of the country, show that, for the first time since last May, increases outnumbered decreases for both industrial production and new orders.

"As would be expected, the individual changes are not large, and the reversal of the trend is not strong enough to indicate a sharp upswing," reported the association's business-survey committee.

"However, it is apparent from our March survey that the industrial business decline has abated and is leveling out," said the committee. Its chairman is Robert C. Swanton, director of purchases for Winchester Repeating Arms Co., division of Olin Industries, Inc., New Haven, Conn.

A spokesman for the association said about 90 per cent of its 16,500 members do the buying for manufacturers and have to place their orders two to three months ahead of the time their finished products reach consumers. And their estimates on industrial production and new orders usually are not reflected in economic statistics until four to six weeks later. The 225 covered in the monthly survey are chosen to represent both a cross-section of business and industry and also all geographical areas.

The committee said the change of trend for production was marginal and possibly seasonal, with 24 per cent of the buying executives reporting increases and 18 per cent reporting decreases.

The committee said producers of items subject to federal excise taxes report considerable business being held back awaiting final congressional action on proposed cuts in some of the levies.

Declare 70 Gls Dead

WASHINGTON — (U.P.). The Army Saturday identified 70 more soldiers who are presumed dead after being missing in Korea for more than one year. The list brought to 32,972 the total of announced American deaths in the Korean war.

Californians Resist Delay on DeLuz Dam

WASHINGTON—(U.P.) California groups objected formally Saturday to a proposal of three federal agencies to delay construction of DeLuz Dam on the Santa Margarita River until litigation over rights to water in the river is settled.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif) detailed the objections in a letter to Chairman Eugene D. Milliken (R-Colo) of a Senate Interior subcommittee studying a bill to authorize the dam.

The Justice, Navy and Interior Depts. told the subcommittee earlier they favored construction of the dam, but only after a federal suit against water users on the river is settled. The departments also asked for repeal of an appropriation bill rider denying funds for prosecution of the suit.

"It is the basic thinking of Sen. Knowland (William F. Knowland, R-Calif) and myself that the construction of the dam should not await nor in any way be related to the final adjudication of the pending litigation," Kuchel said. "State officials are in agreement on this."

Kuchel, saying he spoke for local groups also, said he opposed repeal of the appropriation rider. Congress has approved it three times, he said, showing "its intention clearly."

A proposal of the departments that the Fallbrook Utility District, which would share in water from the dam, be required to transfer water rights to the government also was opposed by Kuchel. He said the requirement would be "contrary to the laws of California."

IT'S A JOKE, SON

Parrot Adds Stunner to Vocabulary

Joe, an African gray parrot, says "April Fool!"

He cocks his head on one side, says "April Fool!" to surprised hearers, and then laughs because most persons who hear him laugh and he mimics their voices.

"We have taught him to say 'April Fool!' to surprise our customers next Thursday," says his attractive mistress, Ann Simington, whose pet shop is at 1440 E. Seventh St., "but he'll probably still be saying it at Christmas-time, because Joe never forgets."

Joe has soft gray plumage with a red tail and he has a vocabulary of 75 words, according to Ann, who says that African grays are the best talkers in the parrot family. Joe says "How are you?", "That's right," "Thank you" and "Howdy, Pardner!"

He mimics both the voice and the laugh of Anne and her husband, also named Joe; he mimics the dog, Rusty; the cat, Happy; the monkeys, large and small, in near-by cages, plus the parakeets and cockateels that live near him, and wild doves outside his window.

'World Dances,' Critic Sings at Preview of L.B. Premiere

By VERA WILLIAMS

It matters little what tongues people speak—when they get together to sing and to dance, their music and their happiness are the same language.

This story is told over and over in brilliant color, scintillating music and the gay folk dances of many lands in "The World Dances," full-length color motion picture shown Saturday afternoon in Town Hall for the press and Long Beach dancers who participated.

It will have its world premiere at 8:15 p. m. Friday in Town Hall.

Produced and directed by Brooke L. Peters with a cast of 1000 folk dancers and singers, the film is designed for showing in art theaters, churches, colleges and auditoriums.

The folk festival motion picture presents graphically what writers and musicians and dancers have tried to say for years—the arts and cultures of many countries pour into America and particularly into California, where the picture was filmed—and from this great merging of arts and folkways a new culture is sure to be born.

George Fenneman narrates the film and the festival choir of 120 is directed by Melvin L. Gallagher. Alex Alexander conducts the musical score and W. Merle Connell directed the cinematography.

Audrey Share's English folk dancers, of Long Beach, featured in the picture, include:

Lois Ann Pickering, Dolores and Jay Boyle, Sandra and Babette Mann,

Barbara Brown, Jo-Ann Vince, Iris Whitman, Shirley Kuster, George Augustson,

Victor Riolo, Victor Potter, Bob Hope, Dwayne Poston, Audrey Share, Lloyd Martin, Bob Airth, Glen Singleton, Patricia Nelson, Dick Nelson and John Kelly.

Men's Clothing Geared to Modern Living

Comfort, Easier Care Stressed in Styling

From the toaster on the breakfast table to travel in a strato-jet air liner, modern living is streamlined, slimmed-down and functional.

Functional is the word for the modern home, the modern car, even modern clothes. All are products geared to a fast-moving and comfort-conscious way of life in which there is neither time nor space for the burdensome weights and fancy "gingerbread" common a generation ago.

Take clothes, for example. From head to toe, the well-dressed man's attire this Spring will be light in weight, high in comfort, and styled to require a minimum of care. From his trim-cut hat to his narrow lightweight shoes, his clothes permit easy movement and around-the clock comfort. His suits and sports clothes are tailored of modern, lightweight fabrics whose weight is much less than the weight of fabrics popular only a decade ago.

Many of 1954's smartest all-wool tropical worsted fabrics, for example, weight as little as seven ounces to the yard. Unmatched in warm-weather comfort, they are at the same time unparalleled in serviceability and durability.

Back when the 19th Century was drowsing to a leisurely end, the somberly styled overcoat that granddad wore when he strolled the avenue with a bustled belle was often made of material that weighed more than a pound-and-a-half a yard.

COLLARS WERE "CHOKERS"

His chest was confined in the iron-maiden grip of a "stiff-bosomed" shirt. His high, "choker" collar, starched to board-like rigidity, worked with his inflexibly tight, hard hat to cut off practically all circulation above the neck.

The unwielding, ankle-high shoes in which he stepped, in dignified slow-motion from the horse-car age into the early 1900's were massive and heavy enough to discourage anything but ponderous slow-footed movement.

And just as the slower, heavier tempo of the not-so-gay, gas-lit '90's was reflected in the clothes men wore, so is the spirit of our functional, high-speed times expressed in the apparel that you'll find in any men's wear store today.

That wardrobe essential, the spring suit, in cheap-lined styling of smooth, sleek worsteds, supple, textured woolens, or in jersey or nubby silk, has half the weight of suits gentlemen wore when father was a boy. In the case of all-wool tropicals their featherweight feel is heightened by scientifically planned linings and open, ventilated construction.

But the reduction in wool fabric weights is only part of the story of the coming of functionalism to men's wear. All through the multitude of complicated steps of clothing production—weaving, designing, styling and manufacturing—the drive for still greater improvement goes on.

LEISURE WEAR FEATURED

To provide maximum comfort, as well as smart appearance, entirely new kinds of sports, leisure and casual apparel appropriate for specific uses and occasions have been created.

New departures have been developed in hand-needle techniques, in machine processes and in the handling and manufacture of inner, hidden elements such as inter-linings, facings and even the threads used in sewing the finer, lighter wools and worsteds.

The dull, bulky duds that granddad wore have no more resemblance to the clothes men wear today than a Model T Ford has to a 1954 sports convertible. Today's apparel, from hat to shoes, has more than kept pace with progress in all other fields. Trim, lightweight and comfortable, it's tailored to the needs and tastes of the modern male—hard working, hard playing, fast-moving citizen of a highly functional world.

A BIG YEAR FOR JACKETS

Gaining in popularity each season, the sportjacket comes into its own this summer in a big way. In fact, there is a jacket for nearly every occasion and in nearly every color. You will see black jackets with pink shirts or it may be a pink jacket over a black shirt. Here are two of the offerings. Gold threads brighten the soft basket weave at the left, which is a chocolate background. At the right stripes set off this jacket which is worn over a colorful vest. Long Beach menswear stores are showing the latest in jackets and suits as they open men's fashion week.

Bank Honors Chal Finley

G. Chal Finley, assistant cashier at Bank of America's Long Beach main office, was honored recently for 25 years of service.

Finley and five other officers from Southern California cities were guests of honor at a Los Angeles luncheon, where they were presented diamond service pins by A. J. Gock, chairman of the board of directors.

G. Chal Finley

Finley's entire banking career has been spent in Long Beach. He began as a bookkeeper in the old Seventh and Redondo Ave. branch, which later consolidated with Long Beach main office after the old branch building suffered damage in the 1933 earthquake. Finley was made an officer in 1946, shortly after returning from military service with the Army in both the European and South Pacific theaters.

Since he will get a four-weeks' vacation this year, as do all staff members on their 25th anniversary year, he is already planning on trailering to the Sierra streams to indulge his hobby of fishing. With him will be his wife, Mrs. Peggy Finley, who is well known here for her work as Harbor Area chairman of Americanism Week, and as past president of Pilot Club of Long Beach. The couple lives at 5251 Vista Street, Long Beach.

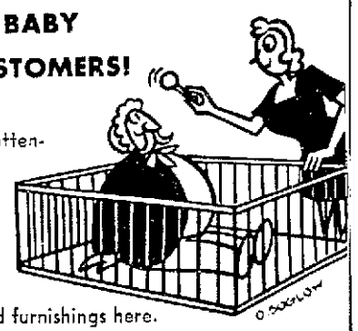

SHOES HAVE COMFORT, STYLE

to consider an "own-your-own" apartment.

Which is just what the C. J. O'Donnells of this city did less than a year ago.

The O'Donnells were tired of the maintenance of their California Heights home, which kept them close to home most of the time and caused a certain amount of worry when they traveled. So they investigated the merits of owning an apartment. And now, in their newly decorated eighth-story domicile in the Sovereign Apartments, they are getting ready for an extended European tour. And the best part about the trip will be the complete absence of any concern for the "home front."

But lest this all sound easier than it really was, it should be mentioned here that this apartment, as it appears today, bears not even slight resemblance to the apartment in which the O'Donnells originally "saw possibilities" and bought.

To begin with, virtually every partition in the apartment was torn down, and small rooms became large ones. Meaningless nooks and crannies indigenous to buildings constructed 30 years ago were eliminated. Folding beds and narrow-shelved cupboards were ripped out. And with their removal, a completely modern, spacious apartment emerged — almost unbelievably beautiful.

THE SMALL ENTRY has been papered on one wall with a tiny medallion design in rose and deep aqua. The other wall appears to be solidly paneled in natural mahogany. But, in reality, vast storage areas are con-

Finnan Haddie Casserole helps relieve Lenten meals monotony. It may be prepared in the casserole or in individual dishes. Garnish is cress, potato chips.

COOKING

Finnan Haddie Casserole

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

TIME WAS when the "poor fish" inevitably landed in the frying pan.

Time, though, has been very good to the fish, for now it finds itself in thermidors, Newburgs, broiled, baked, and even pickled. It holds its own in cream sauces, tomato sauces or just plain buttered, too.

During the Lenten season we turn to fish — fresh or frozen, fish in shells or even cans. And well we should, for gourmets and culinary experts have left nothing undone in their perfection of recipes to delight the homemaker, her family and her guests with this food from the watery depths.

One young lady who charms her guests with both her personality and the foods she serves is Mrs. T. E. Peterson, 4543 Goldfield Ave. Her Finnan Haddie Casserole recipe is featured today.

Since many of you will be alert to other ways of serving fish, we suggest the following:

Oysters and Bacon

Large oysters
Sliced bacon
Hot, buttered toast
Salt, pepper
Tartar sauce
Lemon
Paprika

Select large fresh oysters, drain and wrap each with a strip of bacon, fasten the bacon in place with a toothpick. Sprinkle each with paprika, salt and pepper and grill them under the broiler heat till the bacon is well browned. Serve two on a round of hot buttered toast. Serve with lima beans and diced tomato salad.

Fish can be prepared by many interesting methods, as in Finnan Haddie Casserole, a recipe given elsewhere on this page and from the file of Mrs. T. E. Peterson.

Broiled Steaks or Fillets

Brush fillets or steaks with bacon drippings, butter or oil. Sprinkle generously with paprika. Line broiler pan with aluminum foil, place steaks or fillet on pan, broil about 8 to 10 minutes on one side, turn when half the thickness has become opaque and broil on other side. Allow 15 minutes for cooking fish 1 inch thick, ½-inch steak about 9 minutes. Steaks or fillets may be sprinkled with lemon juice, spread with mayonnaise.

Savory Fish Stuffing

4 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, chopped
1 large green pepper, chopped
½ cup tomato puree
¼ teaspoon marjoram
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
Pepper to taste
1 cup bread crumbs

Melt butter, add onion, saute for 5 to 10 minutes. Add chopped green pepper, cook five minutes longer. Add puree, seasonings, cook for 5 to 8 minutes. Add bread crumbs, blend well, remove from heat.

Kitchen Tip:

Mrs. Peterson's Kitchen Tip: Homemade waffle batter will keep several days in the refrigerator.

Mrs. Peterson's Finnan Haddie Casserole:

Cover 1 lb. finnan haddie with cold water and bring to a boil. Simmer 15 min. Cool and flake.

To 2¼ cups of boiling salted water add ⅔ cup brown rice. Cover tightly and cook over low heat for 45 minutes.

Make a cream sauce of 3 tbs. butter, 3 tbs. flour and 1 cup milk. Last, stir in 1 beaten egg yolk. To this mixture add flaked finnan haddie, 1½ tbs. finely chopped onion, ½ cup finely chopped celery and 2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Salt and paprika to taste.

Place half of the cooked rice in a well-buttered casserole. Pour over this the cream sauce mixture and top with the remaining rice. Dot with butter and bake at 350 degrees F. oven for 20 minutes. Rem ovefrom oven, sprinkle with grated Tillamook cheese and bake 10 more minutes.

Keepers of the Lighthouse

a battery of generators that turn out enough power for a small town. Electricity is produced through generators to prevent a loss of power through broken cables in the event of storm, earthquake or snagging by a ship.

RELAXING between watches is done on the galley deck. Radio, television, and phonograph are available. Also, the inevitable coffee is always steaming on the stove.

Between tours of duty, Chief Heikkila and his men may fish for recreation and also may catch a few lobsters and crabs from the rocks of the breakdater for special meals.

Another pastime is talking about wives and children. All are married except Sellz. The chief says a modern lighthouse operation appears to appeal more to married men than the bachelors. Most single men prefer ship or shore duty than life aboard the lighthouse station.

Chief Heikkila expressed it for himself and his men when he said:

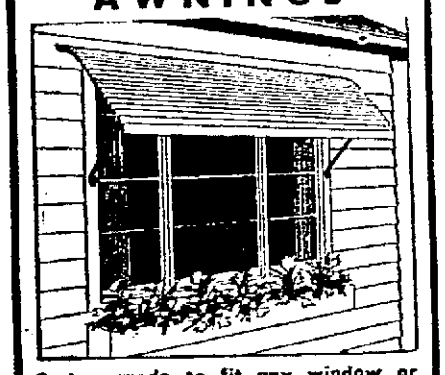

"Don't say too much about what good duty this is or there'll be a hundred guys applying and trying to cut us out of the job."

So, gone are the days of the lonely lightkeeper. Nowadays he is young, specially trained through difficult study, and usually a happy family man in a job with a future, instead of being tucked away to muse over the past.

CASUAL WEAR REFLECTS COMFORT

Californians live out of doors and men's fashions are dictated somewhat by this style of living. Hiking shorts will be worn by many Southland men this summer to reflect the casual comfort. At the left is the boxer style swim trunks which you will see worn by men while mowing the lawn as well as at the beach. In the center the black and gray striped sports coat is worn with plaid flannel walking shorts, a yellow flannel vest and an ivory worsted shirt completes the outfit. If you are interested that is a soft gray flannel dress the young lady is wearing.

Giles Named to United Post Here

Kenneth W. Giles, veteran air line employe, has been appointed Long Beach ticket office manager for United Air Lines it was announced by Walter Wehner, city sales manager.

K. W. GILES

Giles completed his formal training at Denver University and enlisted in the U. S. Navy in January of 1944 where he served overseas as a radio operator.

He entered the airline business in 1947 and joined United Air Lines in April of 1948 at the company's operating headquarters in Denver. He was transferred to Los Angeles in 1950 where he served as ticket agent and later was transferred to the position of Pasadena ticket sales agent. Giles resides in Los Altos with his wife and two children.

Joins Prudential

Thomas J. Keller, 4581 Banner Dr., has been appointed agent in the Long Beach district agency of the Prudential Insurance Company, announced Manager Robert B. Turner. Keller was born and educated in Cleveland, Ohio. Prior to his association with Prudential he owned the "Corner Grocery" here. He served with the U. S. Navy in the Pacific theater.

Colorful Attire Is Displayed

Color has come to men's clothes in a big way. Just look in local stores and see for yourself.

This season you'll see American males more colorfully attired than they have been since they stopped wearing the multi-hued brocades and satins of Revolutionary days.

Too fancy for the plain, average man? Not a bit! For it's the plain, average, mass-market man who has taken most strongly to wearing a rainbow 'round his shoulder.

And it's only natural that he should, for color has been splashed in bold, broad strokes across our whole modern scene—from skyscrapers to cigaret holders, and from kitchen equipment and home furnishings to automobiles and eyeglass frames. Men's wear is merely in line with the sweeping trend.

COLOR RANGE BROADER

In warm-weather suits, colors this spring range from black and charcoal tones, through subtle variations of deep blues and browns, to light pastels. One manufacturer of summer suits in pure wool worsted offers 27 different colors in his spring-summer line. The Textile Color Card Association, color authority of the industry, recently announced an expanded range of 40 different colors for woolens and worsteds.

It is in sports, casual and leisure wear, however, that color really comes into its own this season. Again, the color selection runs from blacks and charcoal grays and browns, through innumerable shades of blue, yellow and red. In the sportswear division, however, there's even greater variety than in suits, with shades such as coral, cocoa, beige, lemon, copper, rust, sage, flamingo and gunpowder high on the list.

MANY FIBERS OFFERED

The various colors, off-tones and newly developed shades will be seen in solid and patterned silks, cottons and linens with great "surface interest"—as it's called in the trade—including nubbed, slubbed, open-weave and flecked effects. The wool fabrics and smooth-finish worsteds in sports and casual wear will also be available, of course, in wide selections of color, pattern and surface texture.

A noteworthy point in the surging flood of colors is that, while there's no limit to the brilliance and vivid coloration in which spring and summer apparel is being produced, there is good taste for the most part, expert styling and skilled coordination. There are restrained, eye-catching and pleasing color-contrasts and a sense of well-planned harmony—rather than hit-or-miss piling of color on color.

But take a look and see for yourself. Department stores and men's wear shops all over the city are showing greater variety in colors than the blue-bloods of Colonial days ever knew.

FOR JUNIOR

He may wear denims or jeans to school but on Sunday Junior shows that he can dress up. For spring and summer here is a three-button suit of fine worsted flannel. It is a conservative model with narrow coat lines, flapped ticket and lower pockets.

Sports Shirts Are Available for Wear at Any Occason

From the early, open-neck, wide-collar style that came in white cotton only, the sportshirt has developed into the most widely used member of the shirt family.

Today, you don't tell the salesman you "just want a sportshirt," any more than you tell a hardware salesman you just want a tool. You specify the exact kind and style of sportshirt you want to fill a particular need. And whatever your need or taste, you can be sure there's a sportshirt for it.

If you're in the market for an easy-going shirt that's right for relaxation at home, sports or knock-about wear, you'll probably prefer a pullover type.

One of the best is a brand-new idea called a cross-opening shirt. Instead of having a short, vertical placket-opening through which you stick your head, this shirt opens horizontally from shoulder to shoulder. You can wear the collar open, or there's a button under each collar point if you want to bring the short, widespread collar points together for wear with a tie.

OCCASION DICTATES DRESS

While pullovers of soft, lightweight worsted jersey and cotton weaves will be popular this spring, there's a time and place for everything. You would look funny in such a shirt worn with a silk shantung jacket and gabardine slacks while pouring lemonade at a country club party—just as you'd look funny trying to hammer a nail with a brace-and-bit.

For such dress-up occasions, the regular, button-front model is it. Lightweight, summer fabrics that will be popular include sheer Sea Island voiles, handkerchief-thin ginghams, boucle cotton, batiste, linens, lawns and gabardines.

Whatever the model or style, the over-all sportshirt color tone is on the darkish side. Black and gray, dark blue and some dark brown are favored background colors. African and India print motifs will be smart, as will vertical, contrasting stripes and the classic houndstooth, herringbone, plaid and check patterns in miniature.

In these days of emphasis on sports, travel, long week ends and suburban and country living, an investment in a complete sportshirt wardrobe will pay big dividends in comfort and satisfaction.

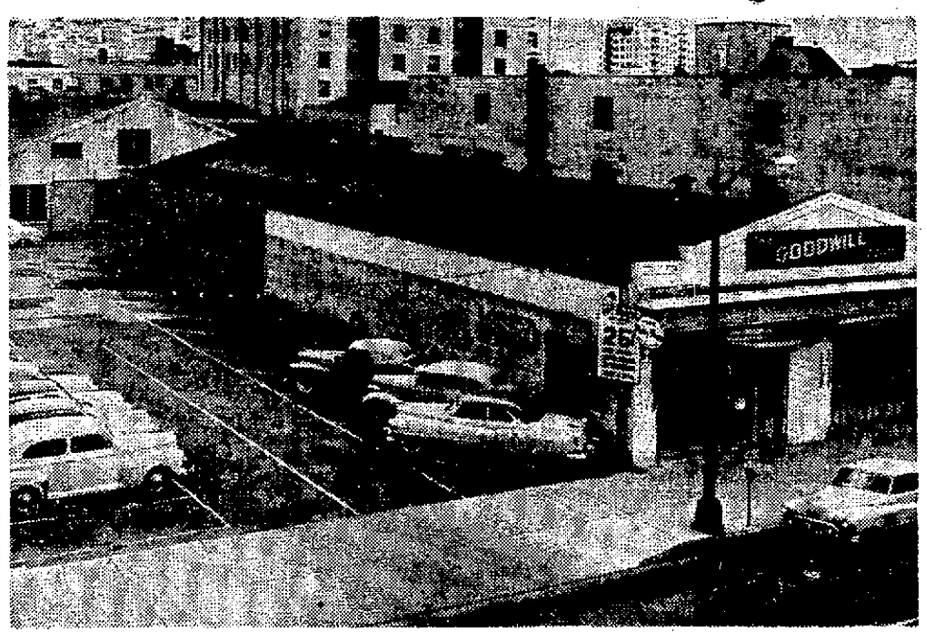

Shirt Collars Come in Wide Styling

Most stores are now showing so many different shirt collar styles that there's no difficulty in selecting the exact type that will do the most for you—a point, incidentally, on which any good salesman can give sound advice.

The medium-spread collar with medium-length points, the short-point, rounded collar, and tab and pin-under models are all style-right for Spring. Each may be found in several variations and adaptations. The button-down collar—also available in regular and adpated models—continues as a favorite. It's correct for sports wear, as well as with a suit.

More Downtown Parking

HELPING MEET demand for more parking in the downtown area, the Victoria Auto Parks, Inc., operator of the lot shown at the left, has taken a long-term lease on the building at 226 Locust Ave. and will raze the structure. This will nearly triple the parking facilities of the lot.—(Staff photo.)

Gloucesters Going to Troubled Suez

LONDON—(AP). The Gloucestershire Regiment's first battalion, the "Glorious Gloucesters" of the Imjin River battle in Korea, has been assigned to the troubled Suez Canal Zone. Will Raze Building to Provide Parking

In keeping with the demand for additional downtown off-street parking facilities, the Victoria Auto Parks, Inc., is to nearly triple its parking area.

The one-story brick building at 226 Locust Ave., adjacent to the lot, is to be razed at once to provide the extra space. The building recently was vacated by the Goodwill Industries.

The realty firm of Tolbert & Blaylock negotiated a long-term lease between Dr. and Mrs. Francis C. Hertzog, owners of the property, and the Victoria owners.

"When the razing is completed and the land black topped it will give Victoria one of the major parking lots in the downtown area," said Charles H. Blaylock. "Besides the wide frontage, the lot will have adjacent wide alleys on two sides."

The building was occupied by the Freeman McKenzie Ford agency from 1919 to 1937 when they moved to their present location.

The Victoria lot co-operates with the Long Beach Retailers Associated in operation of the Park and Shop plan.

Bunday-Fox Store Given Recognition

Bunday-Fox Shoe Co. at 4442 Atlantic Ave., was featured in "Boot and Shoe Recorder," principal shoe trade publication, in last week's edition.

The article, "Small Store Built Into Big Business Through Proper Planning," explained how Jack Bunday, owner, had capitalized on the two-front design of the building to achieve maximum effectiveness in a 20x100-foot space.

Kenneth Wing, AIA, who won a Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce award for his design of the building, also was mentioned in the Recorder.

Fleet Locker Club to Cost $155,000

Construction of a fleet locker club estimated to cost $155,000 is planned by Louis Ozsgvanyi, 23 South Pine Ave. It will be at 601-609 W. Ocean Blvd.

The structure will be a tilt-up concrete, steel stud and plaster structure, containing 22,500 square feet. It will have dormitories, locker rooms, wash rooms, shower rooms, bar, lounge, retail stores, kitchen, laundry and cafe equipment. Plans were prepared by Charles P. Morgan and Associates, Farmers and Merchants Bank Bldg., and associate architects Poper & Lockett, Farmers and Merchants Bank Bldg.

President

ELECTED head of the Long Beach Clearinghouse Assn. last week was Virgil B. Gillespie, vice president and general manager of the Security First National Bank. Murray Williams of the Bank of America was re-elected secretary and Robinson A. Reid of the California Bank was re-elected vice president. Members of the association include the Bank of America, Security-First National, Farmers and Merchants, California, Western and National City banks.

BLACK TO WHITE FOR COLLEGE

Broader range of colors gives new latitude for the college man. A lamb's wool suit in a fine diagonal stripe of black on gray is worn at left. The suit at right is crisp tropical worsted in ivory with a brown cross-hatch pattern.

Dave Thomas Runs Own Used Car Lot

Believing that Long Beach offers a good market for top quality used cars of late models, Dave Thomas has quit the new car field and gone into business with his own used car lot at 1735 American Ave. He severed interests with his father in the Glenn E. Thomas Co. to do this. Associated with him in the Dave Thomas Used Cars Co. is Harry Stafford, well know Southern California motor car sales director for such concerns as Chapman Motors of Huntington Park. Thelma Richardson, with 15 years experience with General Motors in Phoenix, is office manager.

DAVE THOMAS
From New to Used Car Field

Thomas says he is devoting much of his time in hand-picking the cars offered for sale "of any make or model as long as they are clean."

A native of Long Beach, Dave graduated from Long Beach schools and USC in the class of 1940. He was with Hancock Oil Co. two years and enlisted in the Air Force, serving as a staff sergeant until 1946. He then went in business with his father as a salesman in the Dodge and Plymouth agency. In '51 he was named sales manager and the following year general sales manager. He has been active in many civic affairs and Community Chest work here.

You're Cool, Man in Wearing These

Walking shorts, so popular this season, are simply slacks cut off slightly above the knee, and in their different types and styles they may be worn on any occasion when slacks are worn. Their mission is to restore to man his natural birthright to whatever breeze is afoot when the sun is high and hot. "When your feet are warm, you're warm," says the homey adage, and it's just as true that, "When your legs are cool, you're cool."

HOW TO Speed Your Home Repairs

ABOUT HALF THE WORK of making home repairs can be saved by having a tool carrier ready for action. All you need to save many steps is an open-topped box equipped with a handle and provided with compartments for tools, nails, screws and spare parts.

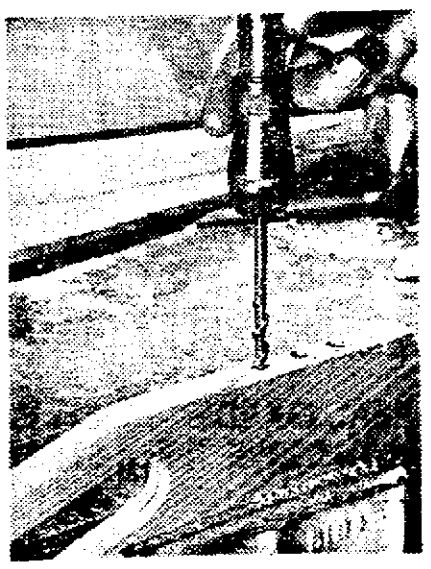

The photographs show contruction of such a toolbox. This one was built of pine boards salvaged from a scrap pile. Among its features are rubber corner pads to prevent damage to woodwork or furniture, a porcupine arrangement in the handle for carrying screwdrivers and other small tools, and compartments in which tools and supplies are stowed.

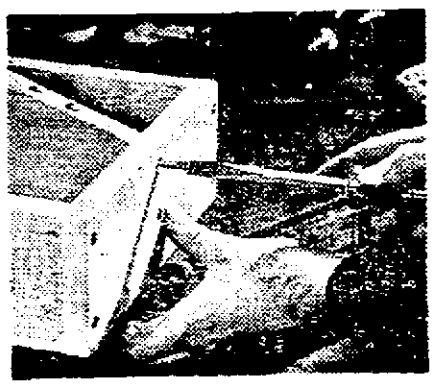

HERE IS THE TOOLBOX ready to go on a repair job. It holds such always-needed tools as hammer, saw, screwdriver, pliers, nail set, awl, file, steel tape and pencil, and such repair items as nails, screws, faucet washers, cotter pins and glue. For specific jobs, add the tools required. Note rubber corner bumpers to protect finishes, leather could be used instead. Cement bumpers in place or imbed heads of tacks.

Center board should be wide enough to provide space for a handle. Here, hand opening is being cut with a saw after two holes were bored at ends. Lumber ¾ inch thick is suitable for box and center partition; thinner stock could be used for the other partitions.

After handle piece is cut, round its various corners and edges with a rasp and sandpaper. Then, in the edge, bore several holes ranging from ¼ inch to 7/16 inch in diameter, 2 to 3 inches deep. These hold small tools; should be drilled at right angles to edge of board as shown in picture.

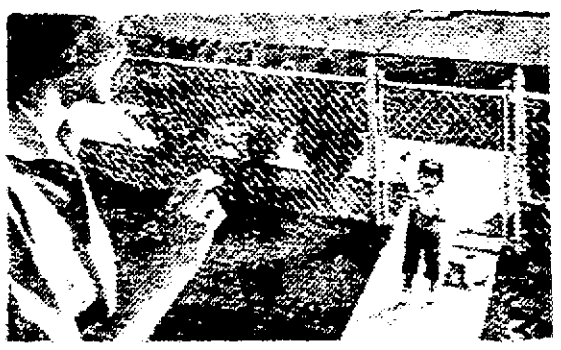

For maximum strength and service, assemble your toolbox with countersunk wood screws. Nailed joints will hold for a time, but eventually will open as box is knocked around.

Death Valley onyx specimens that look like landscapes and Montana moss agates that look like fish, trees and ferns make up a new exhibit in the Long Beach Natural History Museum, 643 E. Willow St. The exhibit is owned by H. F. Olsen, 618 W. M St., Wilmington, rock collector.

The onyx scenes include a volcano in action, mountains with approaching storm clouds, a mountain range with trees and a road, and a lake surrounded by mountains.

Reclaimed from the Yellowstone River, the moss agates have designs that look like a fantailed fish, trees, shrubs, ferns, and a desert scene. Onlookers think one looks like a cat with a disjointed head.

Fritz W. Schmidt, 708 W. Hill St., vice president of the Museum and Aquarium Association which sponsors the museum, also has installed a new exhibit of fossil wood.

The museum is free and open 2 to 5 p. m. Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays and from 7 to 9 p. m. Fridays.

Admiral Due to Address CC Meeting

"The Naval Reserve and Its Importance to Long Beach" will be discussed by R-Adm. Thomas Burrowes, USN, commander of Destroyer Flotilla 3, at the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Breakfast Forum Wednesday in Wilton Hotel, according to Paul Rioth, Forum chairman.

Admiral Burrowes first came to Long Beach in 1925 when he was assigned to duty aboard the battleship West Virginia following his graduation from the U. S. Naval Academy.

R-ADM. T. BURROWES
He Trained Reserves

During World War II he commanded the destroyer O'Brien which was torpedoed early in the war. The O'Brien reached port safely with no casualties but later sank on the way to a continental shipyard.

Burrowes in 1952 was appointed assistant chief of naval personnel for Naval Reserve with offices in Washington, D. C. As director of Naval Reserves, he was responsible for the training of reservists throughout the country.

Admiral Burrowes returned to Long Beach in December, 1953 to assume his present position as commander of Destroyer Flotilla 3.

The speaker holds the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal and various other area medals.

Scouts Risk Glen Canyon Run on River

Twenty-five Long Beach Explorer Scouts and their leaders will match their skills and courage with the perilous Glen Canyon run of the Colorado River in April.

The safari will take the expedition on a 16-mile ride down the river from Hite, Utah, to Lee's Ferry, Ariz., on six 12-man type rubber life rafts.

Leaving Long Beach April 9, the party plans to get back on April 17. Meanwhile, the Scouts and Scouters will have explored the Indian cliff dwellings, high plateaus, narrow canyons and the Rainbow Natural Bridge on their route down the tumbling river.

Each boy will cook his own food and prepare his camp at night. Four boys and an adult, each with personal gear, will travel in each boat.

Puerto Rican Topic Slated

Against the background of recent Puerto Rican Nationalist attacks and threats on American officials, students on the City College Lakewood campus will get a first-hand account of "The Problem of Puerto Rico" Wednesday.

Dwight L. Hanawalt, former resident on the island, will speak to the Forum, student discussion group, at 11 a. m. in Room 502.

Hanawalt, now director of athletics at La Verne College, spent four years in the interior of Puerto Rico with a special welfare medical unit sponsored by the Insular Department of Health, the Pureto Rican Reconstruction Administration and the Brethren Service Committee.

Elizabeth Baker, student moderator, will preside.

Youth Meeting Opens Thursday

Groups interested in youth will review what is offered in the way of character-building activities and what needs to be done in the Mayor and City Council's Youth Welfare Conference Thursday and Friday in First Methodist Church. The conference, open to the public, will be the first of its kind in Long Beach since 1947.

Called by Juvenile Supt. Joseph M. Kennick, the conference will be sponsored by the city, school board, county probation department, PTA and church groups.

Sectional meetings will be "Youth on Wheels," "Social Activities" and "Moral and Social Values of Long Beach Youth."

REANEAU E. MON

REANEAU E. MON, owner of the Talk o' the Town restaurant at 3980 E. Ocean Blvd., is a wise, friendly gentleman who learned long ago that people love to eat chicken.

So, by golly, he serves 'em chicken. And it's prepared in not merely two or three different ways—but in a dozen different ways. All, needless to say, are unique and delicious.

Three of Mon's chicken specialties are served in grandeur on silver platters. These are his Chicken Au Sec, which is sauteed in sherry and prepared with fresh mushrooms in a special sauce; his roast whole young capon, served with a southern cornbread dressing and giblet gravy, and Mon's scrumptious Chicken Cacciatore, which is also sauteed in sherry and served with fresh mushrooms, tomatoes and peach compote.

OTHER CHICKEN preparations which leave the guests' palates tingling with pleasure are Mon's chicken in the pot, served in a covered casserole with egg noodles and Parisienne vegetables; his barbecued chicken from the Ozarks; charcoal broiled chicken with a spiced crabapple and his chicken liver specialty served with a rasher of bacon on toast.

But that's not all. Mon's originality also includes a spectacular whole baked boneless squab chicken stuffed with expensive wild rice; chicken curry West Indies style with steamed rice, Major Grey's chutney and coconut, and also a chicken pot pie served with a rich gravy and a flaky crust en casserole. In addition, there's Mon's marvelous chicken Eugenia which includes breast of chicken, baked ham and fresh mushrooms served under glass.

The prices are all reasonable and, since Mon's is a real dining house, all entrees are served with complete dinners. Included are the Talk o' the Town's famed onion soup, giant chilled salad, baked potato with cheese sauce, hot cheesebread and a sundae for dessert.

Kimonos to Replace Sarongs in Honolulu

NATIVE SARONGS will be replaced by kimonos this spring when Honolulu acquires a Nipponese flavor for its second annual Cherry Blossom Festival sponsored by the Japanese Chamber of Commerce.

Already ranked alongside such popular yearly Hawaiian programs as Aloha Week and the Chinese Narcissus Festival, this season's Cherry Blossom Festival will be staged April 19 through May 1. Mainland visitors from this city traveling to the Islands for the unique pageant have their choice of 14 weekly United Air Lines' flights departing from both San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Although cherry trees won't grow in the islands, Honolulu vacationists will see plenty of blossoms or reasonable facsimiles adorning Oahu thoroughfares. Entertainment will ininclude religious dances, floral shows and a coronation ball, one of the big social events of the year. Leading restaurants will feature special Oriental dishes.

A "Sport Field Day" at Ala Moana Park will highlight competition and demonstrations of Sumo (wrestling), Judo (self-defense), Kendo (fencing), Kyudo (archery) and other traditional Japanese sports and feats of strength and agility. Cultural programs contrasting ancient modes of dress with present day wear are also slated. A gigantic fireworks display will close the 13-day festival.

United serves Honolulu with eight DC-6 air coach and six de luxe Mainliner Stratocruiser flights weekly. The airline also offers eight inclusive Hawaii vacation tours averaging from seven to 23 days.

'Motoring to Mexico' Ready

THE EXTRAORDINARY expansion of the Mexican Highway System, including the Pacific Highway from Nogales to Mexico City soon to be completely paved, is featured in the 14th edition of the booklet, "Motoring to Mexico," recently published by the Travel Division of the Pan American Union. The booklet may be obtained by sending 25 cents to the Pan American Union, Travel Division, Washington, D. C.

The Pacific Highway will be especially convenient for motorists from California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and the middle west of the United States, and will open up new vistas for the seasoned travelers who have been to Mexico by other routes. Although somewhat longer than the routes via Laredo or Ciudad Juarez, the trip from Nogales to Mexico City along the Pacific Coast is one of the most scenic.

The northern section of the highway is much used by U. S. tourists who drive to Guaymas for fishing vacations or for general relaxation at the desert resorts on a beautiful land-locked bay in the Gulf of California.

In addition to logs on Mexico's principal highway routes giving detailed information on altitude, population, historic landmarks, some local fiestas, and available facilities such as gasoline stations, repair shops, telephone, telegraph, restaurants and hotels, the booklet also contains sections on what clothing to take with you, what documents you will need, customs and safety regulations, and many other subjects.

Conferees Struggle With State's Budget

SACRAMENTO—(AP). Six legislators pored over dollar signs and fine print in the nearly deserted Capitol Saturday, trying to resolve a 17½-million-dollar Senate-Assembly deadlock over California's 1954-55 budget.

They said they'll try to come up with a compromise report Monday morning — scarcely 36 hours before the adjournment deadline — on 81 differences between the $1,428,910,809 Senate budget and $1,446,495,024 Assembly spending program.

Both are above Gov. Knight's $1,423,345,684 request.

Little or none of the major difference between the houses — 22 state college buildings proposed by the Assembly at a cost of 12 million dollars — was expected to get the conferees' OK.

The building program's sponsor, Assemblyman Wallace D. Henderson (D-Fresno), said he would resist cuts. But it was expected the most senators would go for was perhaps $1,000,000 for planning on structures which Henderson argues are needed to check the "burst rate" at California's 10 colleges.

Henderson's position was weakened by the fact his addition to $6 million worth of college building already in the budget passed the Assembly by a single vote.

Assemblyman Thomas W. Caldecott (R-Berkeley), spokesman for the two-house committee, said things went smoothly as the three senators and three assemblymen, flanked by administration budget experts and legislative auditors, went down the list of differences.

If their report is rejected by either house, the dispute goes before a second conference committee.

The Legislature's 30-day budget session must end at midnight Tuesday. The concurrent special session can run longer and there were indications it will, with a flock of liquor-control bills running into a deadlock similar to that on the budget.

HOW YOUR DENTURES FIT ONE YEAR AFTER NEW CONCERNS ME TOO!

My denture renewal service

When you buy new dentures, you expect them to LAST A LONG TIME, and they usually do. But, even though your dentures don't change, YOUR GUMS DO. So look ahead—BE THRIFTY—and prepare for this, so it won't cost you a lot of needlessly spent money. With every new denture you buy from me comes the right to buy another at less than ONE THIRD THE PRICE of my most popular denture. This second denture is as new as the first in every respect except the teeth. Your old teeth are RESET into a new fitting denture. This way, when gums shrink and mouth tissues change, it costs you only a FRACTION OF THE COST of my most popular denture to get a new fit.

WHAT THIS MEANS IN SAVINGS

My prices for new dentures are SO LOW that this cost, plus cost of reset dentures, may be LOWER than you'd expect to pay for new dentures alone. SAVE A LOT of money on my denture renewal service.

TRANSLUCENT DENTURES

I recommend TRANSLUCENT denture material and TRANSLUCENT teeth, because they are recognized as the FINEST available for making dentures. See sample dentures before you decide.

SAVE ON PARTIAL PLATES

New CHROME DEPARTMENT in my laboratory enables me to produce partials for LESS MONEY. Now my prices for partials are LOWER than every with the best work I have ever turned out.

New dentures can be STRONGER than ever before, and just as light, or perhaps EVEN LIGHTER. Gold plated stainless steel SCREEN is molded into denture roof. Glossy transparent plastic covers it. NO PART OF METAL IS EXPOSED to your mouth. Strength of screen permits VERY THIN dentures. Just recently available to dental profession.

PLAN FOR PENSIONERS

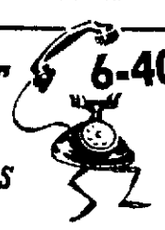

A special easy purchase plan is ready for you under California Medical Assistance Act. Let us help you.

Day Camp Space Shortage Told by Welfare Council

Demand for summer day camp sites by Long Beach children has grown to such proportions that many boys and girls will be disappointed this summer because of the lack of recreational space for camps, it was revealed Saturday in a special study made by a subcommittee of the Community Welfare Council.

"Day camping is on the increase in the United States because more youngsters can participate in it than can afford to go to mountain camps," Bernard Wall, subcommittee chairman, explained.

As a result, all youth organizations are eager to expand their summer programs, he added.

The Welfare Council recently petitioned the City Council to place on the ballot a measure concerning purchase of land north of the Marina as well as the proposed Long Beach Park area.

The study made by the committee recommends that 40 acres be improved for day camping to be shared by 11 Long Beach youth groups and the public.

Youth leaders pointed out that youngsters prefer rugged terrain suitable for nature lore study and that costs of development consequently are comparatively small.

The committee regards the northern portion of the Marina area as well-suited for day camping purposes since the traditional outdoor camping activities could be combined with aquatic training.

Results of the study made by Wall, C. L. Appling, August Pacheco, Mrs. R. A. Michie and Mrs. F. G. Johnson will be forwarded to members of the city Planning and Parks Commissions.

Last year 6725 boys and girls from eight of the groups had a summer day program locally. According to figures given the committee, more than double this number would attend if space were made available.

SWEDISH MASSEUR AND MAGNETIC HEALING

This boy was considered incurable. He came to me right from hospital and had eczema over his entire body. His wrists, hands and ankles were swollen to unbelievable proportions from arthritis and he could not walk. With Mr. Eriksson's healing hands all Eczema and Arthritis disappeared as shown in above photo.

I have in the past published a number of pictures of patients before and after healings, in cases such as: the blind, lame, arthritis, eczema, and many other kinds of ailments.

CAMERA ANGLE

Go Fly a Kite, but... Take Camera Along

Kite-flying pictures are perennial pictures—but such good material that new ones can be taken every year.

By the Shutterbug

MARCH has long been known as a month of strong breezes. They may be warm, or very chilly. March isn't exactly the most dependable of months, weatherwise. But, there is always the wind, and it can offer us some very interesting picture-taking opportunities.

One sure-fire subject for a good snapshot is a boy and a kite. It's a perennial favorite.

In fact, there's one such picture that's almost a classic — one of tried and proven composition.

We are referring to the picture which includes one or more young kite flyers, posed on a knoll. The kite is seen in the distance with the sky for a background. The youngsters' backs are to the camera. This is a picture that includes all of the elements of a first-class snapshot. Obviously, that's the reason why such pictures so often crop up in the prize-winning ranks.

THIS YEAR, however, we've got an idea that we think will make your enjoyment of such a picture even greater. Why not make it the climax of a series of story-telling pictures? One picture of your favorite youngster is fine, but a series of them is always better.

If the weather is on the cool side, it may well be that your picture story will have its beginning indoors, probably in the basement. Wherever the kite construction takes place, assembly of materials and tools would make the first picture. From there on, each major step should be recorded. If this is a joint father-son project, mother should take over the camera to snap them as they are both absorbed in their task.

Progress on the kite will write the script for your shooting and will lead nicely into the popular end-result picture we described earlier. Consider having the kite-flying shot enlarged and have the other pictures build up to the big one to form a fine page for the family album.

CLAUDE FREEMAN, program chairman of the Long Beach Camera Guild, announces that the travelogue section of the Guild will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the social room of the Bank of Belmont Shore, 5129 E. Second St.

The program will be varied. A NEW KIND OF DRY CLEANING

Petri's Cleaners, 1250 Orange Ave., has been awarded the exclusive franchise as Lusterway dry dry cleaner for this city. Otto Petri, president, points out that Lusterway is a completely new, laboratory-controlled process of dry dry cleaning which has been developed after years of research and testing. The Lusterway process uses new, amazingly effective cleaning and revitalizing agents which loosen and remove all the dirt from the clothing, add new softness and luster to the fabrics, and revive the full brightness and beauty of colors. Call Petri's. Try it once and you'll be happily satisfied. No boost in prices. Men's suits and ladies' plain dresses, $1.50. Charge accounts upon request.

HIGHEST TRADES ALWAYS

ALL OUR CUSTOMERS ARE PREFERRED CUSTOMERS!

We have always tried to give all our customers the HIGHEST TRADE-IN, the MAXIMUM DOLLAR-VALUE in MERCHANDISE and SERVICE in keeping with sound business operation.

We are buying at the very best possible advantage in order to offer our customers the very best possible values.

We are not a two-price house, because WE DO NOT BELIEVE THAT ONE GROUP OF CUSTOMERS IS BETTER THAN ANOTHER GROUP.

People who stop and think, know that HOCUS-POCUS BAIT IS USUALLY ONLY THAT.

Many of our customers have a dozen so-called "DISCOUNT CARDS" marked "PREFERRED CUSTOMER" that were sent to them NOT BY NAME, BUT TO "THE OCCUPANT" AT THEIR ADDRESS! How ridiculous can the so-called "preferred-discount stores" get?

WE STILL BELIEVE THAT HONEST GOODS CAN BE SOLD TO HONEST PEOPLE BY HONEST METHODS

cealed behind the paneling — a specious linen closet and guest closet — side by side. Touch latches were utilized for these closets.

Immediately beyond the entry one steps into a clever little area set apart from the dining-living room area beyond by an independent planter island. This serves the purpose of a sort of free-standing partition, four feet high. Against the planter, beautifully constructed of mahogany, stands a Gov. Winthrop desk.

The dining area is papered in a beautiful floral motif carried out in tones of soft coral, coppers and blue-greens.

THE DINING SET, a drop-leaf Duncan Phyfe table and upholstered chairs, folds compactly and stands by this window. Draperies throughout the dining-living area are of soft yellow-green satin damask while the glass curtains are pleated rose-beige fibreglas.

The walls and the carpeting of this extensive duo-purpose room are of warm coca-pink. Duplicating them are the fibreglas curtains. The drapery tone is repeated in the curved oversized sofa of yellow-green damask. Thus the two-toned color scheme is integrated.

Because the living-dining area is one, divided only by the dropped ceiling suggestive of an arch, the feeling is one of luxurious spaciousness. Before, however, the rooms were completely separate, both were cramped, and both were unhappy possessors of busy little cupboards, closets and wall beds.

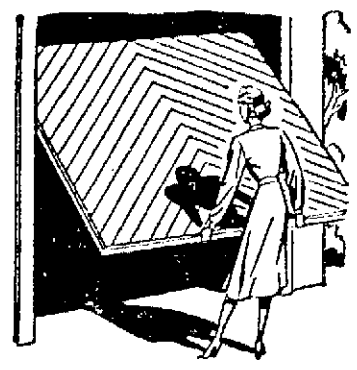

Large glass windows on two walls of the living room provide a sweeping view from Palos Verdes all the way around to Huntington Beach. Glare has been lessened with the use of polaroid glass.

Adding to the beauty of this room are the many appointments Mr. and Mrs. O'Donnell have collected on their extensive travels. Intricately-crafted pieces of porcelain, cut glass and antique bric-a-brac lend themselves gracefully to the decor.

THE KITCHEN, tiny and highly efficient, takes no back seat to larger ones for workability and good looks. And this room, perhaps more than any other, represents the greatest (and most difficult - to - manage) changeover.

The master bedroom has a view window facing the ocean. This is a luxurious room — spacious and elegantly furnished in French provincial fruitwoods.

TV Tele-Vues

By TERRY VERNON

For an hour and one-half tonight the immortal music of two of the most prolific and best known musical comedy writers will be the fare for viewers of four networks.

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein have been a team for 11 years and General Foods Corp. has existed for 25 years. They pool their anniversaries tonight at 8 to stage a truly terrific show.

Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza will be seen in their original roles of "South Pacific"; Gordon MacRae and Florence Henderson bring us the leads of "Oklahoma"; Tony Martin and Rosemary Clooney sing the leads in "Me and Juliet"; Yul Brynner will be seen in his star-making role of the King of Siam in "The King and I" with Patricia Morison as Anna; John Raitt will join Jan Clayton for "Carrousel," and a scene from "Allegro" will be presented.

In addition to the above stars you'll also see and hear from Jack Benny, Ed Sullivan, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Groucho Marx and possibly Johnny Ray.

There will be no "Toast of the Town," "Comedy Hour," "Walter Winchell" or "Fred Waring" and only a half-hour of the "Goodyear TV Playhouse" tonight because this extravaganza will be seen at 8 p. m. on KNXT (2), KNBH (4), KABC (7) and KHJ (9). All we have to add is do not miss it!

Sings on Big Show

ELDER WISE MAN—Occasionally NBC-TV stages one of its "Elder Wise Men" programs featuring an interview with a great American. Up to today this spasmodic series has stuck close to cultural leaders but today it steps into the world of business to present Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board of directors of General Motors Corp. KNBH (4) at 4 p. m. for a view of the outlook of the nation's business . . . "American Inventory" on KNBH (4) at 11 a. m. will be in RCA-color so we get it live today as it explores America's botannical kingdom.

FINAL OMNIBUS — As "Omnibus" rolls off the air today it brings a 55-minute review of highlights of the past 26 shows and a 35-minute comedy-drama called "The Apollo of Bellac" with Gaby Rodgers, Francis Compton, Claude Dauphin and Una O'Connor. Time is 2 p. m. on KNXT (2).

DRAMA — The half-hour "Goodyear Playhouse" on KNBH (4) at 9:30 p. m. will feature Broadway star Gwenn Verdon in "Native Dancer" (this is not the race horse of the same name). Gwenn is seen as a ballerina who needs a job, so becomes a soda clerk and is exposed to a huge buildup by her press-agent but has the hoax discovered and winds up broke for a time . . . Loretta Young portrays a self-sacrificing mother who faces the possible estrangement of her son because of bribery by his irresponsible father on KNBH (4) at 10 p. m. . . . Warner Anderson stars as Thomas Jefferson in the historical "Hall of Fame" over KNBH (4) at 5 p. m. . . . Portland, Ore., police are saluted on "The Man Behind the Badge" as a policewoman poses as a domestic helper in order to catch a psychopathic slayer and nearly is killed herself on the KNXT (2) show at 9:30 p. m. . . . A cab driver, with an intoxicated passenger, finds himself embroiled in an international plot on "The Web," KNXT (2) at 10 p. m. . . . "Jimmy Dayton's Treasure" is the story for Death Valley Days on KTTV (1) at 9 p. m. with a touch of romance for spice . . .

FINAL SHOWS — Several shows bow off KTTV (11) as the staton drops the Dumont network and will be seen today for the last time on (11). "Pantomime Quiz" has Janis Carter and John Archer as guests at 8:30 p. m.; Horace Heidt will play "Twenty Questions" at 6 p. m. and Marni Nixon, coloratura soprano, seeks the championship crown on "Chance of a Lifetime" at 6:30 p. m. Rocky King (9:30 p. m.) and the Plainclothesman (10 p. m.) also leave KTTV after tonight. "Platterpanel," on KNXT (2) at 10:30 p. m., does its final show of the season with Johnny Carson as host to Victor Moore, Marilyn Erskine, Lina Romay and Fifi D'Orsay.

GUESTING—Dorothy Kilgallen is through having the stork guest with her so returns to "What's My Line?" on KNXT (2) at 7:30 p. m. after one week away . . . Drew Pearson, on "770 on TV" at 12 noon over KABC (7), will interview a survivor of the Malmedy massacre where the Germans cut down captured American soldiers with machine guns, and this in connection with the Sen. McCarthy-U. S. Army feud. Pearson says he'll reveal some sensational new evidence regarding McCarthy and the Army . . . Smith and Dale, celebrating their 54th year as a team in showbiz, join comic Fay DeWitt and the singing daughter of Darryl, Susan Zanuck, on the "George Jessel Show" at 6:30 p. m. on KABC (7) . . . President Eisenhower's special assistant, C. D. Jackson, is the "Man of the Week" on KNXT (2) at 12:30 p. m. . . . Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, will "meet the Press" on Todd Duncan and the chorus from "Go Down, Death" heard on "Frontiers of Faith," KNBH (4) at 10:30 a. m.

TOPICS OF DAY—"Have College Students Lost Freedom of Thought?" is the "American Forum" topic for KNBH (4) at 11 p. m. as the show becomes a quick kinescope so topics are new. Used to be on a three-week delay basis so topics were oftentimes stale as yesterday's news.

RADIO DIAL-LITES—Frank Sinatra again guests on the Bing Crosby show over KNX at 9 p. m. . . . Jack Benny spades his garden and dreams of beanstalks on KNX at 4 and 9:30 p. m. . . . Rosemary Clooney joins the "Bergen-McCarthy" show at 5 p. m. on KNX . . . Joan Fontaine stars in "Madame Bovary" on the Star Playhouse, KFI at 6 p. m. . . . Dr. Jan and Beta Popper on KFOX at 8 p. m. with folk music from European nations . . . Hollywood Stars vs. San Diego on KFWB at 2 p. m.

THINK OF IT! OVER 500 CAR PARKING LOT SPACES WITHIN 2 BLOCKS OF PENNEYS

PENNEY'S "THE FAMILY STORE" PINE at SIXTH DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH

Many myths about Indians were exploded in research for film, "Apache." For instance, Burt Lancaster is cast as blue-eyed Indian. Jean Peters plays feminine lead.

He Plays It Straight

BLUE-EYED INDIANS, generally thought of in the same league as purple cows, should more rightfuly be catalogued with blond Italians, swarthy Swedes and other unusual, but not unheard of pigment groups. Authority for this is Burt Lancaster, who may shortly be seen, blue eyes a-glint in Technicolor, as an Indian warrior in the production "Apache." In fact, adds Lancaster, there are many misconceptions about our American Indians including the misguided beliefs that they never have to shave, that they are "red-skins," that they have straight black hair, and that they are invariably of hawk-like visage and brown of eye.

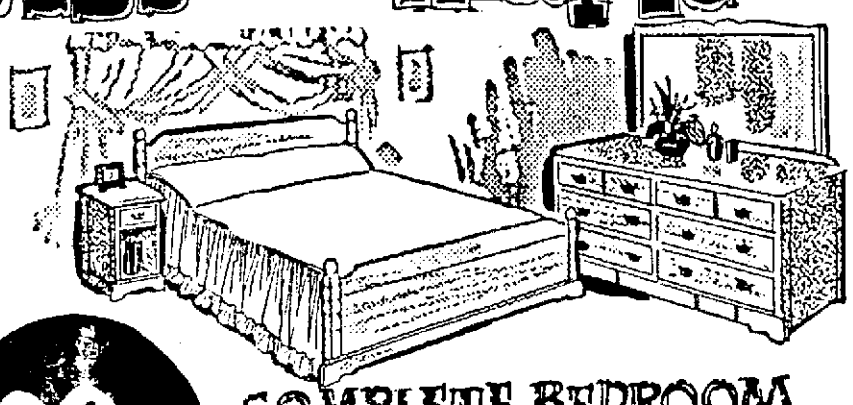

Many of these false ideas about people of our own country, whom we take for granted were cleared up by the research staff of the Hecht-Lancaster Organization in the course of preparing material for "Apache," first in a group of films made by the new producing organization of Harold Hecht and Burt Lancaster in their multi-million dollar releasing arrangement with United Artists.

While preparing "Apache," a true story about the renegade warrior, Massai, who continued his own private war with the United States after Geronimo surrendered, it was discovered Massai was reportedly a blue-eyed Apache. Burt Lancaster plays the part of Massai, blue eyes and all. In wide-screen Technicolor, the swarthy features and black hair of the Apache brave are in startling contrast to Lancaster's blue eyes. The effect is dramatic to say the least. Not only that, but it is true to historical legend. Contact lenses for Lancaster were thought to be essential until research disclosed that such disguise would, in this particular case, be unnecessary and also quite probably historically inaccurate. Thus, not only "redskins bite the dust" as motion pictures are made, but also misconceptions and legends fall by the wayside as well.

Curtains, shawls and other items result from useful hobby of netting which occupies Mrs. Mary Alice Ray.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

She Ties Holes Together

By Vera Williams

WHEN MARY ALICE RAY was a little girl in Lancashire, England, her mother showed her how to net. That's right, net, not knit. The skill with which, for instance, fish nets are made — a lot of holes tied together.

Through the years she made netting only once in a while. Then recently, in the salty coastal air, her curtains went to pieces. And new, good curtains are expensive.

Mrs. Ray, who resides at 112 Magnolia Ave., set to work with the netting needle she brought from England many years ago, and some ecru thread. Already she has finished four handsome curtain panels.

With netting needles, she also has made a variety of stoles, shawls, jabots and handkerchief trimmings. She makes her own patterns.

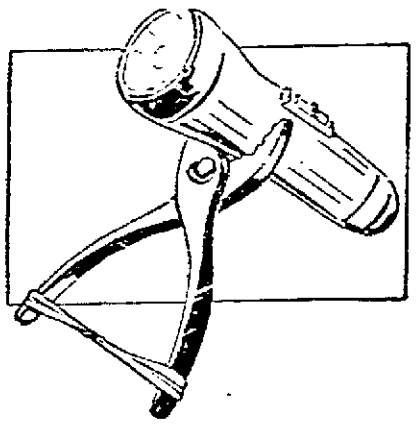

A netting needle looks something like a knitting needle, with a big eye at each end and it is threaded as a tatting shuttle is threaded. "Like everything else," Mrs. Ray says, philosophically, "every piece of netting starts with one stitch."

Mrs. Ray, early in the century, was one of the Eckersley Sisters, celebrated mandolin, banjo and guitar players in England.

A NEW KIND OF DRY CLEANING
Petri's Cleaners, 1250 Orange Ave., has been awarded the exclusive franchise as Lusterway dry dry cleaner for this city. Otto Petri, president, points out that Lusterway is a completely new, laboratory-controlled process of dry dry cleaning which has been developed after years of research and testing. The Lusterway process uses new, amazingly effective cleaning and revitalizing agents which loosen and remove all the dirt from the clothing, add new softness and luster to the fabrics, and revive the full brightness and beauty of colors. Call Petri's. Try it once and you'll be happily satisfied. No boost in prices. Men's suits and ladies' plain dresses, $1.50. Charge accounts upon request.

Duke Ellington Bringing His Band Here April 12

Duke Ellington and his world famous 18-piece orchestra will appear in concert at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium the night of April 12, bringing with them the famed Orioles.

The affair is being arranged as a Southland celebration to commemorate Ellington's 27th anniversary in big time musical and show business.

DUKE ELLINGTON
Bringing Big Band Here

Ellington, considered one of America's foremost composers of modern music, has reigned since 1927 as one of the top favorites of young and old. Among his hit tunes have been "Solitude," "Sophisticated Lady," "Mood Indigo," "Don't You Know I Care," and "I'm Beginning to See the Light," the latter two more recent than the others.

Born in Washington, D. C., Duke, whose real name is Edward Kennedy Ellington, picked up piano playing by ear when a small tot and afterwards learned to read music. He played with small bands around his home city and then formed his own five-piece band and took it to New York. Finally reaching the Kentucky Club, the band remained there five years and established him on a national basis. Then he went to the old Cotton Club in Harlem and moved downtown when it went to Broadway. He did a vaudeville stint with Maurice Chevalier and Flo Ziegfeld engaged him for "Show Girl."

Plenty of Response

HAWTHORNE ASKED his television audience recently to send him a copy of Kan See's column about him which appeared two weeks ago today in the Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram. But he mistakenly said the column which "appeared Monday." The next day he was snowed under with 277 letters and telegrams, as shown here, saying he had made a "blooper" on the date. First person to inform the KTLA star of a "blooper" wins a prize. "That wasn't all," said the comic, "within three days I had 1733 clippings of the column. Maybe I'd better move to Long Beach for they must love me there."

No Boyfriend, Vows Audrey

NEW YORK—(UP) Elfin Audrey Hepburn says her newly-won oscar is the only man in her life.

"No boy friends," she said firmly. The slim, doe-eyed academy award winner declared that her life at present is "completely filled" with show business.

"Marriage is like signing a long-term contract," she added thoughtfully. "I'm still learning about myself. You can't give yourself to anyone unless you know yourself."

"I still have the same goal of becoming a great actress," she said.

Most critics felt that Miss Hepburn already was firmly established as just that even before she received her academy award last Thursday night for her starring role in "Roman Holiday."

Now 24, Miss Hepburn has a crisp, nervous manner, a British accent, and, she claims, almost no bosom. It was her boyish figure and natural acting ability that prompted Hollyood Director Billy Wilder's prophecy that "singlehanded this girl may make bosoms a thing of the past."

IT'S PERFECTLY SIMPLE

Anybody can run a power lathe, Mary Ellen Parziale says, getting ready for the Do-It-Yourself Show opening April 30 in Municipal Auditorium. Hundreds of power tools will be exhibited and in the accompanying Miss Welcome to Long Beach contest there'll be scores of pretties like Mary Ellen.

Opens Here

Helen Forrest, who has sung with most of the top bands in the nation, a recording star and often in pictures, opens Monday night at Joe Graydon's Casa Vegas Supper Club here. Helen was singing radio commercials when Mark Warnow first signed her to feature with his band. She since has starred with Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw, Ozzie Nelson and Harry James.

Cliffie Stone's Jamboree Gang Here Friday Night

Cliffie Stone and his entire Hometown Jamboree Gang will take over the Civic Auditorium Friday night, for the Annual Rehabilitation Show and Dance given by the Long Beach Chapter 250 of The Military Order of the Purple Heart.

Clifford Parmenter, Purple Heart chairman and former National Commander of the combat wounded veteran order said there has been a good response for reserved tickets. The local chapter whose rehabilitation program covers the Harbor Area, will benefit from the receipts.

Slated to appear with 'Stone are Tennessee Ernie, famed Western recording and television star, along with Molly Bee, the young sensation of records, radio and television, Joan O'Brien, Bucky Tibbs, Harry Rodcay, Gene O'Quin, Speedy West. The entire Jamboree Orchestra will play the dance music to follow the show. As is its usual custom the Military Order of the Purple Heart will admit all hospitalized veterans free.

Golden Shower of Flowers

By Beverly Ronson

FROM MARCH to May the graceful pendant branches of forsythia are strung from tip to toe with showy golden yellow bells. It is a sight to lift the heart and lend glorious beauty to the garden.

New Englanders and southerners feel a garden is bare unless forsythia announces the arrival of spring with her handsome "golden shower."

More gardeners in California should use this highly ornamental and hardy shrub.

The bush, however, is among the deciduous flowering shrubs that go dormant around December, remaining bare of leaves for several months. So many Southland gardeners prefer to grow evergreen shrubs, although interplanting deciduous bushes amid evergreens lend variety to the landscape.

For an attractive grouping, use forsythia with white spirea, or bridal wreath, which is another deciduous bush, a free bloomer and with the same graceful mounding habit of growth. Add to the group evergreen, shiny-leafed pittosporum tobira with fragrant cream-white blooms. For a low-growing border for the foreground use blue violas and lemon yellow Alyssum saxatile.

Deciduous bushes are very hardy specimens, renew their vigor during their winter's rest period, then come up more beautiful and stronger than ever each spring.

CUT SPRAYS of forsythia, if clipped when in bud and placed in water, will open nicely for indoor bouquets, adding a graceful Oriental mood to an arrangement.

Forsythia does well in almost any kind of soil, though a moderately rich loam is preferable. Set the plant or plants in full sun, except in exceedingly hot places. Then filtered shade, from midday on, is better.

The plant is not at all susceptible to insects or fungi.

Forsythia suspensa, a popular and graceful variety, grows to eight feet, its slender branches bending to the ground, many of the branches taking root. Cuttings made from these rooted branches will produce hardy new plants the following year.

THE BUSH should be pruned each year after it is 3 years old, in order to prevent its growing too rank.

Branches that have reached two seasons of growth should be cut down almost to the base, leaving about an eight-inch stub on which new shoots will develop the following spring. Do not attempt to tie the plant to a stake, since it has a natural spreading habit of growth. Any effort to force it away from this habit will destroy the attractiveness of the plant.

Do the pruning as soon as the plant goes dormant, usually in December.

When springtime comes, gardeners who have planted the Forsythia can rejoice in a golden shower of flowers.

Pasadena Show

One of the most spectacular entries in the Pasadena Spring Flower and Garden Show April 3-11 in the Fannie E. Morrison Horticultural Center, Brookside Park, will be sponsored by the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, Honolulu.

Stephen W. Royce, director of the Royal Hawaiian, has informed the sponsoring Pasadena Flower Show Association and show manager, G. Wyman Hope, that the island exhibit will help carry out the Polynesian atmosphere to be featured at the forthcoming event. Floral leis and native plants to be flown here from the islands also will be part of the display.

In conjunction with the exhibit, demonstrations will be given on the weaving of cocoanut hats and baskets and the fashioning of floral leis.

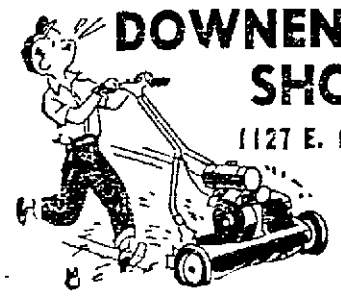

Housed in the main building of the garden, the hotel entry will be one of scores of Polynesian and Pacific exhibits stressing the Hawaiian motif currently so popular in Southern California gardens.

Flower of the Islands

By Murtha Hurley

LONG ASSOCIATED with the romance of verdant Pacific islands, where it is one of the principal ornaments of the pretty belles, the hibiscus provokes more admiring comment than almost any flower that shines in Long Beach gardens. Huge, vividly-colored flowers adorn these showy shrubs that boast of large glossy leaves and sturdy habits of growth.

The flowers, often six inches across, both single and double, now include just about every color but blue, from delicate blush pink, brilliant crimson and deep reds, to the exciting golden and orange shaded double varieties.

The plants bloom continuously from mid-spring through fall and often into winter months if the weather is warm.

Hibiscus prefer a sunny location, especially if planted near the coast where they are at their best. However, the plants also do well in the foothills and interior valleys, if night temperatures do not go too low.

The plants like a rich, well drained, deeply dug, somewhat heavy soil. Dig in four parts of good garden loam, two parts of compost, leaf mold or peat moss and one part of sand. Dig the area 18 inches deep if possible. For a large specimen plant dig a hole two feet deep and two feet wide.

It is best to plant hibiscus in the spring so they can become

PET PARADE

He's a Feathered Riot

A party is fine with Congo, painted Amazon parrot, but when things get dull he can dream up a one-bird riot.

By Eleanor Avery Price

CONGO, a beautiful painted Amazon parrot belonging to Mrs. June Simpson, 4344 Clark Ave., not only enjoys the confusion and merrymaking of a party, but he is a riot by himself. When things get too dull, he bursts into enthusiastic jabbering or stirs up the atmosphere with his whistling. He especially enjoys the musical melody of "How Much Is the Doggie in the Window." He is adept at dancing, too, and sways and steps about on his perch, fluffing his green feathers and nodding his red, yellow, and green head.

Congo likes dogs, the bigger the better, which is a good thing, for Mr. and Mrs. Simpson raise Great Danes. The parrot also likes the family cat and is particularly fond of cartoons on TV.

As a rule, most parrots like fruits and vegetables in the diet, but Congo draws the line on such nourishment and will accept only sunflowers seeds and various nuts.

Parrots really are fun, especially for those who need a companion. Parrots, or Psittaciformes, live up to 25 even 35 years, and some have been known to live up to 90 years.

As we know them, there are three cage-parrot families lories, cockatoos, and the one which includes lovebirds, parakeets, macaws, and others. The macaws are the larger, gaudier, noisier birds, and the lories are the most delicate. Cockatoos are hardy and are usually seen with white or solid black plumage, although some are tinged with color.

THE PARROT needs a cage, but he likes to be out of it part of the time. The cage should be warmly covered at night. He is sensitive to draft, chills, and dust.

Since the parrot needs to exercise his bill, he should have a log or soft hardwood to peck at. Wood fiber is helpful to his digestive system. Most parrots enjoy pulverized charcoal and crushed oyster shells as well.

Take 24 Months to Pay!

THIS scribe is a bachelor this week end, my wife and small daughter having taken off for Berkeley or some place. Before she left the little gal took me aside and solemnly warned me to feed and care for her pets.

So . . . I'm baby-sitting for two cats, two fish and two polliwogs.

Sort of sounds like a small beginning on a Noah's Ark situation, doesn't it?

And by the way, what in heck do you feed polliwogs?

A HEARTENING development of the week was the way people snapped up those encyclopedias the IPT offered at less than a buck a volume. Several thousand were gone in no time, and a new order was rushed east.

This demonstration of a thirst for knowledge among our readers came as something of a surprise, although we should have known they are an alert and intellectually aggressive lot.

DEVOTED to the cause of preventing those horrible ice box tragedies that have been making the news pretty regularly, members of the Long Beach chapter of Refrigeration Service Engineers have long had a standing offer to remove the locks from any ice boxes which are to be discarded or stored.

The refrigeration men have not had many calls on that, but they're pursuing their objective with a new project. They've got a 16-mm. film illustrating the danger of the discarded ice box which is available for showing to any local organization interested. Titled "Don't Leave a Death Trap," it runs about 15 minutes.

It costs nothing, and it should have wide viewing. A call to 356-379 will bring full information. Relay this tip to the program chairman of your favorite organization.

A VISITOR from Hawick, Scotland, is Stewart Wallace, who leaves for home Monday after several weeks as a guest of his brother, William, of 2183 West 20th St.

Bro. Wallace has been thrilled by everything he's seen in Southern California, but perhaps the highlight of the visit came Friday when he happened to drop into a local store where an auction was under way.

Just as he came in the auctioneer offered a handsome silver hip flask to the assemblage. He explained it had come from Sheffield, Eng., and just then his eye lit on Bro. Wallace, who looks every inch a Scot.

"Ah," he said, "just the man to own this handsome flask—with a wee drap of Scotch in it, too."

Bro. Wallace was excited and delighted—but not, excited and delighted enough to offer a bid.

TAKE the word of Mrs. Fay McRae — there's a purse snatcher in L. B.

Mrs. McRae was jostled in a crowd at a sale at a downtown dept. store the other day. She had a pillbox type handbag on her arm, and inside the bag was a billfold containing $45, a picture of her deceased husband, and a lot of valuable papers.

She left the store and went to bus stop. When she opened the handbag she found the billfold was gone. She scurried back to the store, found nothing, and can only deduce that the handbag was opened, the purse removed, and the bag closed again by an adroit thief.

A practical nurse, she's sorely hit by the loss of the cash, but still more serious to her is the disappearance of the other things. She hopes the thief will read this and send them back to her at 525 West First St. So do I—though I doubt such people read this column.

SIGNS of our times:

On a truck spied on Pacific Coast Hwy.:

"PLEASE HIT ME GENTLY . . . I'M FULL OF POTTERY"

On the wall of hamburger emporium on American ave.:

"DON'T TAKE LIFE TOO SERIOUSLY. YOU CAN'T GET OUT OF IT ALIVE ANYHOW."

And Doc Rogers tells of a sign over the entrance to the maternity division of a department store:

"READY TO BEAR DEPT."

IF THAT rush of filings for City Council posts continues unabated, there might be a problem of finding enough votes to go around, come election day.

And have you noticed more women than usual are bidding for seats around the table in the council room? Looks like a concerted move to put charm in the chamber.

Up Goes L. B.'s Harbor in $34,000,000 Lift

Huge Project Will Remedy Land Sinkage

By DON BRACKENBURY
(Independent, Press-Telegram Harbor Reporter)

Virtually the entire Long Beach Harbor area — 766 acres — is being raised an average of 13 feet in what undoubtedly is the greatest project of its kind in history.

Within the next 10 years, an estimated 15,630,000 cubic yards of dirt will be dredged and pumped or dug and hauled to the harbor, and spread over an area which extends from Piers A and E at the south to as far north as Ninth St.

At completion of the project, wharves and transit sheds, streets and buildings, oil wells and tank farms — everything which lies within the area—will stand from 10 to 18 feet higher than they do today.

The Board of Harbor Commissioners will spend an estimated $34,000,000 in completing the land raising project to remedy permanently sinkage caused principally by withdrawal of oil.

Although the subsidence apparently is affected by oil withdrawal from hundreds of private wells in addition to those which are city-owned, harbor officials feel the $34,000,000 expenditure is mandatory because of the tremendous capital investment involved.

Furthermore, the expense is small compared with the revenue from oil produced.

SINCE THE FIRST city-owned well was drilled in the harbor in 1938, oil production has netted the city $222,000,000. This figure does not include the value of 148,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas delivered free to the city gas department.

And the current monthly income to the city of $2,400,000 is expected to continue for many years if normal development of the oil field takes place.

The city has filed a series of condemnation suits — the latest being taken to court early this month—to acquire title to land north of Seaside Blvd. which must be raised. Much of this land is needed to provide access to new bridges across Los Angeles River and for street and freeway development.

Major reason that the project will take 10 years to complete is that the Harbor Department is not, at this time, asking condemnation of privately owned oil wells north of Seaside Blvd.

It is department policy to permit these wells to operate until their production drops below a reasonable economic level. As most of these wells are on the edges of the oil structure, as compared with location of most city-owned wells along its center, they steadily are dropping in production and in value.

MUCH OF THE land raising already is under way.

Biggest single area involved is Pier E, on the west side of the entrance channel. As a portion of this work is new development, it cannot all be classed as subsidence remedial work. However, an estimated 4,500,000 cubic yards of dirt are being deposited on the pier and in the area to the north—where the center of the subsidence "saucer" actually lies.

The 167-acre pier is being raised by hydraulic fill. The dirt is being dredged from an area seaward of the Navy mole and deposited on the south end of Pier E, from where giant carryalls move it to other portions of the pier.

Also well along is the work on Pier D, east of the entrance channel. Here a new quay wall has been built and the pier's 27-acre surface is being raised 10 feet by the deposit of 440,000 cubic yards of fill material.

A new wharf is half-finished on the west side of Pier C, and bids soon will be sought for a similar structure along the east side of the pier. When both are completed, fill operations will get under way to raise the center of the pier about 10 feet to match the new height of the wharves. Approximately 34 acres are involved and 550,000 cubic yards of dirt will be needed.

ON PIER B, both restoration and raising are necessary and it will take 700,000 cubic yards of dirt to bring the 22-acre surface up about eight feet at its south end and nearly 16 feet at the north end.

The major part of Pier A has been developed at such a height that subsidence will not affect it.

However, harbor engineers estimate that 3,300,000 cubic yards of dirt must be placed over about 225 acres on the pier.

As the piers are raised, engineers also must raise the area which lies immediately to the north.

This includes 64 acres bounded by Los Angeles River, El Embarcadero, the entrance channel and Seaside Blvd. The section must be raised an average of 15 feet and will require 1,540,000 cubic yards of material.

SECOND BIGGEST phase of the project from the standpoint of actual earth movement—and undoubtedly biggest from the standpoint of streets, railroad trackage, oil wells, buildings and utilities involved—is the so-called "town lot" area. This includes 127 acres, roughly bounded by Los Angeles River, Seaside Blvd., the entrance channel and Water St.

When work starts on the entire area, an estimated 3,700,000 cubic yards of dirt must be moved. Depth of the fill will average 18 feet.

All of the dwellings and industrial buildings will be razed or moved when the time comes or moved. A major item will be construction of westerly approaches to Ocean Blvd. bridge and the lower end of Long Beach Freeway and Pico Ave., which run side-by-side on the west bank of Los Angeles River.

A comparatively smaller project—70 acres, but strung out along Pico Ave. to Ninth St. and including the recently acquired Spreckles property on Channel No. 2—will complete the tremendous project.

FOR THE MORE THAN 15,000,000 cubic yards of dirt and the cost of moving it, the Harbor Department must pay approximately $12,000,000.

The cost of raising streets, railroad tracks, utilities, and eventually oil wells, in the "town lot" area is estimated at $11,000,000.

Cost of raising streets, tracks, oil wells and utilities elsewhere in the 766-acre project will cost another $11,000,000, it is estimated.

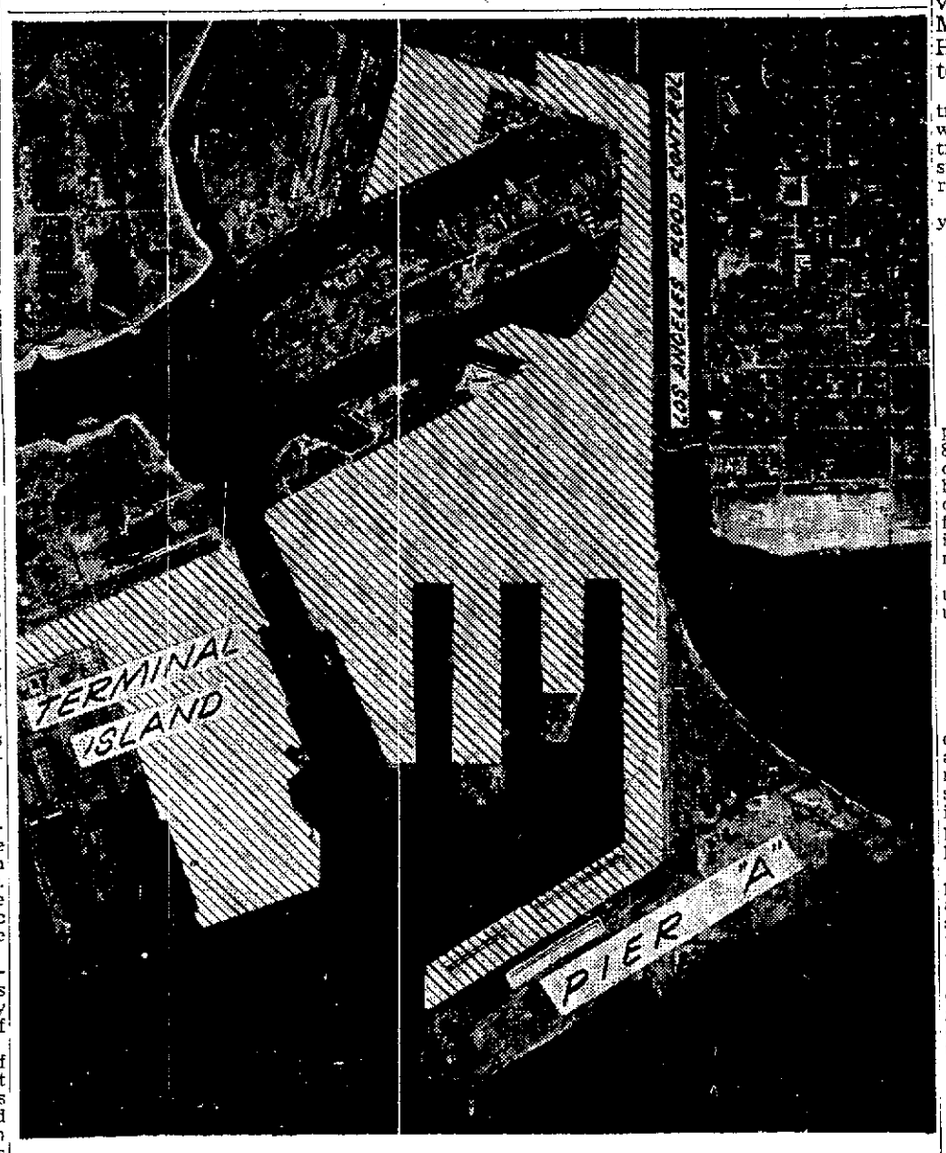

Not included in the $34,000,000 total is an estimated $6,300,000 for approaches on the west side of Los Angeles River to the Ocean Blvd., Third St. and Ninth St. bridges.

Throughout the entire project, the Port of Long Beach will continue to operate, and, according to General Manager Eloi J. Amar and Chief Harbor Engineer R. R. Shoemaker, will maintain its present capacity.

City of Charm Preview Open for Taxpayers

Park Consultant's Report Scheduled in Public Session

By GEORGE WEEKS
Ind.-P.-T. City Hall Reporter

A seaside city of great charm, pleasing to its own people and attractive to visitors, will be described Monday night at Convention Hall in Municipal Auditorium.

It has neighborhood and district parks combining beauty with utility, Parisian vistas of tree-lined streets and a broad strand fully developed for recreational use.

The city is Long Beach some years in the future.

It will be described by F. Ellwood Allen, nationally recognized park consultant, who has just completed a 125-page report visualizing land acquisitions and public works—shoreline and upland—giving Long Beach a breath-taking new look.

Allen will summarize the report at a public meeting, set for 8 p. m., to be attended by city councilmen, other officials, city beautiful enthusiasts and other citizens. Questions will be invited from the audience after the fashion of town meetings. Mayor Lyman B. Sutter will preside.

Details of the report remain undisclosed pending its official unveiling.

"But I can say this—it's not timid," its author remarked. "In some respects it may even be considered highly controversial."

The accent is on broad concepts, Allen said, but there are also numerous specific recommendations for replacing unsightly spots with greenery, utilizing vacant land areas and expanding park facilities to meet population growth.

Ultimate development of the program could require as much as 20 years. But a good-sized section of the report is devoted to what, in Allen's opinion, needs to be and can be done soon.

The recommendations do not cover methods of financing. In general, the assumption is that city tideland oil money will pay the multimillion-dollar cost.

Five months of preparation by Allen and his associate, Weaver W. Pangburn, preceded the writing of the report.

It was completed last week at the firm's main office in Bennington, Vt., after numerous conferences and field surveys here. Allen came to Long Beach by plane to present the original copy to City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers.

The study was authorized by the city council in a contract awarded last October.

City councilmen agreed to the Monday night meeting at the request of the Women's Council for Long Beach Beautiful. Allen will report further to the council at its regular meeting Tuesday. He and Mrs. Allen expect to remain here until April 2.

'MIS-TER CHAIRMAN'

1000 Ready to Speak at Win-Friends Meet

Long Beach will be host next Saturday and Sunday to 1000 conventioneers, each one ready at the drop of a hint to make a speech. And that's exactly why they will be here.

The California Chapter of the Dale Carnegie Internationale will hold the annual convention, opening Saturday morning at 9 a. m. and continuing through Sunday afternoon.

All are graduates of the Dale Carnegie Course and have learned how to win friends and influence people the Carnegie way. Among their teachings is how to overcome timidity and take the floor when any occasion arises. "That means we have 1000 people coming who need only a nod and they can speak to the convention," laughed Fred Herman, local Carnegie leader.

Larry Fawcett of Long Beach is president of the host club and is helping direct the convention.

Saturday morning will be devoted largely to exhibits and demonstrations in the Wilton, the headquarters and the Auditorium.

Starting at 1 p. m. Saturday, Clarence Wold, Whittier, district president, will call the first general session and invocation will be given by R. Merrill Jensen, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church. Mayor Lyman B. Sutter will welcome the delegates and Millicent Shultman.

Rev. William Diehm of San Dimas will give the keynote address. John Blair of Whittier will preside at a business session which will be followed by a prepared speech contest.

The governor's banquet will be in the Wilton Marine Room Saturday night, with Emery Lorance of Pasadena as emcee. Finals of the prepared speech contest will be held and speeches will be made by Vernon Patterson, Tacoma, executive secretary of the internationale, and John Blair, deputy district governor. Dancing will follow.

Sunday morning will be devoted to an impromptu speech contest. Sunday afternoon contest awards will be made and new officers will be installed.

COUNTY - LAKEWOOD QUESTION

Who'll Finance Mayfair Park?

Incorporation of Lakewood has dropped a problem in the laps of county supervisors as to whether the county or the new city is to finance operation of Mayfair Park for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The 15-acre park at the southeast corner of Clark Ave. and South St., with its new $240,000 swimming pool ready to open in early summer, is operated at present by the County Department of Parks and Recreation. It is within boundaries of the City of Lakewood.

"It's up to the supervisors," says John Leach, county management division chief. "If the park is considered a regional park, then the county can continue to operate it from the general fund.

"If the park is classified as a neighborhood park by the board of supervisors, we expect that the city of Lakewood will pay the county to operate it, through a contract going into effect July 1."

Prior to the Lakewood incorporation election, the County Department of Parks and Recreation had recommended that approximately $30,000 be budgeted from the 1954-55 county general fund for operation of the park.

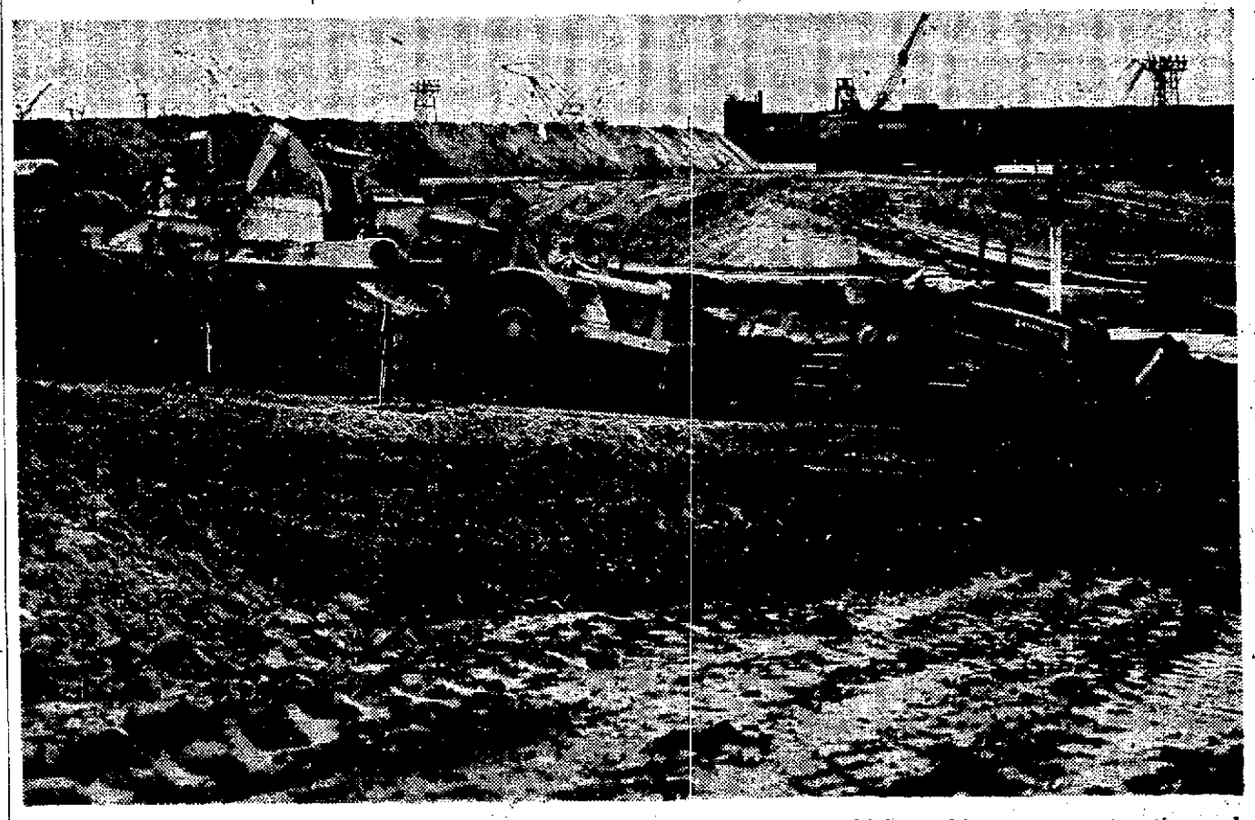

A spokesman for the department said last week that county park and recreation officials "have nothing to go on and are standing by for further instruction" regarding operation of Mayfair Park next fiscal year.

A report classifying parks throughout the county as either regional or neighborhood installations has long been in preparation by county officials.

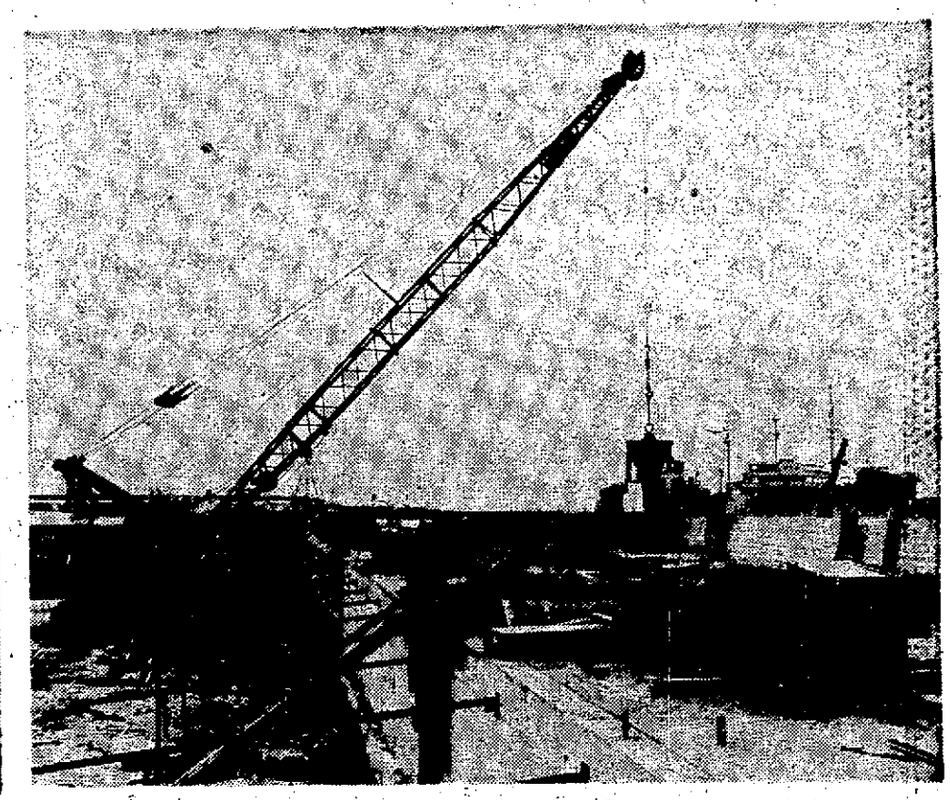

Its release is expected to place the supervisors on political "hot seats," with cities demanding that operation of neighborhood parks in unincorporated areas be financed by residents in the vicinity through formation of special tax districts.

Unincorporated area residents are accustomed to having their parks being financed by taxpayers of the entire county, including those in cities, and are likely to put up a battle to retain this county policy.

When Lakewood Village annexed to Long Beach, the county required that Long Beach take over and pay for operation of the Village's Pan American Park as of July 1.

Savory green peppers and juicy red tomatoes are a delight to the eye and a treat to the appetite.

Garden Budget Savers

By Walter Finch

MAKING A VEGETABLE garden is one of the sure ways to test a person's ability to bounce back for there is a measure of work from planting to harvest that needs to be done with astounding regularity if there is to be a good harvest. Still the measure of satisfaction that comes from producing one's own vegetables is made even more significant when the job is well done. There is always an extra measure of fresh tastiness and of healthful vitamins in fresh home-picked produce.

A few items in the garden pay off particularly well. According to the California Bedding Plant Advisory Board the two largest vegetable items handled in bedding plant containers for resale to the gardening public are tomatoes and peppers. Both are well suited to California conditions, but both require growing to transplant size in a nursery. During the short season that it is advisable to plant these two items there are many varieties of both that are available to the gardening public.

With both tomatoes and peppers the location should be in full sun with a loose friable soil for the best results. Tomatoes can be set out on a flat bed and flood irrigated while the peppers require hilling up on raised beds to insure good drainage as they rot out if they stand with too much moisture. Ordinarily, tomatoes will mature and set good fruit with two or three heavy irrigations while the pepper planting will require biweekly soakings and a liberal side-dressing of fertilizer every month until they mature.

In planting tomatoes it is wise to remember that the designation of early, mid-season and late refers to the period of fruiting and has nothing to do with the time of planting. Actually the later they are planted, the wiser it is to plant an early fruiting variety. Also it is best to keep your tomato planting away from petunia plants as they are both carriers of tobacco mosaic.

Hibiscus, Flower of the Islands

established before frost. Give the plants plenty of room. Most varieties grow five to eight feet tall and almost as wide. Most hibiscus do best in a slightly acid soil. When planting add one cupful of soil sulphur stirred into the soil mixture to (supply wanted acidity.

HIBISCUS ARE RESISTANT to most pests and diseases. Though they do require consistent watering, particularly in hot weather. Let the hose run slowly in the plant basin rather than spraying that will wilt the flowers.

Feed the plants every four weeks from spring to late summer to assure a healthy bush and bounteous bloom. Water immediately after fertilizing. Use about a half cup of plant food to the plant at least 10 inches away from the trunk of the bush.

Do not cultivate. In summer give the plants a mulch. Use it about two inches deep from the center of the bush to about a foot out beyond the leaves.

Hibiscus require no pruning till they are five years old or more. They should then be pruned to control their shape and to remove deadwood. Do not prune until late spring when blooms are light.

MANY BEAUTIFUL HYBRIDS have been added to the growing number of varieties of hibiscus. Yet there are three among the older varieties that still continue to be great favorites. They are Agnes Gault, single red, also called San Diego red, and the spectacular Crown of Bohemia.

Agnes Gault is one of the strongest growers and most prodigious bloomers of all hibiscus. The huge deep-coral pink flowers are beloved by most gardeners.

Single red or San Diego red ranks in popularity with Agnes Gault, especially for those who like a brilliant red tone.

Crown of Bohemia is considered among the best of the double blooming hibiscus. It combines the rich colors of autumn in the large double flowers—deep golden blended with copper and orange.

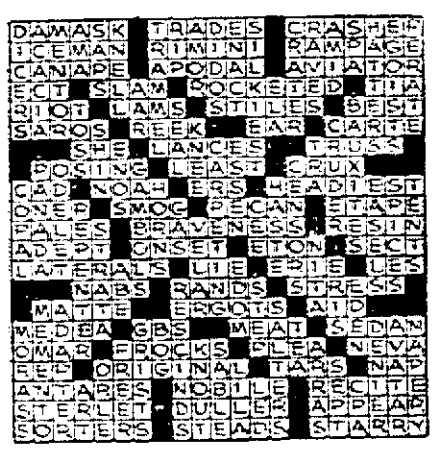

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Many nurseries now look like camellia flower shows and this is a splendid time to make selections. The plants are in bloom and thus you pick the types you like, rather than making selections from a catalog. Camellias require shallow planting and an acid type soil.

Tuberous begonias are among our most colorful summer bedding plants. A shady or partially shady location is advisable, but not dense shade. The tubers may be started indoors in a nursery flat, using leaf mold or planter mix. When the sprouts are just a few inches tall they may be transplanted to pots or the outdoor garden if the weather has warmed up sufficiently. Delphinium clumps are now being offered and may be planted at once. These are rather tall growing and should be placed towards the rear of the permanent border. Excellent shades of blue are obtainable.

RECORD ALBUM

Spring . . . and Love

By Delos Smith

THE RECORD-MAKERS seem to be bestirring themselves to broaden the record repertoire. A prime example of this is a beguiling recording of three sonatas and a prelude and fugue for organ by Felix Mendelssohn, musicianly played by John Eggington (L'Oiseau-Lyre-London). Mendelssohn had particular affinity for the instrument but few music listeners know that today.

Other new records in this category of the unusual but highly listenable are:

Carl Orff's arrangements of 25 spring, drinking, and love songs of the 13th century and called "Carmina Burana," as sung and played by Bavarian singers and orchestras under Eugene Jochum (Decca).

Mozart's "Musical Joke" coupled with E. H. Mehul's first symphony (Mehul was born in 1763) played by the Radio Berlin Orchestra (Urania).

Lord Berners' odd piano music, "Fragments Psychologiques," "Le Poisson D'Or," and "Three Little Funeral Marches," played by Menahem Pressler along with Constant Lambert's "concerto for pianoforte and nine players" (MGM).

Light music by Scandinavian composers—Hugo Alfven, Johan Svendsen, Carl Nielson, plus a little Sibelius (C major Romance), played by the Covent Garden Opera Orchestra (MGM).

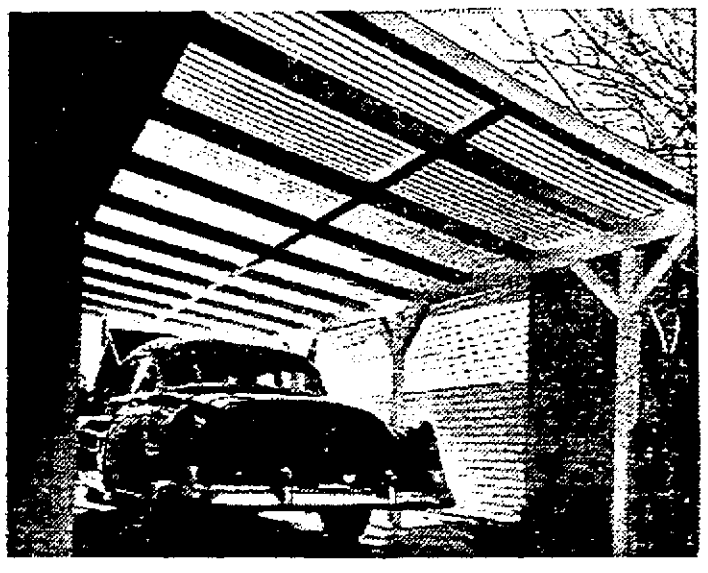

TEN TOP TUNES—Jo Stafford's "Make Love to Me" continues to hold the top spot on your local hit parade this week; (2) "Cross Over the Bridge," Patti Page; (3) "I Get So Lonely," Four Knights; (4) "Young at Heart," Frank Sinatra; (5) "Wanted," Perry Como; (6) "Secret Love," Doris Day; (7) "From the Vine Came the Grape," the Gaylords; (8) "Answer Me My Love," Nat King Cole; (9) "Oh, Mein Papa," Eddie Fisher; and (10) Tony Martin's "Stranger in Paradise."

JO STAFFORD
. . She leads Hit Parade . .

FOLK SONGS interpreted with all the simplicity and freshness of the original, are recorded on lps. New examples found at the Long Beach Public Library are "British Traditional Ballads in America," sung by Shep Ginandes; "Folk Songs of California and the Old West," sung by Sam Hinton; "Jean Ritchie Sings" ("Black is the Color," "One Morning in May," etc.); "Voices of Haiti" (recorded during ceremonials) and "Folk Songs of Newfoundland," sung by Alan Mills, accompanied by guitar. The last record includes sea songs that would make good singing in our beach community: e.g. "Great Big Sea Hove," "Lukey's Boat" and "Jack Was Every Inch a Sailor."

Top reserves at the public library last week were for "Don Juan in Hell," "John Brown's Body," "Romeo and Juliet" (Old Vic Company) and the foreign language records.

They pointed out that Long Beach is receiving national attention by business men because of the rapid and steady growth of this area's population and business activity.

Their tour included visits to the Star-Kist Tuna Factory, Long Beach Harbor, Western Orange County including Garden Grove; May Co. and other stores in Lakewood Center and a trip to Catalina Island.

Ike Signs Gas Regulation Legislation

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) President Eisenhower signed into law, Saturday, a natural gas bill which some senators claimed will cost housewives and other consumers millions of dollars in higher rates.

This was denied, however, by gas-industry spokesmen.

The law takes away from the Federal Power Commission and gives to the states rate control over all gas received and used within their borders. The FPC retains the right to regulate rates of gas moved in interstate commerce.

Mr. Eisenhower welcomed the measure as restoring local control where local control rightfully belongs. But he said that if the change puts an undue burden on the states, he will recommend that Congress take remedial action.

"I have approved this bill," he said in a prepared statement, "because of my conviction that the interests of the individual citizen will be better protected when they remain under state and local control than when they are regulated or controlled by the federal government."

The measure was passed by Congress Mar. 15. It upsets an old Supreme Court ruling and gives the states, instead of the Federal Power Commission, jurisdiction over local gas distributors if the states want such authority, even though the gas moved in interstate commerce. If they don't take jurisdiction, regulation reverts to the FPC.

Sens. Douglas (D-Ill), Burke (D-O) and Morse (Ind-Ore) attacked the legislation when it was before the Senate but lost to forces led by Sen. Bricker (R-O).

Sen. Kerr (D-Okla.) said the new law was not similar to his bill which passed Congress but which was vetoed by President Truman.

Kerr favored the bill which Eisenhower signed Saturday. He said the measure was opposed "only by those who think the federal government ought to regulate everything."

Hard of Hearing

According to the Basic Diagnostic office, it is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, "We have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else."

Once they try this new and proven method they are overjoyed. Just like magic, in many cases folks are able to hear without their hearing aid after the very first treatment.

The treatment is simple, it consists of three steps and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition a special treatment is given, if the loss is due to catarrh a different treatment is given and if it is a bone condition, the tympanic-oscillations treatment is given.

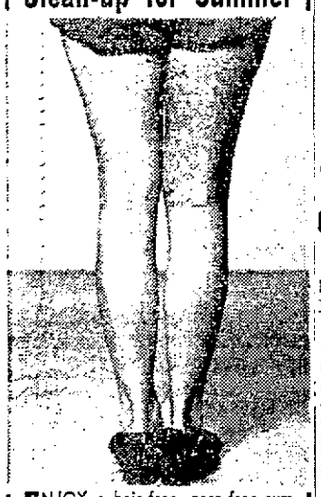

"I have been wearing a hearing aid for a period of three years, after receiving only three treatments I was able to discard my hearing aid. I highly recommend Tympanic-Oscillations to anyone now wearing a mechanical device."

Mrs. A.C.

CUBAN 'KEED' CONFIDENT

Rate Olson 9-5 Choice Over Gavilan in Friday Title Bout

CHICAGO—(UP). Kid Gavilan, the Cuban hawk who has lost only once in his last 36 fights while retaining the world welterweight title, was unperturbed Saturday about battling Carl (Bobo) Olson, his 16th middleweight opponent, Friday for the world 160-pound crown.

"I've fought heavier fighters before," he said. "Let him worry about fighting a lighter man.

"Everybody say that he going to make me fight. Maybe I'm going to make him fight.

"He's going to try to make me fight his way and I'm going to try to make him fight my way. Maybe he'll find out somewhere which way we going to fight."

Olson, though fighting for a world title for only the third time, was a 9-5 favorite Saturday to successfully defend his crown in his first battle as the champion. But Gavilan queried these odds with the explanation "they got the wrong man winning."

Ringsiders anticipated the bout would close at virtually even money, particularly since Gavilan Friday switched his training camp from Summit, N. J. to the Midwest gym here for his final drills.

The two scrappers have had six common foes and each of them met the former welterweight and middleweight champion, Ray (Sugar) Robinson, twice. Robinson decisioned Gavilan over 10 rounds and over 15 rounds, while against Olson he won a 15-round decision and scored a 12th round technical knockout.

Friday night's title bout will be televised locally over KNBH, 4, and will be broadcast over KABC beginning at 7 p. m. The area within 100 miles of Chicago will be blacked out.

With the exception of these two scraps, Olson boasted a perfect record against the same men which Gavilan faced, winning three and losing two.

DECISIONED VILLEMAIN

Olson scored ten-round decisions over Otis Graham and Robert Villemain, a 15-round decision over Paddy Young, knocked out Walter Cartier in five rounds and scored a sixth-round technical knockout over Eugene Hairston.

Against the same quintet, Gavilan won 10-round decisions over Young and Graham, knocked out Cartier in 10, and lost to Hairston and Villemain, each in 10 rounds.

Boxing observers figured the battle would be decided when it was determined whether Olson could go 15 rounds at top speed, forcing the punching every second, his usual ring strategy, or whether Gavilan with counter-punching and footwork can keep Olson at a distance and on the defensive against his sharp and speedy left hand.

The muscular Olson figures to have a six-pound bulge over the high-waisted, spindly-shanked Gavilan, 159 to 153.

Gavilan's pro career lists almost twice as many bouts as Olson's, 115 to 60. The Kid has a 98-13-4 record, including 27 KO's. Bobo has won 54 bouts, 26 by KO, and lost six.

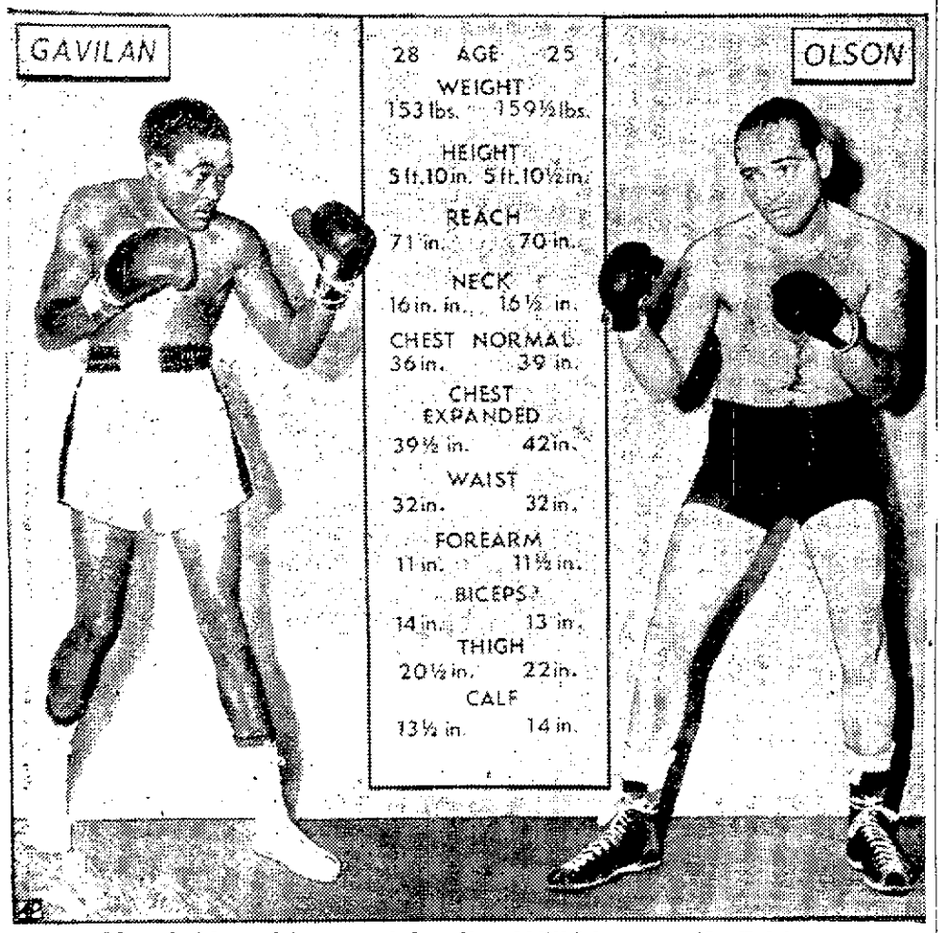

Gavilan is confident he can defeat Olson, perhaps by a knockout, thus providing some solace for the fact Robinson retired as unbeaten middleweight champion in late 1952 without giving him a chance to whip Sugar Ray.

KID PROMISES WIN

The Cuban Kid doesn't like to hear Robinson described as boxings' greatest fighter, pound-for-pound. He thinks he is. And he has promised the president of Cuba, personally, he will bring the 160-pound crown back with him to Havana. The Kid even is talking about taking on heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano.

Olson hasn't gone on record, yet, assuring the mayor of San Francisco, his present home, or the major domo of Honolulu, his birthplace, he will win this battle of the "island" champions.

International Boxing Club officials said that the advance sale Saturday was about $180,000 and about 10,000 tickets. Secretary Truman Gibson predicted a final gate of about $230,000 and about 14,000 customers.

Here's How Olson and Gavilan Will Measure Up Friday

SANTEE RUNS 4:11.8 MILE

Double for Whitfield; Illinois Star Leaps 6-9

CHICAGO—(UP). Wes Santee, University of Kansas' star miler, won the Bankers Mile as expected before 17,618 fans at the 18th annual Daily News Relays, but his time was a disappointing 4:11.8, far off the world and American indoor record.

Santee set the pace himself for the last half-mile, but after an exceptionally slow quarter he had little chance to clip the current mark of 4:05.3, set by Gil Dodds in 1948.

The field was off to a good first quarter, timed in 0:59, as Lawton Lamb, a former 1000-yard champion from Illinois, moved in front for a snappy pace.

But Michigan State's Warren Dreutzler, the victor two years ago, moved in front for the second quarter, and as he held first place, it took the pack 1:07 to turn the next 440 yards for a half-mile clocking of 2:06.

Then Santee, apparently disgusted by the slow pace, stepped out, ran Dreutzler out of contention and held the lead easily the rest of the way.

His time at the three-quarter mark was 3:08. Lamb finished second and Lowell Zellers of Indiana was third. Len Truex, defending champion, was fourth.

Harrison Dillard, former Baldwin-Wallace star, won the 60-yard high hurdles for the eighth straight year and posted his 12th consecutive Relays victory with a clocking of 7.2, a tenth of a second off his American record.

Ron Mitchell, Illinois, captured the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 9¼ inches.

Mal Whitfield, two-time Olympic half-mile champion, won both the 600- and 1000-yard runs, setting a new Relays record of 2:10.5 in the 1000.

Whitfield might have done even better against the American indoor mark of 2:08.2 set by Don Gehrmann two years ago except for a poor start for the four-man field.

Running against Illinois' Gene Maynard, former national collegiate half-mile champ, Sgt. John Barnes of Long Beach, formerly with Occidental College, and Bill Conrardy, formerly of Loyola, Whitfield got off to a slow start as Conrardy set the opening pace.

Maynard moved in front midway through the distance to step up the speed but Whitfield

Maglie Hit but Misses Bad Injury

OKLAHOMA CITY—(UP). The New York Giants gave Bob Feller an early pounding Saturday, and went on to defeat the Cleveland Indians, 6-3, before 4637. It was New York's fifth straight victory.

Rapid Robert was tagged for five runs and five hits, including homers by Second Baseman Davey Williams and rookie Outfielder Bill Taylor in the three innings he worked. The circuit drives came during a four-run first-frame splurge.

Before the game, Giant ace right hander Sal Maglie was hit on the right fore arm by a line drive while pitching batting practice to Outfielder Willie Mays. The injury, an inch above the wrist, appeared to be serious at first, but X-rays taken at Mercy Hospital proved negative and Sal expects to be back in action within a week.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(UP). The Chicago White Sox knocked star Pitcher Robin Roberts from the mound in the fourth inning and continued their batting practice against two other Philadelphia Phillies hurlers Saturday for an easy 12-4 exhibition victory.

Roberts gave up a single run in the opener and six more in the fourth before being relieved by Steve Ridzik.

The White Sox announced the sale of veteran reserve Outfielder Tom Wright to the Washington Senators. In return, the Nationals sold Outfielder Keith (Kite) Thomas to the Sox' farm at Memphis, Tenn.

Bosox Edge Cards

ST. PETERBURG, Fla.—(UP). Ted Lepcio's pop fly double just inside the right field foul-line drove in two runs and gave the Boston Red Sox an 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday in 13 innings.

The hit, which came off lefty Niles Jordan, the sixth St. Louis pitcher, followed two walks and gave the victory to Sid Hudson, veteran Boston right hander who hurled from the eighth inning on.

Afterward, the Cards announced that Eddie Yuhas, rookie relief star of 1952, had gone on the voluntary retired list be-

Angels, Stars Tangle Here Sunday in Final PCL Tuneup

The Pacific Coast League exhibition season will wind up in a blaze of glory for Long Beach fans next Sunday afternoon when the Los Angeles Angels and Hollywood Stars collide at Recreation Park in their final tuneup before the pennant race gets under way two days later on Tuesday, April 6.

BOBBY BRAGAN
Brings Stars Here Sunday

Hollywood, of course, is the defending PCL champion, and currently is favored to repeat in the '54 race.

The Angels, third a year ago, again are expected to win a first-division berth this season . . . possibly offer the Stars even tougher contention than they did in '53.

The Angel-Star "civil war" duel last season produced the most bitterly fought series in all of baseball.

WILD FREE-FOR-ALL

Their next-to-last series, played in Gilmore Field, wound up in two of the wildest free-for-alls organized baseball has seen in many years.

The brawl started when Hollywood's Frank Kelleher charged Joe Hatten after being hit by a pitched ball . . . and within seconds both teams were at each other's throats.

After a hectic few minutes order was restored and the game resumed, but a couple of innings later Hollywood's Ted Beard barreled into the Angels' Murray Franklin in a close play at third, forcing Franklin to drop the ball. They immediately tangled and once again both teams began swinging haymakers in an even more furious mixup than the previous fight.

Both teams may present "new" lineups here next Sunday after receiving additional help from tieups with major league clubs.

HELP FROM CUBS

The Angels are expecting several players from the Chicago Cubs late this week, while Hollywood has more help coming from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bill Feistner, veteran local baseball figure who is promoting the game, anticipates a crowd upwards of 3500 fans if the weather stays good.

It was to have been the second exhibition game of the season here, but the first between the Angels and Portland was rained out. Efforts to arrange another game here this week were doomed to failure due to last week's extended rain storm.

Tickets for Sunday's game will go on sale at leading sporting goods stores early this week.

Seattle Nips Angels With 3 Runs in 9th

PALM SPRINGS—(UP). The Seattle Rainiers came up with all their runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Los Angeles Angels 3-2 in an exhibition game.

K. Chorlton drove in the winning run as the Rainiers lumped three singles, two sacrifices and a walk. Cal McClish allowed Seattle only three hits in his seven inning stint, while Alan Ihde took the loss. Tom Lovrich was the winning pitcher.

The Angels scored both their runs in the fifth off Jim Suchecki on a walk, Hardin's double and an error.

The Hollywood Stars broke a 3-3 deadlock with a three-run, seventh-inning rally to defeat San Diego, 6-3.

The Stars put together a walk, a single by Bob Bundy, an error, and a long fly by Tom Saffell to produce the winning runs, all off Lloyd Dickey, San Diego's second pitcher. Hollywood jumped on San Diego starter Bob Kerrigan for three runs in the first inning.

The Sacramento Solons staged an intra-team game in which Hank Schenz' squad dumped Bob Dillinger's, 8-2. Neil Sheridan helped Schenz' cause with a homer with two men on.

Third Baseman Don Eggert blasted a two-run homer in the ninth inning to give the Portland Beavers a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Naval Air Station.

At Palo Alto, Oakland defeated San Francisco, 7-4.

Giel Eyes Pro Diamond Career

HOUSTON, Tex.—(UP). All-America halfback Paul Giel of Minnesota, who also is a top pitcher for the Gophers, said Saturday he hopes to make his professional career on a baseball diamond, not a gridiron.

"The way I look at it, you can last longer and make more money in pro baseball than in pro football," he told sports writers frankly as his team was playing the University of Houston in baseball.

"I'm really not exceptionally fast and at 180 pounds I wouldn't be too big up there in pro football," the modest Giel said.

Hadley Clips Chaffey Mark

Bellflower's Ty Hadley and Lenny Rhodes and Santa Ana's wing-footed Bill Swisshelm featured several record-eclipsing performances in the Chaffey Invitational Track Meet which was won by Riverside Saturday.

Hadley flashed to a 4:28.9 mile breaking the old mark set by Compton's Fernando Ledesma by three-tenths of a second. Rhodes captured the 880 in 1:59.3, lowering the mark seven-tenths of a second.

Swisshelm continued his blistering pace with records in the 100-yard dash and 180 low hurdles—a 9.8 clocking in the former and 19.1 over the barriers.

Although it didn't break a record, Riverside's Wayne Kitchen ran a 49.5 440 for the best CIF time of the year in the 440.

Riverside tallied 28 points to Santa Ana's three. Compton placed fourth with 15.

Compton's Willy Searcy captured the broad jump in 21-8¼; Don Emmons took 3rd and teammate De Moray 4th in the 440. Downey's Bob Saxton placed 3rd in the 880 and Excelsior's Bob Adams had a third in another 440 heat.

Novice competition had Bellflower's Don Klubnick in a three-way tie of 10-9 for the pole vault crown and Excelsior's Ken Josleyn placed 4th in the 880.

L.B. Man Wins Doubles Title

CHICAGO—(UP). Vic Hershkowitz, Brooklyn fireman, Saturday won the U. S. Handball Assn. tournament, beating the defending champion, Bob Brady of San Francisco, 21-15, 21-18, in the finals.

Hershkowitz took command in the first game after a 10-10 tie, surging ahead 12-10 and then running four straight points. He subsequently led 18-12 and 20-15 and won the game with a left side passing shot.

Jim Jacobs of Hollywood, Calif., took third place with a 17-21, 21-9, 21-2 victory over Harold Schrutt of Buffalo.

The Masters' Doubles Championship went to George Brotemarkle of Los Angeles and Bart Hackney of Long Beach, Calif., who defeated Jack Roseman and Marshall Lehrer of New York 21-17 and 21-13.

The Leafs, playing their first home game of the series before a crowd of 13,334 had been carrying the play to the National Hockey League champions until Leswick broke up a 1-1 tie after only 28 second had elapsed in the final stanza.

Trotters Launch Series Against College All-Stars

NEW YORK—(UP). The Harlem Globetrotters, who draw laughs and loot with Goose Tatum's version of basketball, begin their fifth annual Coast-to-Coast tour against the 1954 College All-Stars Sunday with afternoon and night games at Madison Square Garden.

Owner-Coach Abe Saperstein expects about 300,000 to see the latest 22-game series, which will be played in 20 cities.

The tour includes an April 11 afternoon game in the Los Angeles Coliseum, where the teams drew a record U. S. basketball crowd of 36,256 last spring. The Globetrotters won the first four tours, 11-7 in 1950; 14-4 in 1951; 11-5 in 1952, and 14-7 in 1953.

Frank Selvy of Furman, Cliff Hagen of Kentucky, Togo Palazzi of Holy Cross, John Kerr of Illinois, Larry Costello of Niagara, Dick Rosenthal of Notre Dame and Gene Shue of Maryland head the All-Star squad.

The other All-Stars are Frank Ramsey of Kentucky, Bob Leonard of Indiana, Ed Kalafat of Minnesota and Charley Harrison of North Carolina College. Coaches Honey Russell of Seton Hall and Ray Meyer of DePaul will direct the collegians.

Go With the Stranger

THE FASCINATOR, by Theodora Keogh (Farrar, Straus & Young, $3.50).

Author Keogh's premise in this novel is that a woman's desire is to be fought over, and to go with the stronger has never been bred out of her, even through centuries of civilized and proper marital manners.

To Ellen Hunter, a wife and mother, the stronger is also the uglier, a sculptor whose magnetism draws Ellen against her wishes and against her better judgment. She has the devotion of her husband, but as the sly witchery of Zanic casts a sensational spell over Ellen, temptation grows as her fright wanes. At times harsh, the novel still carries a deep-rooted tenderness in its treatment of the bedeviled.—G. L.

SCENES AND PORTRAITS, by Van Wyck Brooks (Dutton, $4.50).

In his memories of childhood and youth, Brooks dwells lovingly on the conditioning that inspired his work in the arts, and on the greats of the turn of the century when living was cheap and writing was good. The years remembered are those between 1886 and the opening of World War I, and the great writers and painters that are remembered are all those whose styles and mannerisms affected a generation of the arts, and not the least of these was Brooks himself. These were the years of the moulding of literary history.—G. L.

EASTER IDEA BOOK, by Charlotte Adams (Barrows, $3.50).

This book will provide more ideas for making Easter a joyous occasion than you ever thought possible: Lenten and Easter dishes, parties for children, coloring Easter eggs, Easter centerpieces and favors, making Easter baskets, rabbits, et cetera, for gifts, pets for Easter gifts, gifts to make for children and grownups, Easter cards and plants.

THE NIGHT WINDS, by Brian Talbot Cleeve (Houghton Mifflin-Ballentine, $2.75 hardbound, $.35 paper).

Trapped in South Africa's bitter melting pot is Ann Burroughs, a girl who despises her black blood, a girl who yearns to start a new life in Europe, where, she is told, she can easily pass as white. A solid, powerful story that leaves much for the reader to remember, this is the first novel by a talented British writer to be published in this country.

AUTUMN OF LIBERTY, by Paul Harver (Hanover House, $2).

What we need is a challenger who will tell us what a difficult and dangerous thing it is to be an American. This quotation employed by Paul Harvey, radio news analyst, winner of various awards for Americanism, expresses the motivation of "Autumn of Liberty." You may not agree with the author's enumeration of all the things wrong with this country; but certainly this is a time when liberty is threatened, and his lessons in patriotism are of real value.

PATTERN FOR PANIC, by Richard S. Prather (Abelard, $2.75).

Here's a slam-bang Mickey Spillane school mystery. The author is probably best known for his creation of detective Shell Scott, who has appeared in several Gold Medal pocket books. The tale is unbelievable, of course, but the hero, Cliff Morgan, does a neat, if gory, job of cleaning out Communists in Mexico City. And sexy? You bet!—J. G.

SHE CAME TO STAY, by Simone de Beauvoir (World, $5).

This is prewar Paris, and it's a confusion of loves and despairs and all of them superbly drawn. The provincial Xavier comes to mingle with the people of the arts of the theater, and she is brought into a relationship with two lovers which leads to treachery and intrigue within the triangle. The setting is exciting, and the picture of the prewar Paris is warm and delightful.—G. L.

THE WARS OF LOVE, by Mark Schorer (McGraw-Hill, $3).

Three boys and a girl grew up together, in the careless way of unrelated children. The growing was while the summer colony lazed through the warm months. The relationships that were only hinted at during adolescence became full-flowered and productive of killing passions when the four mature. Villainy is buried deep in the surface love that holds the four in a spell of dependency, and betrayal is only the width of a whisper away.—G. L.

BUY LOW—SELL HIGH, by Frank V. Fisher (William-Frederick Press).

This is an intimate kind of book, one which makes you feel that you are in the office of an investment counselor who is taking a personal interest in your stock and bond program. The author writes in a scholarly manner, discussing the right time to buy stocks, the right time to sell, as well as what to buy. Chapter endings are marked by witty as well as wise sayings relevant to the stock market.—L. K.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN and Ballentine Books have just published two fast-paced novels. One is "The Coasts of the Earth" ($3 hardbound, $.35 paper), a tale of two young Americans who flew for Israel. This story won for Harold E. Livingston, the author, a Houghton Mifflin Literary Fellowship Award. The other is "West of Justice" ($2.50 hardbound, $.35 paper), in which John Hunter tells the story of a judge who deals out justice with six-guns in the days of the Arizona Territory.

WORLDS OF SPACE, by Martin Caidin (Holt, $4.95).

Buck Rogers will buy this book. It outlines the work already done in rocket research and what remains to be done before improved versions of the rocket are used for travel to the moon and other planets. Sixty-four illustrations by Fred L. Wolff show graphically how such travel may be conducted. One of these illustrations, above, shows a lunar survey ship landing on the moon.

The World of Stamps

By Harry Rickard

THE SPECIAL ISSUES of 1935 seem to give some trouble to new collectors. This is undoubtedly because they have never seen the full sheets of stamps as originally produced and do not know the story behind them.

It all started when James Farley was Postmaster General and some of the top dignitaries of the New Deal were given the large uncut sheets of stamps, which are four times the size of the regular post office panes.

Everything would probably have gone all right if one of the recipients hadn't been a little greedy and tried to sell some of them to a stamp dealer.

From the stamp dealer the news spread until it was the most talked about subject of the day in the philatelic press and thousands of letters were sent to Washington as a result.

To make a long story short, it ended up with the Post Office Department making all 20 of the sheets available to all collectors.

The stamps were on sale for a short time and through the years they have been steadily put on the market so that in years to come a full set of sheets will be quite a rarity.

The five different souvenir sheets are only collected in pairs or blocks with gutters between. This is the only way that you can know that they came from the original large sheets as the original issue prior to the "favors" were just the small souvenir sheets.

The Newburg gutter pairs and Byrd pairs with lines between are the most difficult of the 20 varieties to obtain.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

It is agreed by baseball men that Ted Williams is the greatest student of batting in the game today.

A few seasons ago a rival pitcher was ribbing Ted one day and remarked to the Red Sox slugger, "You're a great hitter, all right, but even though Stan Musial doesn't have your power he does more things than you do at the plate. For instance, he steps in and out with a pitch."

"Nobody in baseball can do that," Williams snapped.

"Well just watch Musial in the All-Star game coming up," the pitcher said.

Ted watched Musial during batting practice and when he went to bat he tried moving around and got hit on the fists.

"Musial can move around with a pitch in batting practice, but Williams is right. There's nobody in the game who can do it in an actual game," the rival hurler said. "It just goes to show that Ted is a perfectionist . . . knows what can be done and what can't be done because he's tried everything."

There was one man who could move around in the box, though, and perhaps that is one reason why he earned the distinction of being the greatest of them all. We're speaking, of course, about the immortal Ty Cobb.

When a manager or coach has taught a left-handed pull hitter to hit into left field and a right-handed pull hitter to hit to right field . . . then he has really accomplished something nowadays.

Every year managers and coaches try to convert pull hitters into straightaway hitters and when a conversion is finally made there is much rejoicing all around.

Cobb batted left-handed, but he hit to all fields. Besides he did what no other left-handed batter has ever been able to do . . . and that is to hit an inside pitch to left field.

JEAN DUBUC, who was Cobb's roommate when they were both members of the Detroit Tigers, asked Ty many times how he managed the trick . . . but Cobb would never tell him.

Dubuc was determined to discover for himself how Cobb was able to do this . . . and eventually succeeded.

He got his chance during one of Cobb's very infrequent batting slumps. Ty asked Dubuc to go to the ballpark with him in the morning and pitch to him.

Dubuc readily consented, hoping to solve a mystery that had been puzzling American League players for some time.

Dubuc pitched a letter-high fast ball close to Cobb's chest and Ty promptly hammered the ball into left field. He pitched the same kind of ball again . . . and with the same result.

Once more Dubuc pitched a high fast ball inside, but this time he watched Cobb's feet. He discovered that Ty began shifting his feet as soon as the ball left the pitcher's hand. Then he half-turned, facing the ball, brought his bat around and put his body weight behind it.

He could then push the ball over the third baseman's head or drive it between the shortstop and the third sacker.

Cobb never started the shift, though, until the ball left the pitcher's hand. He never guessed what the pitch would be, but kept himself ready to meet any kind of pitch.

TY ALWAYS PICKED his field beforehand . . . deciding where he would try to hit the ball before stepping up to the plate.

Several times he wagered he could drive in a runner from second and then call the field where the ball would land. He rarely lost one of these bets because he could, by shifting his feet, hit any kind of pitch to any given field.

After solving the mystery of Cobb's ability to hit to left field, Dubuc made it a practice to pay close attention to the feet of all opposing batters and this study led to an important discovery in the case of Shoeless Joe Jackson, regarded as one of the greatest hitters of all time.

Dubuc noticed that Jackson would scratch the dirt around home plate with his right foot when he was set to swing on a pitch and whenever he scratched he would offer at anything. He never swung without first scratching.

The Tiger pitcher always watched Jackson's right foot and whenever he scratched the dirt, Dubuc would throw a wide, slow pitch. Jackson never hit that pitch safely . . . but he remained a nightmare to every other pitcher in baseball.

Cobb himself was a great student of feet. He studied the feet of pitchers.

He realized early in his career that no pitcher could make a throw to first base or any other base, for that matter, without first turning in the direction of the base. Also the pitcher would be moving his feet while drawing back his arm.

In taking a lead off base, Cobb would keep his eyes on the pitcher's feet. When they turned in the direction of the base, he would scamper back.

He had that marked advantage in base stealing and made the most of it as he wrote one of the two greatest chapters in baseball history with his inspired play.

The other was indelibly written by Babe Ruth!

PAIGE PRESCRIBES TONIC

More Big Names Would Cure Major League Ills

COLUMBUS, O.—(U.P.) Ageless Leroy (Satchel) Paige, here with the Harlem Globetrotters as an added attraction, Saturday prescribed "more big names" as a tonic for ailments of major league baseball.

"There aren't enough big names in baseball anymore to pull the crowds into the park," the former showman pitcher for the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Browns said. "Names like Joe DiMaggio, Ruth, Gehrig and Greenberg."

When asked about a contract offer with Baltimore this year, Paige said, "Why should I take a pay cut? I can name 20 players in the American League and if I couldn't do better than any of them, I wouldn't take a cent—I'd rather play for nothing."

Paige said the Los Angeles Angels of the Pacific Coast League had also tried to sign him this year but wanted to "pay chicken feed."

"Los Angeles will be a major league team," he said. "Maybe not this year, but soon. They've got to promote the game more with the kids and pay more money. I hope the Yankees go on winning for the next 7000 years until the other teams learn they've got to spend money like the Yankees to get good players."

Giles Sees Tight NL Flag Chase

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(U.P.) President Warren Giles Saturday completed his inspection trip of the six National League clubs training in Florida and predicted the tightest pennant race "in years."

"In the 14 years I have been connected with the league, it never has had the balance it has today," Giles said. "Every club has improved, some more than others, but all enough to insure a fine championship race."

He refused to pick a possible winner, except to say "you always have to beat the champions, and those Dodgers will be awfully hard to beat."

Giles was impressed with the rookie crop which the Dodgers, Braves, Cardinals, Phillies, Reds and Pirates have come up with.

"It may not show on opening day when most managers go along with their older players," Giles said. "But put this down for checking later—before the season is a week old you will see more rookies in the National League lineup than you have since 1940."

That was the year Giles became general manager of the Cincinnati Reds. He took over as National League president in August of 1951 when Ford Frick took over as commissioner.

"From the reports I have had on the Giants and Cubs, training in Arizona, and what I have seen of our six clubs here, there isn't going to be an easy touch in the league this year," Giles said.

"I've been especially impressed with our fine crop of rookies. I've never seen such a fine looking group of promising players. And believe me, you are going to be surprised to find out how many of them are going to make the grade."

Giles conceded that the first division clubs—especially the Dodgers, Braves and Cardinals—have been strengthened more than the other teams.

"But that figures," he reasoned, "because in a way building up a baseball club is like building up a hand in draw poker. The better the hand is to start with, the better your chance is to improve it.

"But the clubs with the lesser promising hands, also have filled to a certain extent. That's why I see a close race for this coming season, with a lot of new faces, and the best brand of baseball since the war."

A practicable baseball man, Giles particularly welcomed the new faces.

"It should help our gate, and that is one thing which always can stand help," he said. "Because we have to draw fans to the ball parks to stay in business."

FISTS FLY

Nats Topple Boston '5'

BOSTON—(U.P.) A spirited last half rally gave the Syracuse Nationals the Eastern Division championship in the NBA Saturday as the Nats defeated the Boston Celtics, 83-76, in a game punctuated by a couple of fistic engagements between players.

Bob Harris upended the Nats' Adolph Schayes who was driving in for a basket. Schayes landed on his face. When Wally Osterkorn of Syracuse went after Harris both teams charged onto the floor. Police broke up the mele but moments later Osterkorn took a swing at Boston's Ed MacAuley.

At Rochester, N. Y., Jack Coleman sank a jump shot with seven seconds left to give the Royals a 74-73 victory over the Minneapolis Lakers.

Nats Win in 12th

ORLANDO, Fla. — (AP). The Washington Senators jammed over two runs in the bottom of the 12th inning Saturday to nip the New York Yankees, 7-6. The victory was the Nats' sixth straight and it ended a Yankee skein of five.

The teams were locked in a 5-5 deadlock at the start of the final inning when Gil McDougald slammed a homer over the left field fence. Washington rallied against lefthander Steve Kraley in its half, scoring twice on a single by Mickey Vernon, a triple by Roy Sievers and Jim Busby's sacrifice fly.

Mullin Reassigned

LAKELAND, Fla.—(U.P.) Pat Mullin, a Detroit Tigers outfielder since 1937, came to the end of his major league playing trail Saturday when he was named player-coach of the Buffalo Bisons farm team in the International League.

Mullins, 36, was the oldest player in years and term of service as a Tiger in the Detroit camp this spring. Signed by the late Wish Egan in 1937, he joined the Tigers three years later and has been with the club ever since with the exception of four years in the armed forces from 1942 through 1945.

Aggies Take Mat Crown

NORMAN, Okla. — (AP). The Oklahoma Aggies swept the 24th annual NCAA Wrestling Tournament Saturday night, winning three national individual championships and far outdistancing the field with 32 points.

Pittsburgh came in second with 17 followed by Penn State, defending champion, with 13. Navy was tied for fourth with Iowa at 12 points.

Jack Eliena of UCLA lost to Ken Ellis of Kansas State in a featured heavyweight match by a five to four vote.

Vaughn Chalks Up Routine Decision

HOLLYWOOD — (AP). Willie Vaughn, 162, former state middleweight champion, punched out a routine decision over Petey Servin, 162, in the 10-round main event Saturday night in Legion Stadium.

A flurry of action in the final two rounds saved the match from ranking as one of the dullest of the year. Referee Charley Randolph and Judge Mushy Callahan scored it 58-52 and Judge Tommy Hart 57-53.

Servin has a record of two previous wins over Vaughn.

passed him easily with a lap and a half remaining. He stood off Maynard's closing challenge to win by five yards. Barnes ran fourth.

In the 600 he led all the way to win handily, and his time was 1:10, three-tenths of a second off the Relays record he set here a year ago and a half-second behind his American indoor mark.

Fred Wilt, veteran miler, came from behind on the last lap to win the two-mile event over the world indoor record holder, Horace Ashenfelter of New York, in a photo finish. Time was 9:01.4.

Bums Still Team to Beat in NL

By JACK HAND

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — (AP). Brooklyn still is the team to beat in the National League as the clubs head home after spotty training season, marred by an epidemic of injuries and chill, windy weather.

Don Newcombe's return to '51 form after two years in the Army boosted Dodger stock while Bobby Thomson's unfortunate accident chilled Milwaukee's pennant boom.

Although the addition of ex-Yankee Vic Raschi was a life saver to St. Louis' thin pitching staff, the Cards still are experimenting with rookies at shortstop and first base.

Philadelphia desperately needs infield help to back up Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons and the New York Giants still are not sure how much pitching they will get from Sal Maglie and Larry Jansen, despite Outfielder Willie Mays' return from the Army.

Cincinnati is stabbing for righthanded pitching among a flock of ex-GI and minor league material and Chicago shows no improvement over last year's sorry finish. Pittsburgh, once again an early Grapefruit League leader, does seem to have uncovered some new home run power but it must pick up 15 games to escape the cellar.

Nothing that has happened during spring training has changed the position of Brooklyn as the winter book favorite to win a third straight pennant. The Dodgers are a "set" ball club with no changes, except the addition of Newcombe, a 20-game winner in '51, and a new manager in Walter Alston, up from Montreal.

Perhaps Roy Campanella, Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges won't have such great seasons again, but the Brooks can afford to squander some of their 13-game lead and still make the World Series.

DON NEWCOMBE
Return Boosts Dodgers

Jackie Robinson hasn't been able to play too much but Don Thompson has been doing a fine job in left field. Carl Erskine appears headed for another big year, as does Newcombe. Joe Black has been throwing like the Black of '52.

Thomson's triple ankle fracture was a tremendous blow to Milwaukee's chances, for the Ex-New York Giant was in fine form, hitting the ball hard and anxious to help the Braves get off fast. It may be July before Bobby is back in left field. Danny O'Connell seems to have won the second base job from Jack Dittmer and rookie Hank Aaron, Sally League batting champ at Jacksonville, is making a strong bid for right field.

Manager Charlie Grimm has Chet Nichols back from the Army to make up for Max Surkont. Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle, who were traded in the O'Connell and Thomson deals.

The St. Louis picture is uncertain. Raschi, 35, was purchased from the Yanks for $100,000 to fill the gap left by Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, now in the Army. Manager Eddie Stanky is giving Shortstop Alex Grammas and First Baseman Tom Alston, each a $100,000 purchase, a chance to make the club. But the pitching staff, even with the addition of Raschi, still is Stanky's main problem.

Philadelphia may lose Shortstop Ted Kazanski to the Army any day. Third Baseman Willie Jones is on the hot spot after a .225 season. Earl Torgeson has been a batting whiz but the club still needs secondary pitching, despite the addition of Murry Dickson. It also needs more punch in the batting order.

Mays' return to the Giants was marked by a home run splurge that caused a boom in New York hopes. Maglie, an 8-9 pitcher last year, showed some of his old form in an exhibition start against Cleveland. Jansen also has been throwing freely. Antonelli's early wildness caused much concern. Pitching is the big problem with Manager Leo Durocher.

EDDIE STANKY
Pitching Big Problem

Birdie Tebbetts, Cincinnati's freshman manager, inherited a crew of sluggers led by Ted Kluszewski, Gus Bell and Jim Greengrass. He has capable lefthanded pitching in Harry Perkowski, Fred Baczewski, Jackie Collum and Joe Nuxhall, but must count on Rudy Minarcin and Corky Valentine, two returning servicemen for righthanded strength in a league where righthanded pitching is stressed.

The Cubs may come up with a new double play combination of Gene Baker and Ernie Banks, but Ralph Kiner and Hank Sauer pack the power. Only a great comeback by pitchers like Warren Hacker and Bob Rush can help.

Fred Haney has the usual crop at Pittsburgh, plus such proven professionals as Sid Gordon and Surkont. Outfielder Frank Thomas and Gordon are the only solid hitters on the club, although the Pirates have great hopes for Outfielder Jerry Lynch, drafted from the Yankee chain. In seven games the Pirates hit 24 home runs as compared to 99 for a full 154-game season last year.

BATTLE FOR REBOUND

WRITERS SAY:

Kelly Is NHL's Best

NEW YORK—(U.P.) Leonard Patrick (Red) Kelly, stellar defenseman of the Detroit Red Wings, Saturday was named the National Hockey League's "Player of the Year" in a poll conducted by the United Press.

Sports writers in the six league cities also selected Frank (King) Clancy of the Toronto Maple Leafs as "Coach of the Year" by a margin of one vote over Lynn Patrick of the Boston Bruins, while Goalie Johnny Bower of the New York Rangers was honored as the "Rookie of the Year."

Rate LaStarza-Cockell Bout Even; Turpin on Same Card

LONDON — (AP). American heavyweight Roland LaStarza tackles Britain's bulky Don Cockell at Earls Court Arena Tuesday night—and cagey bookies give them an equal chance.

That's a complete about face by the betting boys. A few days ago the Bronx battler was a hot favorite. "We're not laying odds," said one leading bookie then, "but I'll eat my hat if Cockell wins."

Today that same bookie says it is a "pick 'em" fight. "You can put five dollars down to win four—and that goes for both men. We think their chances of winning are equal."

LaStarza has lost a lot of support from the British sports writers and betting boys because of his "take it easy" training since he arrived in London March 17.

Here's LaStarza's reason: "I know my own body and what it can take. I'm not the kind of fool who doesn't take himself fit into the ring. It's my living. I want it to be a good living."

LaStarza sees his bout against Cockell as a step toward another crack at champion Rocky Marciano. "If we win then we'll be ready to take on anybody blocking the way to a title bout," Manager Jimmy De Angelo said. "Maybe the man to fight will be Dan Bucceroni." Bucceroni and LaStarza have split in two bouts.

Randy Turpin, British and European middleweight champion, fights unranked Ole Bengtsson of Sweden on the same bill. Another supporting fight is between Yolande Pompey of Trinidad, world's fourth ranked light-heavyweight, and Italy's Ivan Fontana.

LATE RALLY FAILS

West Cagers Overcome East, 103-95

NEW YORK—(U.P.) Bob Leonard of Indiana and Arnie Short of Oklahoma City University put on one of the finest displays of college basketball seen in Madison Square Garden this season to lead the West all-stars to a 103-95 victory Saturday night over the East in the annual Fresh Air Fund game.

The West appeared to have a safe 11-point lead early in the third period but the East battled back and pulled even at 87-all on a three-point play by Frank Ramsey of Kentucky midway in the last period.

Lou Tsioropoulos of Kentucky put the East ahead, 91-89, shortly after that but Leonard then produced the game's eighth tie. Cliff Hagan retaliated with a goal for the East to give his team a 93-92 lead, but Short followed with a goal and Dick Farley of Indiana threw in one to give the West a lead it never lost.

Fans Protest as Fiore Decisions Scortichini

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(U.P.). Carmine Fiore of Brooklyn, N. Y., scored a unanimous but bitterly protested 10-round decision over Italo Scortichini of Italy in their nationally-televised fight Saturday night as 5500 fans roared their disapproval in War Memorial Auditorium.

Fiore weighed 147 pounds for the bout while Scortichini tipped the beam at 154¾.

The fans booed continuously for 15 minutes, flooding the ring with paper cups and other litter when the verdict was announced in favor of the blood spattered Brooklynite.

Referee Petey Scalzo called the bout six rounds for Fiore and four for Scortichini. Judge Jack Kimball voted five rounds for Fiore, four for Scortichini and one even. Judge Paul Cummings saw it six-three-one in Fiore's favor.

It was a tough fight but far from a one-sided one. Scortichini opened a cut over Fiore's right eye in the first round and kept blood streaming from the gash all night. Fiore's left side was a mass of welts and bruises but he kept trying to move in on his fast-moving opponent.

Scortichini, for the most part, was content to powder Fiore whenever he moved in but it wasn't a night for a counter-puncher.

There were no knockdowns and Scortichini was unmarked at the conclusion of the bout.

No Alibis for Sauer in '54

MESA, Ariz. — (U.P.). Hank Sauer, on the spot to make a comeback after his 1953 tailspin, promised Saturday he will have no excuses if 1954 turns out to be another "lost year."

"There'll be no alibis," said the towering Cub slugger who won the National League's most valuable player award in 1952.

Although reluctant to discuss 1953, Sauer had three good alibis if he wanted to use them—two breaks on his right hand and a third on the left.

But Sauer would rather talk about those 12 home runs he crashed this winter while traveling with Ed Lopat's all-star team in Japan and his weight.

"I'm all set to roll—I can feel it," Hank said. "I'm at 198 now and never got over 200 during the off-season."

Sauer said the rag-tag Cubs might break into the first division if they get better pitching.

"Do you know what our staff needs?" Sauer asked. "A pitching leader, such as Bob Porterfield is with the Senators and Robin Roberts is with the Phillies. Those guys set the pace and the rest of the pitchers rally around. That would make a lot of difference with this club."

The fact that the Cubs were playing .235 ball after 17 grapefruit league games didn't upset Sauer.

HANK SAUER
Cubs Need Pitching Leader

"Now's the time to make those mistakes when they can't hurt us," he grinned. "The fellows will remember what they did wrong at the same time."

Sauer played in only 108 games last season and his home run total dropped from 37 to 19. He knocked in only 60 runs compared to the league-leading total of 121 when he won the MVP award.

"It will be different this year," he promised, "but I'm not worried so much about myself as seeing the club win. That's the big thing."

Vic, Larsen in Net Finals

MIAMI BEACH — (U.P.). Doris Hart of Miami, No. 2 U. S. women's tennis player, outsteadied her English counterpart, Helen Fletcher, to win the Good Neighbor Tournament's women's singles crown Saturday, 6-4, 6-4.

In the men's division, top-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia downed Miami's Gardnar Mulloy 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, 8-6, in a semi-finals match and will play Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., for the title today.

Patty-Von Cramm Duo Wins

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt. — (U.P.). Former Wimbledon titleholder Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Gottfried von Cramm of Germany defeated Gil Shea of Los Angeles and Enrique Morea of Argentina, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 in the men's doubles finals of the Alexandria Lawn Tennis Tournament Saturday.

In the finals of the women's singles, Egypt's Mrs. B. Abbas volleyed strongly after dropping the first set and went on to defeat Mrs. T. Zehden of Germany, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Mrs. Abbas won the title in 1952.

Jack Arkinstall of Australia and Miss Pat Ward of Britain defeated Fausto Gardini of Italy and Mrs. Zehden, 6-1, 6-4, in a semi-final match of the mixed doubles.

One word leads to another . . . It will take a young deluge of last-minute entries to send the Long Beach Bowling Association over the top in its campaign to set a new record in the State Bowling Championships here in May.

Take it from Alan Alexander, tournament secretary, local backing thus far has been strictly lousy.

Since entries close Thursday, April 1, there will have to be a lot of doing going on early this week to push the entries over the current record of 904 established last year in Oakland if our town is to succeed in its goal.

"The response of local teams has been all too slow," said Alexander. "No more than 100 Long Beach teams have entered to date. We need at least 200—100 more—to help reach our goal of 905 teams.

"Last spring Oakland supported the tournament with 297 teams. We can't hope to come close, not at the present pace. Our bowlers simply aren't responding. No civic pride, I guess."

Alexander has a little less than 500 teams enrolled right now. . . . a far cry from Oakland's 904.

"When we started out we set 1000 teams as our high-water mark," he continued. "It looks like we'll have to settle for several hundred less. And that ain't good for a city of this size. We can do a lot better, but won't."

Fifty-six different cities have sent in entries, ranging from Yuba City way up north to San Diego to the south.

"The rest of the state has been responding nicely," he went on, "but support from our own teams has fallen way below expectations—by a long way."

What's the matter, bowlers? You wanted this ninth annual tournament to be held here. Now do something about it. Fill out an entry blank—pronto! You going to let Oakland show you up?

TRY AS HE MIGHT, Billy Feistner couldn't get the rained-out March 20 Los Angeles-Portland game rescheduled here, so his lone Pacific Coast League promotion this year will be the Angel-Hollywood Star game next Sunday afternoon at Recreation Park.

If the feud between the Hacks and the Bragans doesn't jam-pack the joint to the rafters, then something is radically wrong.

Rained out the better part of last week, both the Angels and Twinks will be tolling at double speed this week in order to reach a physical peak for the opening of the season April 6.

At the moment, Stan Hack's hired hands have a 2-1 spring exhibition edge on Bobby Bragan's crew. L.A. won the opener, 22-6; the Twinks took No. 2, 5-4, and L.A. copped the third meeting, 11-4. It goes without saying that Bragan will shoot the works here next Sunday to square accounts.

Wonder if we could get Joe Hatten and Frankie Kelleher to go a few rounds?

MONDAY WILL BE "happy birthday" day to Denton T. (Cy) Young, one of baseball's immortals.

Young, 22 years in the bigtime, compiled a record of 510 victories and three no-hitters. In 1892 he won 36 games, 34 in '93 and 35 in '95.

He was a 20-game winner 14 straight years. Once he went 23 innings without allowing a basehit.

The Hall of Famer, who will be 87, lives in Newcomerstown, O. Rest assured it will be a quiet celebration.

CALIFORNIA STARTS its '54 football season with Oklahoma at Berkeley Sept. 18. Which means that it won't take Pappy Waldorf long to discover what he's got.

Some coaches might like to start off a little less violently. Not Pappy. Said he, the other day:

"We might as well find out right away which way the wind blows. Bud Wilkinson's boys will show us the way. After Oklahoma, it will be San Jose, Ohio State, Oregon, Washington State, SC, UCLA, Washington, Oregon State and Stanford on successive Saturdays.

"No breathers, as you can see."

EVER WONDER what happened to Rube Novotney, one of the L. A. Angels' more popular catchers of recent years?

Rube is up to his ears in the tavern business in Streator, Ill., and may not play ball this season because he can't spare the time from his enterprise, this, mind you, despite the fact that he was the Southern Association's all-star catcher last season with Nashville.

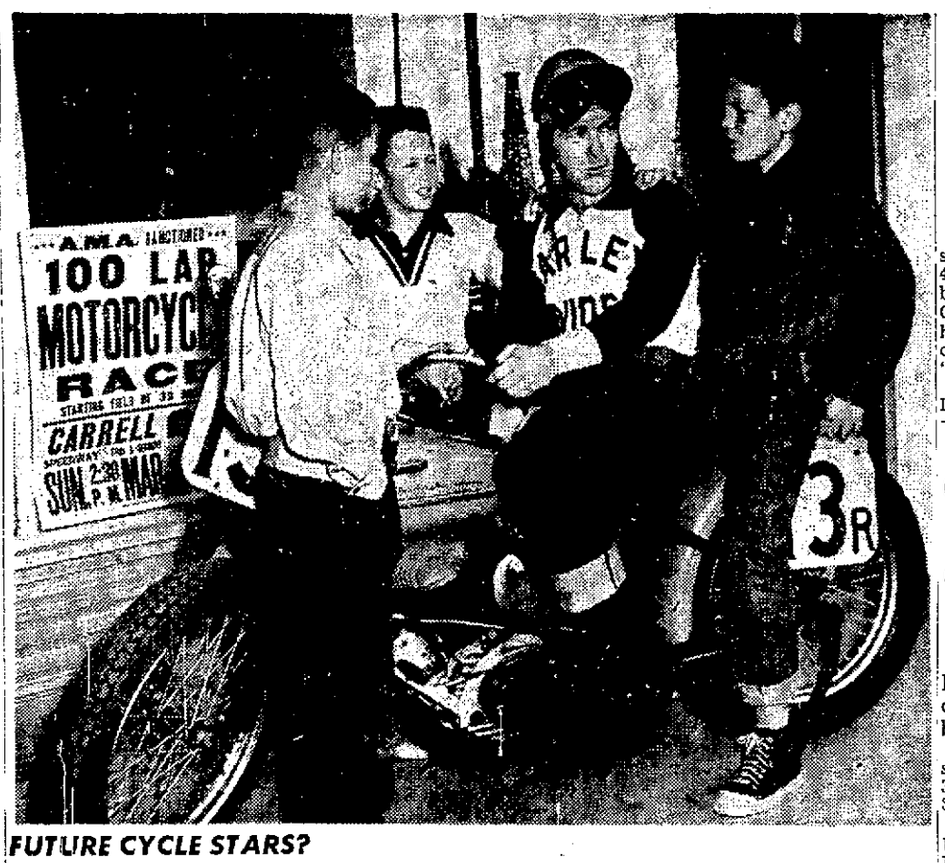

He has signed his '54 contract—at an increase—but may have to stay home and keep the customers happy.

TWO OTHER restauranteers are doing well, thank you.

Warren Spahn, the stylish Milwaukee Braves southpaw, has an eatery in Boston. He reports it grossed $120,000 last year, expects $200,000 in business this year.

FUTURE CYCLE STARS?

More than 200 Independent and Press-Telegram newspaper boys will be guests of Carrell Speedway this afternoon for an action-packed motorcycle racing card. Above, carrier-cycle enthusiasts Dennis Jones (left), Ken Barnes and Larry Powell get advance information from driver Jim Fontaine.

Motorcyclists Roar in 100-Lap Carrell Main

Many of the top motorcycle racers in the two-wheeler go-fast business will be on hand this afternoon when J. C. Agajanian presents the first American Motorcycle Assn. spinfest of the season at Carrell Speedway.

A 100-lapper features the tourist-trophy slate with 32 in the starting field over a new five-eighths mile road racing course.

There'll be four qualifying heats of six laps in which the eight top finishers will win starting positions in the main event. Gates open at 11 a. m. to allow fans to watch warmup laps which are slated to get under way at 12 noon because of the big entry list. Racing starts at 2:30 p. m. There's also a trophy dash slated for the winners of the four heats.

Heading the field of national stars will be Johnny Gibson, Jimmy Phillips, Tex Luce, and Don Hawley, all from Southern California; Joe Leonard of San Jose and Ray Shaffer from Akron, who won the 1953 Ohio state crown and finished fourth in national championship rankings last year. Top amateur star will be Brad Andres, 18-year-old San Diego whiz who moved up from novice ranking this year.

Agajanian has had a tricky course laid out for the cycle stars. It has eight right and left turns, employs part of the regular half-mile auto racing strip with new sections built in the infield.

While the national champions are expected to make their usual good showing this afternoon, there'll be a lot of railbirds keeping a sharp eye on young Andres. The San Diego youngster is considered the brightest prospect to come along in several years. He won the national novice championship at Laconia, Pa., last year among several other top events which moved him up a notch to amateur rating.

Blazing 65 Nets Toski 4-Shot Azalea Lead

WILMINGTON, N. C. — (AP) Little Bobby Toski, the "mighty mouse" of the professional golf circuit, was the "magnificent mouse" Saturday as he ate up the Cape Fear Country Club course with a seven-under-par 33-32—65 round to take a four-stroke lead after 36 holes in the $10,000 Azalea Open Tournament.

Tacked onto his first round 67, Toski's great round gave him a total of 132.

The 127-pounder from Massachusetts, playing out of his brother Ben's Cedar Hills Club in Livingston, N. J., led Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y., and Mike Souchak, former Duke University football player, by four shots heading into today's 36-hole windup.

Playing one of his finest rounds, Toski was only one stroke off the tournament record over the 6652-yard course. He just missed a 10-foot birdie try on the last hole in his bid for the record.

Arnold Palmer, Wake Forest College senior, whose 65 set the first round pace, dropped to 72 and a four-way tie for fourth place at 137, five shots off the pace. Tied with him were Lloyd Mangrum, Ted Kroll and Marty Furgol.

Vikes Whip Bakersfield Nine, 10-1

By DOUG MILES

A 14-hit barrage and excellent pitching by Jim Lee combined to give Long Beach City College a 10-1 triumph over Bakersfield Saturday afternoon in a Metropolitan Conference baseball game on the loser's diamond.

Every Viking hammered out at least one hit in the easy triumph, LBCC's most decisive win over the Renegades since Coach Joe Hicks took over the reins. It was the third consecutive loop victory without defeat for the Norsemen.

Lee scattered five hits but lost a shutout when first-baseman Dick Napier pounded out a long home run in the seventh inning. The Vikings, however, had an 8-0 lead at that time.

Perry Upsets Flam as Bruins, Stars Tie

LOS ANGELES — (AP). Bob Perry, UCLA's number one tennis player, scored a surprise Saturday when he turned in his first victory over Herb Flam, top ranked in Southern California.

The score was 6-2, 6-3 as the Uclans divided a match with the Southern California All-Stars 3-3. The final doubles matches were called because of darkness.

In another feature match, Ron Livingston, UCLA tennis and basketball standout, beat Louis Ayala, champion of Chile, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

COMPTON TOPS 'MODERN' PREP FIVES

Poly Has Best 40-Year Mark

Long Beach Poly High School season-for-season over the past 40 years has produced the finest basketball teams in Southern California, but Compton High has in the past ten years ascended to the top of the list of "modern" prep records.

These facts were brought to light with the completion of a comprehensive survey of high school basketball since 1914, the first such survey ever revealed. It was released exclusively to The Independent-Press-Telegram by James Heartwell, Long Beach businessman and Pacific Coast athletic historian.

After months of research by Heartwell through newspaper files for the past 40 years, statistics for more than 400 playoff games reveal that Whittier Union High School is the only serious challenger to Poly over the near half-century of recorded competition in the Southern California Interscholastic Federation.

CHARLIE CHURCH
Won 7 of 18 Poly Titles

KENNY FAGANS
54 Straight at Compton

In one of the ten classifications — total CIF basketball championships—Whittier has a slight edge. The Poets have copped six to Poly's five. The local Jackrabbits lost to Mt. Carmel in the CIF finals here this month, delaying their total domination. No other school has won more than two.

But Poly leads Whittier in every other classification, averaging a playoff appearance every two years.

10 TYPES OF TITLES

The 40-year study also bridges 10 different types of post-season championships, ranging from the present method of all league champions vieing to a 1928 system that had only the three major leagues (Coast, Bay and Orange County) competing. There was even one year (1934) when 72 schools were in the playoffs.

Charlie Church, present basketball coach at Long Beach City College, tutored Poly to seven of its 18 playoff participations. His clubs of 1932, '38, '35, '39, '40, '41 and '42 made the select post-season tournament. It is, as well, an individual coaching record.

Compton's recent rise was boosted along by the coaching of Kenny Fagans, who produced CIF championship teams in 1951 and '52 and lost to Loyola in the '53 finals. Fagans' teams also ran up a phenomenal win streak of 54 straight. Now vice principal at Centennial High in Compton, Fagans recently has been mentioned prominently for the vacant Stanford coaching job.

In the nine-year postwar period, Ventura has risen to a position just behind Compton. Ventura has been in the playoffs seven of the nine times, with one championship, that coached by Poly High graduate Bob Tuttle whose club ran through 30-odd consecutive games.

VENTURA FOURTH

In order of total playoff appearances the leading trio of Poly, Whittier and Compton is followed by Ventura, Alhambra, Chino and Santa Barbara. After that there is a wide gap before Chaffey, Huntington Park, Redondo Beach, San Bernardino, Santa Monica, Orange, Loyola, Fullerton and Fillmore. Other schools of the Southland trail far back.

Top court performances for the past nine years were turned in by Compton, Ventura and Loyola. Following are South Pasadena, Whittier, Mt. Carmel, Santa Monica, El Monte, Poly and Alhambra. Huntington Beach is 11th and Redondo Beach 12th. Compton's absence from the finals this season was the first in seven years.

Los Angeles City schools do not compete under the CIF and were not included in the survey. Huntington Park, which compiled its impressive mark before entering LA's city system, appeared in eight playoffs in the first 11 years.

8 Sloops Compete in San Diego Race

By BOB RUSKAUFF

Eight sloops, as sleek and slipper as any that ever hoisted a mainsheet, will sail away at 1:30 p. m. today off Balboa in one of the west's oldest and finest boat-for-boat races.

As headliner of a burgeoning spring program of racing, it's the 39th skirmish since 1904 for the $5000 San Diego Lipton trophy.

Defending is the Newport Harbor YC sloop Escapade owned by D. W. (Walt) Elliott of Long Beach, and already a four-time winner of the hoary award.

After her will be five trim PCCs, an eight-meter and a 46-foot sloop from Cabrillo Beach YC, Ken Croan's Akahi. If winds are heavy, the latter yacht is conceded with Escapade, best chance for honors.

In moderate going it will be a toss-up. Others in the challenging array will be:

Santa Monica YC, PCC Diune, Stratford Enright; Los Angeles, 8-meter Yucca, Dr. Don Barber; Balboa, PCC Lark, Carl T. Long; Voyagers, PCC Antigua, Hal Ramser; Santa Barbara, PCC Selene, Ed Vail; and San Diego—original custodians of the trophy—PCC Ballerina, E. Gartzman (Gartz) Gould.

LITTLE SHIPS 2nd

Second of the three spring series races of the Long Beach Little Ships is slated to be sailed, starting 1:30 p. m. over an ocean course today, with upward of 21 contenders.

CLEMENTE RACE UP

Bidding to lure upward of 30 boats, one of the greatest fleets to compete in a sail round the "isles of summer," the three-club-sponsored Voyagers (plus Los Angeles plus Newport Harbor) Yacht Club race around San Clemente (and Catalina) will get underway at 11 a. m. next Saturday, off LAYC at outer harbor.

Finals Today in Girls' Cage Meet

St. Mary's and Mary Star, each paced by one of the tourney's two top scorers, clash today in the championship game of the St. Anthony's Girls' Basketball Tournament in the Saint gym. Tip-off for the tussle is scheduled for 4:30 p. m.

St. Mary's, conqueror of St. Anthony's defending champions, is led by sharpshooter Katherine Stanovich, while Mary McClure sparks the Belles. Each has one-game performances of over 20 points.

St. Anthony's meets Catholic Girls at 2:30 p. m. for fourth place, and in other games St. Bernadine's battles Santa Clara for the consolation championship at 1:30 p. m. and Immaculate Heart shoots for third place against Our Lady Queen of Angels at 3:30 p. m.

Break Cal Shot Mark

BERKELEY — (UP). The University of California track team made a successful debut for the 1954 season Saturday defeating Fort Ord and the Olympic Club of San Francisco in a triangular meet.

Cal scored 79 1-6 points, Fort Ord 57 5-6 and the Olympic Club 23.

Three meet records and one school record were broken.

The meet and school record smashed was by Cal's John Stellern, who put the shot 53 feet 9 inches. The old record of 53 feet 3½ inches was established by Herb Michaels in 1940. Charles Butt of California, who finished second, also broke the old record with a heave of 53 feet 8¼ inches.

The other meet records were set by Bud Held of the Olympic Club and Lon Spurrier of the winning Bears. Held tossed the javelin 227 feet 8½ inches. Spurrier covered the 880 in 1:53.9.

Fort Ord produced many individual standouts. Coach George Brown, former UCLA star, won the broad jump with a leap of 24 feet 10 inches. Chuck Holloway won the low hurdles in 23.7 and was second in the broad jump.

And Ollie Matson, former USF footballer and trackman and member of the last U. S. Olympic Games team, won the 100 and 220 yard dashes in 10.0 and 22, respectively. He was the only double winner of the day.

Coast Club Hosts Synchronized Swimming Meet

The SPAAAU Senior Synchronized Swimming Championships will be staged at the Pacific Coast Club today as part of a gala water show that also will feature six competitive swim races starring some of the country's outstanding performers.

Preliminaries in the sychronized swimming will be held at 1 p.m. while the finals and the races will start at 6 p.m.

Heading the list of men and women swim stars who will compete in freestyle and medley events is Gail Peters, National champion in the breaststroke and individual medley who recently was voted the outstanding woman swimmer of 1953.

Twelve girl swimmers, including Joann Royer, formerly of Long Beach and now from Riverside, have entered the solo competition while eight duets and six teams were entered in the other divisions. Miss Royer was second in last year's National championships.

YMCA 'C,' 'E' Quintets Take Crowns

Two local teams won championships here Saturday in final games of the Southern California YMCA Basketball Tournament, Shorty Kellogg's "C" five whipping Redlands, 44-33, and Bob Cook's North Long Beach "E" club downing Lakewood, 26-11.

Long Beach YMCA "D" team lost to San Bernardino, 47-39, in another final, while Riverside's "B" quintet downed San Bernardino, 48-47, in the fourth game.

Good passing and a tight defence enabled the local Cees to lead throughout. It's the second successive year they were unbeaten through league and tourney competition. Final record was 19-1.

The aggressive, sharp-passing "E" five also led virtually all the way.

Rockets vs. All-Star '9'

The Long Beach Rockets, winners in three of four semi-pro starts this year, return to action at Recreation Park today when they host the Hollywood All-Stars beginning at 2:15 p. m.

Promoter Bill Feistner's locals, managed by Walt Carson, have rolled over three straight foes after dropping their opener.

Larry Jones and Chuck Adams will divide the pitching as usual with Vern Highfield and Walt Klucznick slated to work behind the plate. The Rockets will open with an infield of Ev Pearson, first base; Chuck Winslow, second base; Red Meairs, shortstop; Don Williams, third base, and an outfield of Don Carter, George Selfridge and Don Taylor.

BUCKEYES COP SWIM CROWN

Konno Sets Record in 440-Yard Freestyle

SYRACUSE—(UP) Ohio State's brilliant Ford Konno, Yosbi Oyakawa and Dick Cleveland all scored their second victories of the meet Saturday night to give the Buckeyes the team championship of the NCAA swimming championships.

Konno, who started Ohio State on the way to the title by winning the 1500-meter race Thursday night, clinched the crown with a record-smashing performance in the 440-yard free style.

Earlier, Oyakawa won the 100-yard backstroke event and Cleveland won the 100-yard freestyle by two feet.

Dave Hawkins, Australian-born Harvard star, also scored his second individual victory of the meet when he beat Michigan State's John Dudeck at the wire in the 100-yard breaststroke while defending champion Bumpy Jones of Michigan repeated in the 150-yard individual medley.

Konno turned in a spectacular clocking of 4:28.6 to set a new NCAA and intercollegiate record while defeating Michigan's Jack Wardrop by 12 yards. Konno's time bettered the meet mark of 4:30.2 set by John Marshall in 1951 but was a half second short of Marshall's world's record.

Oyakawa spurted in the final 15 yards to overtake Fred Bautz of Purdue and win by four feet in 57 seconds flat.

Cleveland added the 100-yard title when he caught John Glover of Dartmouth and won by two feet in 50 seconds flat.

YANK FOES BELIEVE THEY HAVE CHANCE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — (AP). Is the great New York Yankee pennant winning machine finally beginning to sputter? Are the stars who have spearheaded the club to five straight world championships finally beginning to show signs of wear and tear? Have the players become rich and fat and smug and satisfied as has been implied in some quarters? In short, are the Yankees ready to be taken?

The answers will be a long time coming but for the first time in years, Yankee rivals seriously believe they have a chance. Such a Yankee setback would be welcomed by millions of baseball fans whose reaction to the club's repeated successes has been: "It's time for a change."

Openly gleeful over the Yankees' dismal showing in spring exhibition games, rival clubs are convinced this is the year of the new look in the American League standings.

Wise old Bucky Harris and Freddie Hutchinson, a pair of managers who have no pennant illusions of their own, already have joined such contending team pilots as Al Lopez, Paul Richards and Lou Boudreau in the belief the Yankees can be beaten this year. Even Manager Casey Stengel agrees the Yankees will have a very hard time winning the pennant if the other clubs have improved.

Have the other clubs improved? And how much? Also, how much have the Yankees deteriorated, if any?

Cleveland, runnerup to the Yankees the past three seasons, has virtually the same team that finished 8½ games behind the champions last year.

Chicago, with improved pitching and a more concentrated attack than last year, could replace the Indians as the Yankees' chief challenger.

Boston's position depends upon how soon Ted Williams recovers from his collarbone fracture. If the slugging outfielder can return to the lineup by May 1, the Red Sox can be a darkhorse contender.

The acquisition of southpaw Maury McDermott and Outfielder Tom Umphlett from Boston is generally regarded as a good trade for Washington. But the Senators still lack that long ball hitter.

Detroit has an improved club but still lacks a lefthanded power hitter, a dependable catcher and team speed.

Philadelphia has a new manager, several new faces and a new attitude but has the same old troubles. The pitching is the big question mark.

The only thing certain about the Baltimore Orioles, newest member of the league, is that they will have a sellout for their home season opener with Chicago.

17,925 Watch Shively Drive Scottish Chief to Pace Win

ARCADIA — (UP). Scottish Chief, driven by 76-year-old Bi Shively, surprised the favorites and the season's largest crowd to win the $12,000 San Diego Pace in the harness feature at Santa Anita Saturday.

Scottish Chief took the lead on the backstretch in the mile race and stood off the challenge of the betting choice, Irish Hal, to win by a half-length in the bunched finish.

Irish Hal took the place by a three-quarter length over Pilma's Widower in the nine-horse field.

The winner returned $17, $7.10 and $5. Irish Hal paid $3.10 and $2.50 and Pilma's Widower $4. The time was 2:02 3/5.

Shively had Scottish Chief well placed rounding the first turn, rushed up fast to take command and set the pace from then on in. Irish Hal lacked running room on the inside entering the stretch, came out from between horses in the final furlong, but could not catch the winner.

Scottish Chief earned $6,000 with second worth $2400, and third $1800.

The crowd of 17,925 wagered $1,032,862, highest wagering total in the history of daytime harness racing, exceeding the previous high of $1,002,429 set in 1947 at Hollywood Park by WHRA. The crowd was the largest to watch a harness racing card in Southern California since Memorial Day in 1950.

Saturday's win was a belated birthday present for the veteran Shively, who celebrated his 76th birthday Friday.

Stretch Drive Collars Cyclotron at Wire

SAN MATEO — (UP). A. J. Crevolin's Decorated, given a great stretch ride by veteran Jockey Johnny Longden, won the 22nd running of the $25,000 Bay Meadows Handicap Saturday as he collared Cyclotron at the wire to win by a nose.

Cyclotron had a length and a half lead with 200 yards to go when Longden put Decorated into a strong drive, and apparently caught Cyclotron and Jockey Ray York napping.

The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:43 4/5 on a track labeled "good."

A length and a half behind Cyclotron came the early leader, Southarlington, followed by the favored Berseem.

Decorated, a longshot in the field of eight horses, paid $17.70, 7.40 and $5.60 across the board. Cyclotron paid $3.90 and $3.40 while Southarlington paid $7.60 to show.

With the victory Crevolin, considered by many the luckiest man racing on the West Coast now, retained the money-winning leadership of the nation. He also owns Determined, one of the Kentucky Derby favorites.

The victory was only the seventh in 30 starts for Decorated and was worth $16,500 to Crevolin. It brought Decorated's all-time earnings to $107,135.

A late scratch from the race was the heavily favored Imbros, world record holder for seven furlongs. His owner decided that the impost of 125 pounds was too much. Decorated carried only 112 and Cyclotron 117.

It was an eventful day at Bay Meadows. The attendance, 25,320, was the largest in history. The mutuel handle for the daily double was $85,250—an all-time record for Northern California.

Earlier in the day, the fine Calumet colt, Arrogate, won his first outing as a three-year-old when he annexed a $4000 purse. It was his fifth consecutive victory. He is not eligible for the Kentucky Derby, but has been nominated for the Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Willie Shoemaker was forced to cancel his mounts Saturday because of a knee injury.

Double Speed Poor Third to Ring King

LAUREL, Md.—(AP). Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Ring King, an absentee from the triple crown races, brought grief to the undefeated California invader, Double Speed, by winning Saturday's Cherry Blossom Stakes.

Double Speed's Kentucky Derby hopes took a big dip as he finished third, 5½ lengths back of the winner.

Brae Burn Farm's War Piper, the only triple crown eligible among the nine starters, was second.

Double Speed showed none of the vaunted flash of last year, when he won all four starts in California. Winning time for the six furlongs was a mediocre 1:14.

The crowd of 26,608, which had bet $102,586 on Double Speed out of a total of $172,586, booed Jockey Pete Moreno and Double Speed upon their return for unsaddling.

Double Speed, who had led from start to finish in his four California races as a 2-year-old, never did get into the lead.

Jockey Moreno complained he "was bumped at the head of the stretch, sulked and wouldn't extend himself."

Jockey Nick Shuk, aboard War Piper, also reported being bumped at that point.

Brazil, Christy Team in Aud Championship Match

A tag-team tournament that will produce a pair of Long Beach Wrestling Club champions—as well as challengers to the Pacific Coast title—will feature Thursday night's mat show at the Municipal Auditorium.

Bobo Brazil, a gigantic South African making his first appearance locally, is teamed with Vic Christy in the first bout. They will oppose Killer Karl Davis and The Great Bolo in a one-hour match.

Brazil stands 6-6 and weighs 275 pounds.

It will be a belated appearance for Bolo. He was scheduled last week, but was a last-minute withdrawal when his doctor denied permission to work on a swollen, infected leg.

Bout No. 2 has Tom Rice and Jack McDonald against Leo Garibaldi and Ray Stevens. Garibaldi, the U. S. Air Force man who gets into a ring less often than he would like, made a triumphant return to Long Beach Thursday.

The two winning teams collide in bout No. 3 for the club championship for 1954. The following week they meet Sandor Szabo and Wilbur Snyder for the Pacific Coast Television championship.

A two-cut-of-three preliminary bout has also been carded. Jackie Nichols will meet Pepe Pesquale for a 30-minute time limit.

Top Trainers Here for Los Alamitos Meeting

The first five trainers in the national standings last year and 14 of the first 15 will have stables at Los Alamitos Race Course for the 22-day all-quarter horse race meeting scheduled April 9 through May 8.

The first five were Ralph Banks, Guy Purinton, Ivan Frey, Lee Dooley and Farrell Jones.

All but Jones were among the leaders at Los Alamitos last year.

Jones had a stable on the grounds but it belonged to Frank Vessels Sr., the president and general manager of the track, and Vessels refused to run any of his horses at his own race course.

Purinton, who led the Los Alamitos meeting, and Banks finished in a dead heat for national honors, eight winners in front of the rest of the field.

This is the first time in quarter horse racing history that so many national leaders have been at one meeting.

Steeplechase to Royal Tan

AINTREE, England — (UP). Royal Tan, a determined veteran from Ireland who had failed twice before, won the 108th Grand National Steeplechase Saturday in a thrilling race that brought death to three of the 29 starters.

The 10-year-old Royal Tan, who stumbled at the final fence in 1951 while leading and fell at the same barrier in 1952, came through with silks flying this time in the world's greatest steeplechase.

Royal Tan outfought Tudor Line in a tingling stretch duel and just made it under the wire by a slim neck margin. Irish Lizard, the post-time favorite at 15-2, finished third another 10 lengths behind. Royal Tan paid 8-1. Tudor Line 10-1.

Only nine of the starters finished, and four, including the pre-race favorite, Coneyburrow, will not race again. Coneyburrow, 7-1 overnight favorite who went off as the joint second choice with Royal Tan, was so seriously injured in a tumble three fences from home that he was later destroyed.

LeBlanc Out for 'Listless' Ride

SAN MATEO, Calif.—(UP). Veteran jockey Euclid LeBlanc was suspended Saturday for the rest of the Bay Meadows racing meet and his case referred to the California Horse Racing Board.

The suspension came as a result of an "unsatisfactory ride" aboard Can Locate on March 13.

According to the Meadows Board of Stewards, pictures of the race clearly showed LeBlanc did not persevere with his mount at any stage of the race. Can Locate was entered for $5000 and ran sixth, beaten by nine lengths. He was 41 to 1.

Prep Nines Open Hot Loop Race

The tightest Coast League baseball race in the loop's four-year history—on paper—makes its debut Tuesday afternoon with several "crucial" contests on the opening day card.

No. 1 tilt will be at Downey, where Wilson's undefeated Bruins — pre-season favorite to unseat defending champion Compton—meet the highly-rated Vikings, who sport an outstanding 10-1 won-lost record. Bruin ace Gorden Seyfried will hurl against Downey's Bill Guier.

In other games Lynwood is at Jordan and Poly hosts Excelsior. Loop tennis teams also follow the same schedule.

It's also a big week in the prep track department, with last week's rained out meets doubling up on scheduled events. A Poly-Jordan inter-city class highlights the slate.

Possibly the outstanding jaycee track meet of the season is on tap Friday at East Los Angeles JC as the three contenders for the Metropolitan Conference title—LBCC, Valley and East LA—battle it out for top spot.

Week's schedule:

MONDAY

Track—Wilson at Lynwood, Jordan at Compton, both 3 p. m.
Golf—LBCC at Santa Monica, 1 p. m.

TUESDAY

Baseball—LBCC at Santa Monica, 3 p. m.; Wilson at Downey, St. Anthony's at Loyola, Lynwood at Jordan, Excelsior vs. Poly at Recreation Park, all 3:15 p. m.

Stretch Burst Nets Pictus 'Cap Victory

LINCOLN, R.I. — (UP) Pictus, Ralph Lowe's consistent six-year-old, scored his sixth victory in 10 trips to the post this year when he overtook fading Grover B. only yards from the wire Saturday to win the $10,000 Woonsocket Handicap at Lincoln Downs.

The speedy son of Pictor, who won both the Inaugural Handicap and the Providence Handicap here, ran erratically throughout the seven furlong event but saved a burst of speed for the finish to win by half a length over Noch Eins, who also passed Grover B. Pictus paid $7.40, $3.40 and $2.60 across the board.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Irvine Lake, nearest fresh-water fishing resort to Long Beach, will open Wednesday morning for a season that is expected to be short because of low water. Chances are that it will close sometime in July.

Indications point to good fishing at Irvine and April should be the top bass-fishing month. The bass will be busy spawning then and all anglers know what a bass will do to a lure that comes near a nest. Hungry or not, the bass will strike furiously.

There are thousands of bluegill and crappie in Irvine. Many are small but there are big ones there, too.

I had a preview trip at Irvine recently as the guest of C. H. Stevenson and caught all three varieties. We released two or three dozen small crappie and bluegill that attacked various kinds of lures.

Live bait will not be permitted at Irvine. Worms and licut are all right, but you really don't need those.

There are several kinds of lures that will bring results there. C. H. prefers the Under Wonder, a new metallic spinner-type lure made by a company in Whittier.

However, I found that Go-getter, Super Duper, Hot Shot and Lucky Lady also were attractive to all the fish. Bombers always are good plugs for the bass if you want to get down deep.

BATTLE OF THE PLUGS

The constant battle among the manufacturers of fishing lures is most interesting. I can remember when the Flatfish was all the rage. It still catches fish, but the anglers always are shifting their interest to new ones.

The Hot Shot, in various sizes and colors and produced by Eddie Jope & Co. of Altadena, has been a terrific lure for all kinds of fresh-water fish and some anglers have tried it in the ocean with good results. I found that the yellow metallic and the silver types drove the crappie crazy at Irvine—that is, until I left both lures on snags, trying to run deep for bass.

Now comes the Lucky Lady, a sensational lure made by Vera Chadd of Los Angeles. It resembles the flatfish, but is far more colorful and has a terrific action in the water. It is of plastic and has an inner glow that can be seen far away.

In one way, it is the most unusual lure on the market. The manufacturer guarantees that, if fished along with other lures at the same time, it will catch more fish. If not, the maker offers a 10-for-1 money-back guarantee.

IRVINE'S WILDLIFE

Don't be surprised if you see deer coming down to drink while you are fishing Irvine. There are several in the hills and we saw one closeup. There are raccoons and rabbits. Even a mountain lion tried sleeping in Stevenson's open garage shed for a few nights until it was frightened away.

The lake is a part of the Irvine ranch properties and no hunting has ever been allowed there. That's one reason you'll see lots of game. We saw and heard quail at nearly every cove.

Stevenson is doing a wonderful job of keeping Irvine stocked. He has his own hatchery for bass, crappie, bluegill and catfish. Later in the season he will import trout to augment the natural fish in the lake.

He will keep the lake open every day until the water demands of lands below the dam force its closure. Enough water will be kept there to maintain the fish life through the closed period until the 1955 season.

THE TACKLE BOX

The first week end at Crowley Lake is a sellout, the second week end is practically the same and later week ends are going like hotcakes, says the Los Angeles Recreation and Park Dept. If you're interested in obtaining boats there for other week ends and for week days, apply in person at Room 225, Los Angeles City Hall. Telephone calls may be made to MIchigan 5211, or letters may be addressed to the L. A. Recreation and Park Dept., Room 305, Los Angeles City Hall, Los Angeles 12.

If you're planning frog hunts this season, remember that a state fishing license is required for the first time. The 1953 Legislature made that ruling official. Frog season runs from March 1 to Nov. 30, except in six Southern California Counties where the season opens June 1.

Silver Lakes Ranch, private group of ponds near Corona, is planning a big week end for Saturday and Sunday, featuring a coon-on-a-log contest, tracking competition, barbecue, square dances, horn-blowing contest, dog show and a cat race.

In case you are not interested in any of those, you can pay the fee and try your luck for trout, crappie or bass, even though fishing there has been rather slow recently.

PAUL SCHAEFFER JR. . . . Southland Champion

YOUNGEST IN NATIONALS

11-Year-Old L.B. Lad Is Table Net Whiz

By JERRY HALL

He just turned 11 years old last month but already Paul Schaeffer Jr., has competed in the national table tennis championships, won the Greater Los Angeles and all-Southern California Open tournaments and made up his mind about his adult future. Which is fairly extensive and quite ambitious for one who has not yet reached his teens.

His major accomplishment, the nationals at Kansas City last year, was not a victorious one, but it is remarkable in that he sets his name down in the records as the youngest entrant in the history of the all-American event.

Paul had been playing table tennis only two months when he went into the nationals. He was barely 10 years old and lost to a tall 14-year-old. "I don't know how good he is now," says Paul, "but I've sure learned a lot since then. I'd like to meet him again."

The youngster began playing table tennis a year ago under the instruction of his father, who was only learning the game himself. "Daddy hit a bowling slump so he decided to try something else," said Paul Junior. "But he's a lot better than me," he admits with sincere modesty. "I don't think I'll ever catch up with him."

COMPETITION HELPS

Only four-feet, three-inches tall—not much higher than his dog—"Paully" is the only boy in the Long Beach club, so must go to Los Angeles and Santa Monica for competition in his own age group. But he thinks maybe the tougher competition may have helped his game.

"Oh, I'm not the best player in the Long Beach club," he hastens to explain when he shows the two-foot-high trophy he recently won. "This is a handicap trophy. Heck, there are lots of players better than me."

But there are few players better than he in his own age range. In fact he already holds championships in the 15-year bracket of the Greater Los Angeles, Hollywood and Long Beach Open.

LINED WITH TROPHIES

The walls of the Schaeffer home at 4946 Daisy Ave. are lined with trophies the Pauls junior and senior have collected at table tennis over the past two years. In fact, their new house was built to strict specifications so the prizes could be accommodated and a full table tennis court would be handy in the rumpus room.

But the major concern around the Schaeffer home right now is not the coming national tournament. It's the report cards that are due from Paully's fifth grade teacher at John Sutter School in North Long Beach. "I usually do okay on grades," he said with the careful confidence he displays in sports. (His mother says he does very well, indeed.)

As to his future, that's all mapped out.

"I want to be a baseball player or a sports writer. Either way you get in free."

Rifle Conclave Draws Six Area Delegates

WASHINGTON — Six Southern Californians are scheduled to attend the 83rd annual meeting of the National Rifle Assn. here this week end.

They include Mrs. Gladys Rising, Compton; James E. Serven, Santa Ana; Capt. and Mrs. Basil Starkey, Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Weatherby, South Gate.

PARTICULARS

by JERRY WYNN

Seventy-seven-year-old W. P. Edwards, 110½ Termino Ave., shot a 75, his all-time low round, at Recreation Park recently.

A Park regular, Edwards has been golfing for 20 years.

Asked for a formula for his success:

"Patience," replied Edwards.

J. C. CUNNINGHAM of the Griffith Park Men's Club is this year's recipient of the Southern California PGA's annual Gold Card award for outstanding and unselfish contribution to golf.

Cunningham has been one of the most devoted workers to the betterment of Publinx play and has a record of long years of service in that organization.

For seven years he was a Publinx director; from 1946-1948, a delegate to the Publinx championship; 1947-1949, tournament chairman, and in 1950 was elected to the presidency. He still remains active, serving on the March of Dimes Golf Committee this year.

Past winners of the award which is emblematic of an honorary life membership in the SC PGA are Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Arthur K. Bourne, Scotty Chisholm, Olin Dutra, Willie Hunter, Darsie L. Darsie, Normal Chandler, Billy Bell, Joe Novak, Midge Midgley, Marvin Clawson, Pat Patterson and Long Beach's George Lake.

ALTHOUGH GOLF and not gambling will be Las Vegas' big attraction comes Tournament of Champions time at the Desert Inn next month, an early betting line has been established.

Chandler Harper, the smooth-shooting Virginian, who's having an exceptionally fine year, is quoted as a 4-1 favorite with Cary Middlecoff second at 5-1.

At 6-1 comes Lloyd Mangrum, Dutch Harrison, Ted Kroll, Doug Ford and Lew Worsham. Gene Littler stands alone at 10-1 while Walt Burkemo, Dave Douglas, Ed Furgol and defending champion Al Besselink are 12-1. Bob Toski is 15-1 and bringing up the rear at 20-1 are Fred Wampler, Dick Mayer, Art Wall Jr. and Shelly Mayfield.

We list these strictly for information as a newspaper lists all odds. Plainly and categorically we say anyone who bets on a golf match is plumb crazy. The form just does not hold up.

TWO LONG BEACH teams—the Virginia Men's Club and the Elks No. 888—participate in important playoff rounds today.

Capt. Bill Cook's red-hot Virginia linksmen will meet Annandale at Red Hill Country Club in the quarterfinals of the SCGA team championships with Julie Bescos replacing Jim Ferrie on the No. 1 team with Del Walker for the second straight week. Ferrie is competing in the Bakersfield Produce Tourney.

The Elks will tee off at Meadowlark in the finals of the Joe Semper Tournament with Ray Henry, J. W. Whitten, Bob Baker, Doc Combs, Bo Wilson and Vance Clark representing the locals against Huntington Park.

A SHORT COURSE—SC PGA Pro-President dinner and tourney will be held at Brentwood CC Tuesday. All local clubs will be represented. . . . "My old enthusiasm is back," said Bobby Locke in announcing he will take one last crack at the U. S. Open this year. . . . Good to see Bryce McCabe back on the job at the Virginia golf shop after suffering a bad fall. . . . Meadowlark plans a big Mixed Scotch foursome next Sunday which will be open to the public. Call Rollie Sims for entry before Wednesday.

HOLE-IN-ONE department features a novel twist as Dick Linn of 35 56 Place shot from the 18th tee at Recreation Park Saturday. The ball was pushed far to the right on to the 14th green and plunk into the 14th hole!

But there wasn't anything crooked about the ace of L. V. Cassady of 4261 Country Club Drive and the Virginia Men's Club on the 141-yard 15th hole at Virginia Saturday. It went straight as a whistle.

DR. J. K. HUNTER fired a gross 76 for a nifty net of 64 to win the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes by one stroke over John Connelly, 73-8.

Dr. L. D. Mahannah was third, 77-11—66. John Cooper, 84-17, and J. L. Reed, 82-15, tied for fourth at 67; Stewart Small, 78-10, F. W. Robinson, 76-8, Roy Spawr, 73-5, George Reeves, 87-19, were all bunched at 68, and last low net of 69 was annexed by F. M. Boswell, 77-8, J. G. Clock, 79-10, and Ted Drake, 84-15.

The blind bogey (73) went to Tom Forster, W. J. Hamilton, Jim Crooker, J. E. Shakelton, Lowell Overlook, George Rochester and Norman Lucas.

A mixed scotch foursome will be held at the club today.

Outhit Sam? Drizzler Play Under Way

Outslam Sam?

A nation-wide golf chain reaction was set off last Saturday, when Slammin' Sammy Snead, one of the sport's longest drivers, drove three balls distances of 273, 272 and 266 yards at the Normandy Shores Golf Club in Miami.

For with Snead's smashes began the Drizzler Driving Contest, sponsored nationally by McGregor Sportswear and locally by Buffums', to determine the nation's outstanding amateur "woodsmen".

Before you laugh at your chances of approaching Snead's 270 yards, a handicap system will apply with either your established club handicap or composite of recent scores serving to bolster your effort.

Full details and explanation along with "I outslammed Sam" entry forms are now available at Buffums'. A National Rules Committee of Gene Sarazan, Cary Middlecoff and Snead has been established to supervise the contest.

First prize will be a free all-expense week at the Greenbrier Hotel in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, including transportation and daily lessons from Snead.

In addition there will be 49 other prizes and every entrant attesting to the fact that he "outslammed Sam" will receive a plastic golf bag tag, autographed by Snead.

The contest is open to all amateurs, regardless of sex or age. Golfers may take their driving test on either public or private courses or driving ranges. Playoffs will be held under controlled conditions at designated clubs throughout the nation. The contest closes April 26.

It's really quite simple. All you have to do is . . .

Banner Year for Walker's in 1953; Gains Continuing

Reporting that 1953 was the banner year for business for Walker's, Howard Conrad, president of the big downtown department store, told stockholders that already this year business gains are eclipsing records.

When the stockholders met Friday for their annual session and re-elected officers, they were asked by Conrad to relieve him of the added duties of general manager, and Clarence Miller, vice president and secretary, was named to this position.

CLARENCE MILLER
Becomes Walker's General Mgr.

Conrad also revealed that more than 50 employes have taken advantage of his offer to sell them preferred stock until at this time more than 98 per cent of the total common and preferred stock is held by active employes of the Fourth and Pine Ave. store.

"I feel that much credit for our business gains must go to the expansion and modernization programs which took place in 1952 and 1953 which included installation of five new escalators and the new departmental arrangements," said Conrad.

"These changes and the new and extensive parking facilities offered less than a block away have made shopping much easier for patrons. And, furthermore, a big factor had been the general attitude and efforts of our employes, making us known as the friendly store.

"We now have launched an aggressive campaign for 1954 and are getting results. For the first two months our gains over the same period last year were near phenomenal. I am confident that we will see another record year in 1954."

The stockholders re-elected the incumbent directors, Conrad, Mrs. Conrad, Joseph F. Bishop, Leo Malco and Miller.

Officers are Conrad, president; Miller, vice president and secretary; Bishop, vice president and treasurer and Malco, vice president and assistant secretary and treasurer.

MILLER IS ELEVATED

Since the store was founded, 21 years ago, Conrad has been general manager. Serving as both president and general manager, he told the directors he would prefer being relieved of the latter. Miller then was appointed.

Joining Walker's in 1938 as buyer and manager of the ready-to-wear department, Miller was later advanced to merchandise manager of the "Second Floor of Fashion." The past three years he has been general sales and merchandise manager.

In accepting the new responsibility, Miller said that because of his long association with Conrad, who remains as president, and his knowledge of business gains with Conrad at the helm, the same general policies will be continued.

Miller will continue to fill the position of general sales and merchandise manager.

In 1953 Conrad acquired all of the common and preferred stock held by the estate of the late Eliza F. Walker. Soon afterwards Bishop, who came to Walker's when they took over Marti's Store in 1933 and who has been in the Fourth and Pine location since 1925, and Miller and Malco all purchased a block of common and preferred stock from Conrad and became directors of the corporation. It also was announced at that time by Conrad that he later would make preferred stock available to all employes who were interested.

OFFERED STOCK

Early this year employes were called together and plans were outlined whereby they could purchase preferred stock. At another meeting Saturday more than 50 employes took advantage of the offer and made their purchases.

"At the present time more than 98 per cent of the total common and preferred stock is now held by active employes of the store," said Conrad.

"Employes will be offered another opportunity to purchase shares of this preferred stock at a future date. Ultimately, we hope that every employe will be a stockholder. It is this association with the employes, giving them a share of ownership, that is developing Walker's as the friendly store."

Conrade stressed that with the increased business he needed to devote full time to the presidency and thus was relieved of some of the extra duties with the appointment of Miller.

"I am proud of the growth of Walker's during our 21 years of business and I am especially proud of the friendly personnel who through their loyalty and interest in our success are such an integral part of our growth."

Two More Big Units of Los Altos Ready

Rounding out the complete community for families of any size or income, Los Altos Realty, Inc., sales agents for the vast L. S. Whaley development, today will preview its newest development of $9950 homes which can be purchased for $450 down by non-vets as well as veterans.

At the same time they will have another gala showing of the larger homes in the 16th and 17th units at 2800 Bellflower Blvd., while in Park Estates there are some luxury offerings in the $25,000-and-above class.

For the newest section, Whaley's 18th unit, two model homes will be open at Anaheim St. and Studebaker Rd., both furnished by Aaron Schultz. It had been planned to have more of the models in this area open but rain interfered. However, salesmen will be able to show plans for the complete unit which is adjacent to the $25,000,000 State College campus.

Both sponsors and buyers at Los Altos have indicated the likelihood of a community development similar to that of Westwood, which grew around UCLA.

Sales office for both the 16th unit, which is nearing the point of sellout, and the new 17th unit, which continues its popular stylings, terms and prices, is situated at 2800 Bellflower Blvd., south of Spring St., just north of the Los Coyotes Diagonal.

WIDE CHOICE GIVEN

This unit, with 350 homes, offers choice of two to four bedrooms, one or two baths, with prices from $11,730, and both VA and FHA terms available.

Offered also in both 16th and 17th units is the three-bedroom, two bath, extra-multiple-purpose-room home, priced from $14,495. It is available to both vets and non-vets on FHA terms.

Features of the 16th and 17th unit homes include thermostat-controlled heat, extra-large lots, custom-made natural-finish wood cabinets, spacious wardrobe closets, Hallmack bathroom fixtures, Waste-King garbage pulverators, double garages, selected hardwood floors, double sinks, decorated sink-tops with swing spouts.

Homes in the new 18th unit, under construction by Heers Associates, well-known for major residential building programs in both Riverside and Las Vegas, are situated along both sides of Studebaker Road, between Atherton and Anaheim Sts.

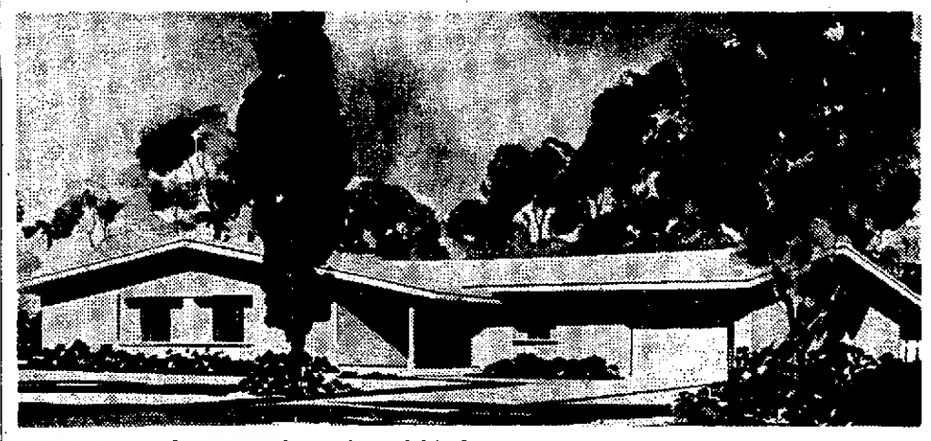

HAS 560 HOMES

These are three-bedroom, two-bath homes, priced at $9950 and offered to both vets and non-vets on move-in payment of $450, with monthly terms of $84.27 for principal, interest, taxes and insurance. There are 560 homes in the unit in a wide variety of stylings, floor plans and color schemes.

Features include indoor-outdoor living facilities, central hall plans, shoulder-high bedroom windows, ceramic tile stall showers, creek-resistant compressed-plaster inner walls, planned seclusion from traffic, wide overhangs for greater summer coolness and step-saving kitchens with natural-finish cabinets.

With ornamental street lights, sewers, paved streets, sidewalks, curbs, gutters and other well-engineered improvements throughout, Los Altos was recently the winner of the National Award for Planned Communities.

Move in for $450 Down

OFFERING A PREVIEW opening of his latest track, Lloyd S. Whaley today will have two model homes on display, similar to this architect's sketch, at Anaheim St. and Studebaker Rd. The three-bedroom, two-bath homes will sell for $9950 with only $450 required to move in for both veterans or non-veterans. He is also showing another unit of larger homes at 2800 Bellflower Blvd.

Spacious Homes in Demand

With increased business and population growth in Southern California, there is a trend in demand toward more spacious three and four bedroom homes, according to Morrie Crawley, sales manager for Lifetime Homes, Chapman Ave. in Garden Grove. Two bathrooms are another feature much in demand by home seekers. The California home buyer is discriminating, Crawley continued, and requires such features as insulated ceilings which kept homes cool in summer and minimize heating costs in winter. Lifetime Homes were especially planned with these requirements in mind.

Planned for spaciousness at sensible cost on easy terms, these three and four-bedroom homes with a choice of one, one and one-half, or two baths are priced from $12,250 F.H.A. There is no down payment (impounds only) for veterans. A furnished model home is open.

Highway Plans to Be Discussed

Using pictures to illustrate his talk, Lawrence McCondville of the State Highway Department will be the speaker at the Realty Board breakfast Tuesday morning at Lafayette Hotel. Verne Morrill, program chairman, made the arrangements. The speaker will tell of the highways and freeways being established or planned in this area. Arnold Berg will preside.

Gala Opening for Baker Store

New Realty Service

Owners wanting a quick sale of their property will be aided through a new plan inaugurated by the Long Beach Board of Realtors to advertise the property.

The program was devised by the Multiple Listing Service, Howard La Bountie, setting it up, to make real estate a more liquid commodity.

Eleven evaluation committees have been formed, five men to a committee. They inspect over 75 properties a week, listed by owners with realtors and placed on the specialized service of multiple listing.

The committee will pick one property of each of the 11 areas, which include all of Long Beach, Lakewood and Dominguez. If that property meets specifications of overall appearance, marketability and highest buyer appeal, the realtor with the original listing is eligible to give the property top preference, rating exclusive attention as the "best" value of the week.

It will appear in the new feature in classified display advertising of the Independent-Press-Telegram with the actual photograph of the property.

This new service gives the property owner a streamlined technique in selling, a modern advance in real estate methods. Multiple listing is a consolidation of established firms of realtors to stimulate quicker sales of property.

Casas Lindas Estates Holds Preview Showing of Tract

California traditional exteriors, with redwood siding and stucco combined in a variety of treatments, are highlighted by interesting roof lines.

Among the features of the homes are two bathrooms, Touch Plate lighting systems with master control panel, forced-air heating, landscaped lots with wide set-back lines, rockwool insulation, and 2-car garages.

Demand Genuine Plaster and Lath

"This Seal is your assurance that the genuine plaster and lath walls and ceilings in this structure have been inspected and certified for quality of product and workmanship by the Southern California Plastering Institute."

In these few words lies the basis of a wise home investment. What makes a Southern California Plastering Institute Certified Plaster and Lath wall superior? Many qualities. Unrivaled beauty, year after year through the decades . . . rock-like firmness . . . clean, vermin-proof . . . History's earliest building material, improved on through centuries — now bonded with lath for unmatched durability . . . holder of the full One-Hour American Standard Fire Rating — the most precious 60 minutes you may ever know . . . sound reducing . . . more economical.

Let your ears tell you the difference. KNOCK ON THE WALL. A firm, solid sound is your proof that the wall is Genuine Plaster and Lath — as strong as it sounds. A hollow, flimsy sound means that the wall is constructed of a substitute for plaster — an inferior imitation made to look like a plastered wall.

Carson Park Homes Offer Many 'Extras'

"We have built $250,000,000 worth of homes in Southern California—over 25,000 houses—and the houses in Carson Park Mutual Homes are as fine as any we have ever built."

This statement was made yesterday by the builders of Carson Park Mutual Homes in Lakewood as officials of the new development prepared for another banner week end following the recent opening of five new units in an area previously reserved for higher priced homes.

Visitors to the development have found high quality homes are available to veterans for as low as $295 down. The builders emphasized as especially important down payments as low as $595 are offered to non-veterans.

Special features pointed out by the builders were steel casement windows, steel kitchen cabinets, rock wool insulation, slab doors, sheltered entrance porches, cedar shingle roofs, shutters, trellised porches, full double garage, landscaping front, side and rear, 57,000 BTU dual floor furnaces, double drain sinks with laminated heat-proof, stainproof plastic top drainboards, electric garbage disposals, inlaid linoleum, separate service porch with laundry facilities, large wardrobe and walk-in closets, rubber tile floor and cove base in bathrooms, glass door stall showers, chrome accessories and hardware, separate dining room, large living room, paved streets, curbs, sidewalks and driveways and ornamental electrolier streetlights.

Company officials place emphasis on the advantages of living in a completely residential area with near-by parks, playgrounds, new schools, a city college and churches of every major denomination.

Sales office at Carson Park is located at 6741 E. Carson St. and will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

New Finance Terms for Patio Homes

New terms that make the popular California patio homes available to non-vets for as little as $475 down have been announced this week by builder George M. Holstein of Costa Mesa.

The popular homes are on 17th St. in Cost Mesa just a few miles from the Newport Harbor play area, golf courses and other resort features.

Among the features are large fenced in patios, hardwood parquet flooring, sliding glass "window-doors," garbage disposals and two baths. The California patio homes' smart contemporary design and decorator colors have made the site one of the most popular in the harbor area, the builders reported.

Sunday and all next week a furnished model will be open for inspection. The home site is only a few miles off the Coast Hwy. inland through Costa Mesa.

Whaley Will Build 'All America Home'

"The Home for All America," selected by Better Homes & Gardens magazine for its 1954 nationally promoted home, is to be constructed in Long Beach, the magazine announced Saturday from its Des Moines headquarters.

Lloyd S. Whaley, developer of the fast-growing Los Altos section of east Long Beach and his Los Altos Development Company were asked to construct the home. R. J. Burdge, president of the Los Altos Realty, Inc., said a site would be chosen in Park Estates section.

Designed by Robert Little & Associates of Cleveland in cooperation with Better Homes and Gardens, the "Home for All America" is to be constructed with nationally advertised materials and will be of 1600 square feet, plus a garage. It will have four bedrooms.

The home will be constructed in time to open about Sept. 1 and will be open for the public to inspect for four weeks.

Appointment of Whaley to build the home was the second honor in two years given his "planned community" of Los Altos.

He captured the award from the National Association of Home Builders for the Los Altos development because of the way he has set aside ample land for parks, churches and a big business district and developed homes in all sizes at varied costs.

THEY COME IN PAIRS

Realtor, Salesmen Both Named for Week's Honor

Effective this week, the Long Beach Board of Realtors is selecting both a realtor and a salesman for honors each Sunday. And for the first selections both places went to women.

RUTH LINDQUIST SANDERS
From Toys Into Realty

Ruth Lindquist Sanders is the Realtor of the week, while Margaret Braswell is the salesman.

A native of Logan, Utah, Ruth Lindquist worked as cashier for an insurance company in Salt Lake City and then was secretary for an oil concern and a court reporter in Los Angeles before she came here in 1937. She became co-owner of the Ru-gar Enterprises, manufacturers of toys and novelties, and her success in selling a toy elephant bank was outstanding. As a result she decided to go into selling in a big way and in 1948 passed her realty examination and became a broker. She opened her own office, which still operates as the Ruth Lindquist Realty although she is married to Coy Sanders, who sells from the office and now is busy running for Assemblyman in the 44th District.

The office is at 5934 Orange Ave. and they deal largely in quality homes anywhere in the city. Business the past year was double that of any previous year and a good start is under way for another banner year.

"I have great faith in the future of Long Beach and I know that real estate values will climb. That is why it makes it easy to do business," she explains.

Mrs. Sanders was the first state chairman of the California Parents Association for Child Care and has been active in child care center work for years. She also is active in all realty board affairs. The family resides in a new home at 4001 Pine Ave.

MARGARET BRASWELL is a native of Minnesota, yet she has resided in Long Beach since 1912. Her husband, an attorney, died two years ago, shortly after she had retired as a public school teacher at the Longfellow School.

"I had too much idle time and wanted to remain active," she explained. "What lured me into real estate business was the wonderful code of ethics we have here.

"It would be wonderful if the public had a similar code to follow in dealing with us."

A graduate of Fresno State College, Mrs. Braswell is active in the Alamitos Bay Garden Club, the Altar Society of St. Bartholomew's Church and is past president of the Realette Toastmistress Club. She won the trophy as the outstanding speaker of the club last year. Her home is at 6518 Bayshore Wk. and she is a salesman with the Grace Small office at 647 E. Broadway.

Eunice Roher Moves Her Realty Office

Eunice E. Roher, formerly of Roher & Roher Realtors, 1027 E. 7th St. has moved to a new location, 1702 Atlantic Ave. She will be associated with Marion Davisson. These Realtors are building a modern real estate office which will be ready for occupancy June 1st.

Prudential Growth Told

Prudential Insurance Company, officials were here last week and met with local civic and business leaders at luncheon. They told of the growth of the company both locally and nationally. Pictured together after the luncheon are George A. Miller, manager of the downtown district agency; Ward Johnson, president of Chamber of Commerce; Harry J. Volk, vice president in charge of western operations for Prudential and Mayor Lyman B. Sutter.

In Santa Ana

THIS THREE-BEDROOM, two-bath home is typical of the many in Lans-Dale Farm Estates, new development at Bristol and 17th Sts., Santa Ana.

Lans-Dale Farm Estates Offers Wide Selection

A wide choice of color combinations, elevations and floor plans is still available in Lans-Dale Farm Estates although the development is rapidly approaching a sellout, it was announced by Don Coleman, of the Pioneer Land Co., sales agent.

The new community offers three-bedroom, two-bath homes, at Bristol and 17th Sts., Santa Ana, to veterans at nothing down but costs and impounds. Priced from $13,330, they carry monthly terms for veterans as low as rent.

A major factor in the heavy sales volume recorded in the new community has been the property's proximity to the Santa Ana Freeway, which provides rapid transit by car to and from Los Angeles' downtown district and other employment areas.

Model homes, open daily from 11 a. m. to 7 p. m., display such typical features as the wood-burning fireplaces, forced-air heating, stall showers, New Freedom gas kitchens, Kaiser automatic dishwashers, two-car garages, lawns with shrubs, and a number of other luxury items.

The property is situated near schools of all grades, churches of many denominations, shopping centers, recreational facilities and major job centers of Orange and Los Angeles counties.

Builders to Burn Mortgages on Home of Their Exchange

A milestone will be reached at the next meeting of the Builders' Exchange of Long Beach, Inc., as they burn the mortgage on their building at 1423 Walnut Ave.

In 1951 the Builders' Exchange and the Long Beach Building Contractors' Assn. merged.

At that time, Stanley Gayton was president of the Exchange and Harold Sears was president of the Contractors. Committees working for the venture were: from the Exchange, Lowell Clarke, Jerry West and Henry Scott. From the Contractors, J. W. Punt, Paul McKenzie Jr. and W. T. Harris.

The Contractors Assn. owned a building at 1423 Walnut Ave. and it was increased in size to 2800 square feet and has become the hub for the construction industry craft associations. Located there are: the Builders Exchange, Harbor Area Painting and Decorating Contractors Assn., Associated Plumbing Contractors of Long Beach, California State Contractors License Board, Long Beach Naval Shipyard Employes Assn. and the insurance offices of V. H. Greenup. This building was completed in May, 1952. Much of the labor and materials were donated by the membership but there was quite a large mortgage on the building. In less than three years the mortgage has been paid off.

The aim of the Builders Exchange is to see that the public gets the most from its construction dollar. Their motto is "Reliability, responsibility, honesty and integrity." They foster constructive legislation.

The Exchange business is administered by a board of directors and they employ a full-time executive manager and office secretary. Plastering contractor Jerry West is the president. Those serving with West are Bartley Burgin, vice president; Eugene Littrell, secretary; Richard W. Leebrick, treasurer, and the following directors: Mel Masterson, F. A. Anderson, Don Sullivan, Norman Scott, O. L. Dahl, Tom Norcross and J. W. Punt. C. C. Stovall is the executive manager and Margaret W. Dumm is the office secretary.

The public is invited to the Exchange offices at 1423 Walnut Ave. to bring any construction problems they may have.

Wide Choice of Plans in These Homes

Showers last week end did not deter large crowds of home-seekers from visiting the second unit of La Palma Ranchos Homes, Anaheim, during its pre-opening showing, according to Ivan Wells & Sons, developers. The wise old adage that the rainy season is the best time to inspect a home before buying was aptly demonstrated when prospective purchasers found excellent drainage and weather-proof construction at the new subdivision.

Sales recorded last week end brought the total to over $400,000 since the homes were first shown three weeks ago, according to Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents.

This week end will see the grand opening of the new community of California modern ranch-style dwellings, Wells said. A complete selection of all seven floor plans and 24 variations will be available for home-seekers to choose from. Early purchasers may select their own color schemes for both interiors and exteriors.

One reason given for the rapid pre-opening sales pace and popularity of the four-bedroom, two-bath and three-bedroom, one-bath residences in this second unit is that all rooms are larger than those shown in the furnished models in La Palma Rancho's first unit.

Priced from $11,450 for the four-bedroom dwellings, veterans may buy for $325 down, plus impounds. The three-bedroom models, priced from $10,150, are offered to vets for $275 down.

Situated on La Palma Ave. just off Santa Ana Freeway, La Palma Ranchos is in Anaheim, known as "the city of good living."

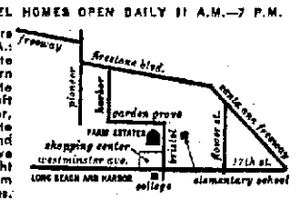

OFFERING A COMMUNITY of ranch-type homes, La Palma Ranchos will hold a gala opening this week end in Anaheim. The four-bedroom two-bath homes, one of which is shown here, are priced from $11,450 and are just off the Santa Ana Freeway.

Opportunity
For 7 years I jumped from one job to another; I seldom earned $60 to $75 a week, and my wife and children suffered between jobs. One morning, during one of these "job periods," I answered a help-wanted advertisement and was hired on a trial basis. My first month I earned $401, without previous experience. That was 6 months ago, and today I am holding a position paying over $5000 a year. Regardless of your past experience in selling tangible or intangible merchandise, if you are sincere in your desire to pull yourself out of a rut we will be glad to interview you daily from 10 to 12, Room 205, Heartwell Bldg., L. PS

I THANK YOU

Daffy (Bob) Jaffe

I wish to thank the more than 300 people who turned out last Sunday to check and see if I had gone crazy . . . trying to operate on a $100 per car margin . . . and you should have seen the expressions on their faces . . . and heard the OHs and AHs . . . especially when they sawe th 1954 Skyliner Ford V8 with a $3100 list . . . priced at only $2299. But, we had it . . . and every car on the lot priced the same way.

So, go to church first, and then have lunch, then come on down to 1740 American to the biggest little lot in Long Beach, and inspect and choose the car of your choice. And . . . don't forget . . . if you don't have the down payment, we will gladly arrange your down payment for you . . . with NO obligation or charge.

So now . . . follow the crowd and see for yourself.

Thanks a Million, Folks

Daffy (BOB) Jaffe AND ALL PERSONNEL

REMEMBER . . . No Down Payment Necessary

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, MARCH 28, 1954

Six Years Observed by Guild

A striking arrangement of blue and yellow spring flowers was featured on the buffet when Mrs. James A. Pine entertained Las Madrinas Guild Friday noon at her home, 710 Terraine Ave. on the occasion of the Guild's first annual Charter Day luncheon. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Reg H. Barden, hospitality chairman.

Six years ago this month, under the leadership of Mrs. Arthur Dinel, Las Madrinas became the first Guild of the Long Beach Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital. From an original 12 members the group has grown to an organization of 25 women who give generously of their time to improve the general health of children in the Long Beach area.

In the past six years the group has raised $13,191 for the hospital care of needy children, and has contributed 80 complete layettes at an approximate cost of $1600 to the Prenatal Clinic at Seaside Hospital. The members have given 15,550 service hours in furthering their cause.

High light of the first Charter Day observance was the presentation of an honorary life membership to Mrs. Dinel in appreciation for her outstanding service to Las Madrinas. Other founding members in attendance were Mmes. Richard W. Deeble, Stephen A. Pace Jr. and Rexford L. Welch.

Guests included Mrs. Velma Hale, Auxiliary president; Mrs. Theron H. Slaughter, Guild coordinator; Mrs. Frederick A. Taylor Jr., Nightingale president; Mrs. P. A. Provost, Northern Lights president; Mrs. J. E. Ogden, Florella Guild president, and Mrs. Grace J. Ewart, director of the Kiddie Kaper Revue which is sponsored each year by Las Madrinas.

Above, Mrs. Candace Smith is putting the finishing touches on her painting which will be on display. Standing (left to right) are Mmes. Arnel Talbot, Maurice Schroeder, Tom Norcross, Miss Luella Smith, and seated, Mmes. Gladys Christensen and Albert W. Hood, co-chairmen of floral displays. Mrs. Jack McInnis is general chairman, Miss Gladys Ridgeway is handling tickets, and Mrs. John Morrow is in charge of candy booths. The event is open to the public.

A postcard from those wayward travelers, Edna and Bill Abrams, tells us that they are aboard the "Andrea Doria" en route to Port Lyartey, a naval air base in French Morocco, where their daughter, Charlotte, is teaching school. During Charlotte's spring vacation the trio are flying to Italy, whence the Abrams' senior will follow the spring north to England and Scotland.

Puzzled Vacationers, Despondent Newcomers, Runaways Among Many Who Seek Aid of Travelers Aid Society

By ELAINE RISINGER

The family sat quietly in one corner of the Pacific Electric Station and reviewed their assets, $1.25 in change, a promised job at the Navy Shipyard and some valuable tools.

Their home in the midwest seemed farther away than ever, and the prospect of a new life here had dulled. With no prospects for they surveyed the situation: No food, no home until the husband received a paycheck in two weeks from the yard.

As the father looked forlornly away from his wife and three children, a Travelers Aid sign near the entrance caught his eye. In a few minutes he was discussing his problem with a helpful woman volunteer, who took the family to one of the society's case workers.

This was the beginning of a happy ending for the family's plight. The efficient counselor studied aspects of the case, and although the money needed was more than ordinarily requested by the society, she managed to pay a month's rent at a housing project. The employed husband agreed to provide food for food.

The above situation is typical of the many cases which confront the Travelers Aid Society daily. Whether the newcomers or travelers are bothered with money problems, family disturbances or simply need assistance in travel arrangements and information the society's booth, manned by woman volunteers, is ready to help.

Last year more than 14,000 persons, ranging from runaways to elderly persons confused in travel, stopped at the desk for assistance, Miss Lillian Cave, executive secretary, explained. The society's foremost program includes not only travel service such as meeting disabled persons or children, but case work and counseling, an interstate communications service and general information, she continued.

"Some persons need only the price of a wire to get in touch with relatives for added help, while others present involved problems which require counseling and help in straightening out family affairs," she added.

"We also have worked with a certain number of displaced persons. There is no discrimination as to race, creed or economic situation."

Although money is often given deserving individuals, it is not considered a loan. Some persons though voluntarily repay the agency when they are able to do so, Miss Cave said.

In some instances, however, the generosity of the society is overestimated. One volunteer reported that a smartly dressed woman appeared one day at the desk and asked to borrow some money. Her reason: She wanted to play the horses at Santa Anita.

Far from what the name implies, the international society also assists residents in many ways, Miss Cave said. Take the case of two runaway boys who were finally located in Texas. Besides assisting in locating the parents, the agency also spent many hours counseling parents and boys to achieve more harmony and understanding in the home.

The agency also locates relatives and friends in other cities for residents or communicates with other cities concerning relatives ill or stranded away from home.

Probably the most familiar Travelers Agency Aid Service, at least to anyone who has traveled, is what the society calls general information. This is handled by women volunteers, who serve in the station. Just being able to talk with someone often aids a confused traveler, Miss Cave commented.

If the problem involves case work or inter-city service, the traveler sees a member of the employed staff, either Miss Cave, Miss Flora Darling, secretary-bookkeeper, or Mrs. Helen DeRoo, caseworker.

Miss Cave further commented that one precept of Travelers Aid is the theory that the mobility of the American people is one factor in the greatness of our country. And money spent locally assisting newcomers is reciprocated by other agencies which are helping Long Beach travelers.

Governing the society, which is supported locally by the Community Chest, are 16 board members, headed by Lyle Huggins, president.

TRAVELERS' AID volunteer Vallie Thurle assists newcomers with some of the many problems which confront residents in a strange town.

Carroll Family Departs for Residence in Peru

Winging off to Peru on Thursday were Mrs. James P. Carroll and her three children, James Jr., 5½; Christine, 2½, and Maureen, eight months. They are joining Mr. Carroll, a drilling engineer with Peruvian Pacific Petroleum Co., for two years residence.

Mrs. Carroll is the former Vriminna Vrang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Vrang, former Long Beach residents. She and her husband were graduated from Wilson High School and number many friends here. The Carrolls have been visiting Mr. Carroll's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Carroll at 4518 Linden Ave., and numerous parties have been given in Mrs. Carroll's honor.

Mrs. William Rollins in Downey gave a tea for former Alpha Chi Omega sorority sisters from USC, and Mrs. James Whitcham of Alhambra entertained at a small luncheon.

On Thursday Mrs. James L. Russell, Mrs. Carroll's sister, was hostess at a farewell luncheon at Hoefly's Restaurant. Guests bidden were Mmes. Steven Guidi, Richard Hollar, Martin Paquette, David Tupper, W. L. Benzer, Wendell Gowdy, Robert Lemon, Donald Tosh, John Elder, Norman Stow, Vincent Poxon, and Jack Oberdorf of Whittier.

Another courtesy was a pot-luck dinner party given by Mrs. Larry Benzer last week at her home, 2538 E. Second St.

Mrs. Dowds to Entertain

A spring decor will be used when Mrs. Phil Dowds entertains new and old members of the Rick Racker board at a luncheon and business session Thursday at her home, 1136 Amelia Dr.

Mrs. Dowds is outgoing president of Rick Rackers. Her successor will be Mrs. Ely Somerville.

Other board members who will attend the luncheon are Mmes. Lawrence A. Collins Jr., Robert A. Anderson, Howard O. Coale Jr., E. Decatur Mitchell, Noble Millic, Sherman Toft, James LaMasney, John Taylor, Dean Lucas, Frank Vessels Jr., Ethel Severson, W. A. Smith Jr., Charles P. Morgan, John Pitblado, and Harry Fulton.

Mrs. Elizabethe Tucker, a sponsor, will be a special guest.

Park Expert, Wife Here for Sojourn

Arriving Wednesday evening in Long Beach on her first visit in the Southland was Mrs. F. Ellwood Allen of Bennington, Vt. She accompanied her husband, a national park consultant, who previously has spent a number of weeks here studying park recreation and beach development. He will present his report Monday at 8 p. m. in the Concert Hall.

In a brief interview Mrs. Allen said the couple planned to remain here at least a week.

Commenting on her husband's work, Mrs. Allen added, "I'm always interested in what he is doing and he discusses his plans with me. However, my interest lies more in arts and crafts. I do weaving and copper enameling."

The couple also enjoys gardening at the Vermont home, the visitor continued. "We have a greenhouse, which is a hobby for both of us."

When not accompanying her husband on business trips, Mrs. Allen is busy with her duties as president of the Society of Vermont Craftsmen and an active member of one of Bennington's garden clubs.

Los Altos Women's Club Benefit to Aid Children

The fever is spreading to obtain tickets to the annual "Spring Fever" fashion show which Los Altos Women's Club is staging at 12:30 p. m. Saturday in Pacific Coast Club. Mrs. Merle Goldsby, president, and other club officers, will welcome guests.

Proceeds from the event will be contributed to the Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation. The project is in line with the club's activities on behalf of welfare for children, with especial interest being taken in the support of the only local training center for mentally retarded children.

Fashion chairman for the style show is Mrs. Kermit Moore, who is being assisted by Mmes. Alvin Maddy, C. W. Holland, David Lewis, in charge of preliminary arrangements; Mmes. Felix Heflin, J. V. Hope, programs; Mmes. D. E. Wagner and Thomas J. Capel, decorations and favors, and Mmes. C. W. Holland, Wagner, Capel, Hope and Moore, awards.

Spring styles from Lillian's will be featured, with Lorraine Doyle as commentator. Club members participating as models will include Mmes. J. W. Adams Jr., W. F. Keller, Alvin K. Maddy, Jack Freed, Harold Lamunyon and K. W. Kuhns. Jerry Pack will provide organ background music.

Mmes. John Steinbrugge and L. E. Gilbert, handling tickets for the affair, announce that reservations for the luncheon must the made in advance with them, as no tickets will be available at the door.

Citizens are invited to visit the Kenny Hospital which is situated at 4030 Gilman Rd. in El Monte. The local Kenny auxiliary conducts a year-around activity for this cause, and the Foundation conducts a concentrated campaign drive each May.

Ebell Club

A dynamic new lecture, "The Achievement of Happiness," will feature tomorrow's program at Ebell Club. Speaker will be Dr. Cleo Dawson, author of the best seller, "She Came to the Valley," a novel of the Rio Grande.

Thousands of people, from coast to coast, have been helped, inspired, and made happier through Dr. Dawson's lectures on practical psychology, and her listeners receive new perspectives and forces of inspiration and faith after her remarks.

She is the product of two countries, born on a Texas cattle ranch so close to the Rio Grande she never has known to which side she belongs. She spoke Spanish long before she did English and early began to specialize in psychology, language, and human relations. This lecture, a guide to new joys in successful living, should attract an overflow attendance.

Mrs. Fred E. King will conduct the business session, and the luncheon before the program will be in charge of Group D, Mrs. S. T. Cochran, chairman.

Recital Monday

Voice pupils from Agal's Studio of Voice will be heard in a recital at 7 p. m. Monday in the Tudor Room of Pacific Coast Club. The concert is open to the public without charge.

ANOTHER MILESTONE has been reached by the Soroptimist Club of Long Beach, which is celebrating its 30th birthday this month, having been organized here March 28, 1924. The anniversary is being observed today at a tea in the home of Mrs. Walter Crawford, 3401 E. Ocean Blvd. Pictured in the Crawford living room discussing the event over the teacups are (left to right) Mrs. Walter Schinnerer, president; Mrs. Crawford; Mrs. Willard Powers (standing, right); and on divan, Miss Martha Scott and Mrs. Sally Phelan.—(Staff photo.)

Capital Newspaper Women Entertain VP, Mrs. Nixon

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY
Press-Telegram Washington Correspondent

Anytime Mrs. Richard Nixon is the honor guest at a party that is a real event. When the Vice President comes to the party, too, it is a twin star double feature with four bells.

The other day when the American Newspaper Women's Club honored Mrs. Nixon at a 5-7 tea, the Vice President arrived about 7 but stayed on to have coffee and chat with everyone.

On the way into the club we greeted long-time friend, Iranian Ambassador Entezam—who used to be his country's envoy here—who has just returned to Washington.

Attractive Mrs. Arthur Radford, wife of the chairman of the JCS, waved as she departed for Massachusetts Rep. and Mrs. Wigglesworth's dinner.

In the club drawing room president Ruth Crane (radio and tv commentator) received with Mrs. Nixon. Bronze-gold haired Pat, who always looks as if she had just stepped from the pages of a fashion magazine, wore a stunning spring navy tailleur with a navy tie silk blouse with a free form white print. Her hat—a favorite shell shape—was navy embroidered with white braid.

She suggested that we inspect the gifts presented the Nixons on their tour of the Far East.

Before the tea Pat had brought down the gifts and arranged them on two tables. Among them: a fierce appearing tiger head ash tray from Thailand; opal set gold spoons from Australia, and interesting handicrafted silver from Indochina.

At the party the vice president discussed his recent TV talk, explaining that he prefers to be alone in the studio so that he may envision talking individually to each member of the unseen audience.

He complimented the late President Roosevelt's radio speaking ability but added that TV has brought many new problems to the sepaker.

Especially honored at the party were the ambassadors and their wives of countries visited by the Nixons: Ambassador and Mme. Yang of Korea; Philippine Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Abello; Thailand Ambassador and Mme. Sarasin; Viet Nam Ambassador and Mme. Tran Van Kha; Ceylon's new ambassador, Mr. Gunawardene and Mme. Gunawardene; India's Ambassador and Mme. Mehta; Iranian Ambassador Entezam; Indonesian Ambassadress, Mme. Notowidigdo, and Chinese Ambassadress, Mme. Koo also attended.

Soroptimist Club to Note 30th Year at Tea Today

Special occasion for members of the Soroptimist Club of Long Beach is the tea this afternoon in the spacious home of Mrs. Walter Crawford, 3401 E. Ocean Blvd., to which invitations have been extended to members of other Soroptimist Clubs in Southern California.

Incentive for the tea is the 30th birthday anniversary of Long Beach Soroptimist Club which was organized March 28, 1924, making it the seventh and thus one of the oldest clubs. The Long Beach club is one of 558 clubs in the National Federation of Soroptimist Clubs which includes the United States, Canada, Mexico, South America, Cuba and Hawaii. There are now 902 clubs internationally, with 27,445 women in the world who are Soroptimists.

In the receiving line today with Mrs. Crawford will be the club president, Mrs. Walter Schinnerer; Mmes. Willard Powers and Bradford Cook who, with Mrs. Crawford, are co-chairmen of ways and means; Miss Martha Scott, chairman of hospitality, and Mrs. Sally Phelan, chairman of extension and assimilation. The three committees are sponsoring the tea. Among prominent guests will be Miss Mary Ellen Pangle, governor of the Pacific Region.

Service has been the objective of Soroptimist Clubs everywhere, and this month will see the Long Beach club completing 30 years of service to the community, with especial attention given to child welfare. Miss Connie Lu Berg, pianist, who will play during the afternoon, is this year's first award audition winner of the Long Beach Philharmonic Orchestra contest of which Soroptimist Club is one of the sponsors.

Soroptimist Club past presidents will preside at the silver tea and coffee urns throughout the tea hours.

Chi Omegas Prepare for Spring Eleusinia

Chi Omega alumnae from the Southern California area will join active members and pledges from UCLA and USC on April 3, at 12:30 p. m., in the Garden Room, Bel Air Hotel, to celebrate the Spring Eleusinia, which is Founders' Day to all Chi Omegas.

Elsa Carrow, United Nations Southern California hostess, and also a Chi Omega, will speak to an anticipated crowd of 300, telling of human interest events that happen in her work.

Mrs. Ward Rolland will present to Mrs. Ellwood Munger, President of the Board of Trustees of Casa Colina Crippled Children's Home, a four-figure check representing funds raised by the seven alumnae groups in the metropolitan area throughout the year.

The two active chapters will entertain alumnae with skits and singing. Pledges will be introduced and awards given by chapter presidents, Dolores Dallons, UCLA, and Donna Meadors, USC.

An outstanding Chi Omega has been selected from each group and will be introduced by Mrs. S. K. Neill, president of the Co-ordinating Council and a member of the Pasadena group. Mrs. O. P. Roemer, University of Colorado, has been chosen from the Long Beach Alumnae. Following are some of Mrs. Roemer's many activities: past president of Junior League of Long Beach, on board of directors of Community Chest for three years, organized and was first president and is now chairman of the Education Committee of the Community Volunteer Office, and is on the board of Directors of the Long Beach Day Nursery.

She serves on the committees of general curricula and elementary curricula for the Long Beach school system, served as head of the Christmas Cheer Clearing House for Long Beach, is active in Children's Theater, Cub Scouts and Camp Fire, is on the planning committee of the United Nations program for children, and is also active in church work.

Mrs. S. K. Neill has announced her committee on arrangements. Mrs. William Buckwalter, president of Westside, will have her group, together with the Westside Juniors, serving as hostesses. Mrs. C. L. Carleton of the Valley Group, is in charge of the program. Decorations will be headed by Mrs. William Winston and the Long Beach Group. Mrs. C. B. Phillips of the Glendale Group will handle reservations.

Some of those planning to attend from Long Beach are: Mmes. Claire Becheraz, Luther Benedict, Willis Blenkinsop, Winchester Stacy, William Woelflin, Earl Richardson, O. P. Roemer, Ivor James Jr., Miss Constance Chace and Miss Gloria Stacy.

All Chi Omegas are invited to attend and may make reservations by phoning Mrs. Ivor James Jr., 5958 N. Pearce, Bellflower, or Mrs. Howard Myers, 4528 Greenmeadow Rd., Long Beach, by Tuesday.

ARRANGING SPRING FLOWERS to carry out the theme of Spring Eleusinia, Founders' Day for all Chi Omegas, are, from left, Miss Gloria Stacy, Mrs. William Winston and Miss Constance Chace of Long Beach Alumnae. Driftwood and cymbidiums will be used on all the tables when Chi Omega Alumnae from this area join active members and pledges from UCLA and USC April 3 at 12:30 p. m. in the Garden Room of Bel Air Hotel.—(Staff photo.)

Group Elects New Slate

Exciting business at last meeting of Delta chapter, Lambda Sigma Pi, business women's sorority, was election of new officers. Results disclosed that new president will be Mabel McCulloch. Elected to serve with her were Lorena Kinkead, vice president; Mildred Maroney, secretary, and Marie Clements, treasurer.

New officers will be installed as of July 1. This election meeting took place at the home of Dorothy Simonich, 2175 Earl Ave., and, in addition to balloting, plans were made for the annual April birthday luncheon which this year will be at Lakewood Country Club April 24. All chapters in the state have been invited to attend.

At the conclusion of business discussion the hostess, assisted by Dorothy Ashbaugh and Golden Hutton, served luncheon to the members.

Cohostesses for Luncheon

Mrs. Homer D. Redford and Mrs. Sidney Goldbaum entertained board members and cohostesses of Group Y of Ebell Club at a luncheon at the home of the former, 230 Belmont Ave.

Quartet tables were centered with bouquets of spring flowers. Covers were laid for Mrs. Theodore H. Zietan, chairman, and Mmes. Robin L. Hadley, Lewis Van Winkle, William A. Minnick, W. H. Winston Sr., J. A. Reed, Walter S. Nye, King C. Light, Harris Rogers, Lorne D. Middough, Frank Buren, Thomas A. Ewart and Milton B. Arthur. Bridge concluded the afternoon.

DAR Chapter Hears Talk on Navajos

A little Indian girl named Tsianina, meaning "Wild Flower," was the center of attention at last Tuesday's luncheon meeting of the Western Shores Chapter of DAR, held at the Lafayette Hotel. Mrs. J. Kennedy, regent, presided.

Tsianina, aged 2, is a pure-blooded Navajo Indian, and is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Thomas, who maintain a non-denominational mission at Window Rock, Ariz. This makes Tsianina one of the very few fortunate members of the Navajo race, Mrs. Thomas said, as she told members some of the problems the Navajos face.

Illustrating her talk with colored picture slides, Mrs. Thomas described the serious health conditions on the Navajo reservation. The lack of sanitation facilities and the near starvation existing there creates an appalling situation in which the general public should interest themselves, she said. Mrs. Thomas suggested that the greatest help the individual can do is to write to his Congressman.

The musical portion of the program was presented by Annette Strange, vocalist, and Arthur Lederman, violinist, both accompanied by Miss Carol Kassim.

Earlier, at the business meeting, Mmes. George Baumgartner, Kennedy, C. L. McKinney and James M. Burchall outlined the resolutions adopted by the State DAR. An exhibit of old and famous dolls loaned to Western Shores by Mrs. Jay De Armond, was on display at the conclave.

Mrs. Baumgartner, Miss Marguerite Patterson and Mrs. Edward H. Lichty were chosen as the nominating committee to choose next year's officers.

At Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Verch, Mmes. Dewey Herrington and Hamilton Booth left Thursday morning for Fresno to attend the four-day California state convention of Hotel Greeters. Mmes. Herrington and Booth are delegates from the Long Beach Women's Division of Charter No. 65.

Never Quite Enough $$$, So..

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

A common characteristic of today's women is that they never have enough money.

No matter how much their husbands earn, it never seems to be quite enough. Mary needs her teeth fixed. Johnny wants a new bicycle. The kitchen needs remodeling. Henry's going to college, and goodness knows where the tuition is going to come from.

Knock on any front door and you're almost sure to find one or more of these problems behind it. And the solution usually is up to the lady of the house.

Some wives react to financial emergencies by nagging their husbands.

Some meet the problem with new economies — serving macaroni instead of steak and making over last year's hat.

But there are thousands who have found a more practical way out of their difficulties. They pitch in and earn the needed extra amount.

These women make up the majority of an army of about a million direct salespeople who sell from three to seven billion dollars' worth of goods annually in this country on a door-to-door basis.

I'm not speaking now of the one out of every three married women in the country who have regular jobs. I mean the women who have to stay at home to take care of children, run their homes and do all their own housework, who nevertheless manage to add to the family income whenever necessary.

The men who run the firms which depend on direct selling say U. S. housewives are the world's best sellers—especially when they have a definite goal.

When Mrs. Jones is trying to get the money for a new washing machine, she's the equal of the most high-powered salesman employed by the biggest corporation in the country.

When Mrs. Smith has made up her mind to earn the money for her son's college education, nothing on earth is going to stop her.

Leaders of the direct selling industry say this method of sales is increasing steadily. And they always need more saleswomen—or men.

Any woman who has a circle of friends in her own community is a potential success story in the direct selling field, say these men. Many firms advertise in local newspapers and in women's service magazines for sales representatives. A woman interested in a part-time or full-time selling job can contact any of these, and receive a kit of instructions. After she has been accepted as a sales representative, she will receive either samples or photographs of the merchandise, and then she's on her own.

A healthy percentage of each sale is her commission, which usually is deducted before the balance is sent on to the company.

Housewives doing direct selling in their spare time can earn from $10 to $60 a week, say executives of the industry. And there are instances of some who have earned from $10,000 to $25,000 a year—this, of course, on a full-time basis.

The women sell everything from cosmetics to dresses, from housewares to stockings. Almost always they work among their own friends.

And when they've earned that new refrigerator or that college education, they usually take a vacation until the next emergency comes along.

Style Show on Calendar

Group chairmen of Woman's City Club will have a style show and card party at 1 p. m. Wednesday in the South American Room of Town Hall, with Mrs. Ada Belle Haase, chairman of groups, in charge. She will be assisted by all club group chairmen. The public is invited to this annual event.

Members of the club who will model are Mmes. Nellie Smith, Christine Heldt, Mildred Peck, Edmund R. Gilman, Goldie Smith, Mary Whitehead, Harry Ludwick, Grace V. Kinney, Frank Burkett, Grace Blanchard, Clara Lindsey and Isabelle Hurley.

Mrs. Kenneth R. Toby

Honeymoon in Las Vegas

A honeymoon trip to Las Vegas, Nev., followed the marriage of Dixie Lee Birchfield and Kenneth R. Toby at First Southern Baptist Church with Rev. R. G. Brister officiating.

The couple will be at home tomorrow at 1115 E. 70th St.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ellis, 829 E. 61st St., the bride was attired in a pink gown with a lace bodice and a tiered skirt of net over taffeta. A half-crown headdress trimmed with pearls held her fingertip-length veil. She carried white orchids and stephanotis on a white mother of pearl Bible from Jerusalem.

In the wedding party were Mrs. Barbara Curran, matron of honor; Shirley Toby, flower girl; Clinton Toby, best man, and Jerry Ellis and Fillmore Molaso, ushers. Hostesses at the church reception were Mrs. Verna Hogg and Mrs. Irdell Garrett.

The bride was graduated from Coachella Valley High. Her husband, of 901 E. 71st Way, is a Korean veteran. Son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Toby of Oklahoma City, Okla., he attended schools in Oklahoma.

Dr. Litwack Host to Club on Tour of Health Offices

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Impressed and gratified by what they saw and heard during a field trip meeting to the City Health Dept. Center last Monday were members of the Long Beach National Business and Professional Women's Club.

Like the vast majority of others, members of the club were aware that we have a fine Health Dept. but it wasn't until they had actually toured the building and its laboratories and heard the staff professionals explain the various services that they realized the true significance of the job the Health Dept. performs for Long Beach day in and day out.

Dr. I. D. Litwack, health officer, was host to the club members and main speaker. Assisting him were Katherine Fox, health educator; Eleanor Lectner, who spoke on "Public Health Nursing"; William Gleckner, who explained the job of sanitation in all its various phases, and James Smith, director of the laboratory, who conducted a tour of the laboratories and gave a detailed description of the processes carried on there.

Following the educational program at the Health Dept., which was in charge of chairman Margaret Smith, members returned to the home of Hazel Gray and Kathleen Head, 2046 Daisy, for refreshments and business meeting. President Gladys Marsh presided.

Delegates elected to attend district convention at Huntington Hotel in Pasadena, April 10-11, were Mrs. Marsh, Ella Barre and Ilene Series. Alternates selected were Lois McFarland, Kathryn Campbell and Lurene Spear.

Three distinct high lights punctuated Quota Club meeting last Monday with exclamation points! First there was the introduction of five new members by evening's chairman, Connie Brown. Welcomed to membership were Helen Cameron (Sully-Miller Corp.), Virginia Youngquist (Robert Moore Oil Field Supply Co.), Zazelle Becker (avocado rancher), Pauline Fisher (Fisher Employment Agency), and Katy Dell Lanham (Computer Research Corp.).

Second high light definitely belonged to guest speakers George C. H. Brown of the Lion's Club, who told of the service clubs of Long Beach and their important role in the community, and Fred Sykes, manager of the Long Beach Retailers, who claims only one subject as a speaker—"Long Beach".

The third major portion of the program was created by Shirley O'Connor, teacher at Burroughs, who provided music for the evening with a variety of admirable piano selections. She was introduced by club member and principal of Burroughs, Rada Metcalf.

Vice president Maybelle Myers served as evening's presiding officer and introduced special guests of the evening, Mrs. George Brown and Mary Moore.

"All the characters are real people, and all the people are real characters" was one of many sprightly remarks made by Marguerite Wallace Kennedy in regard to her nationaly heralded book, "My Home on the Range," when she appeared before Progressive Business Women's Club as guest speaker at last week's regular dinner meeting held at the YWCA.

Mrs. Kennedy told of her life on the Arizona desert and of the incidents which inspired her writing this humorous book. Laura Moore introduced her to an admiring audience.

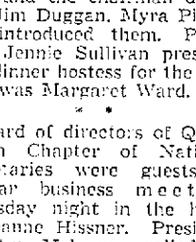

Another thoroughly enjoyed portion of the program was the appearance of Wilson High School's Meistersingers. Vocalists in this fine musical group are Sue Davis, Martha Brightman, Mike Orr, John Elliott, Charles Persinger, Beverly Bailey, Elaine Butterfield and the chairman director, Jim Duggan. Myra Pinckard introduced them. President Jennie Sullivan presided and dinner hostess for the evening was Margaret Ward.

Board of directors of Queen Beach Chapter of National Secretaries were guests at regular business meeting Thursday night in the home of Jeanne Hissner. President Betty Mahoney called on Madeleine Ferguson, delegate, to report on the public relation meeting held at Mission Inn, Riverside, on March 14. Others attending the conclave from Long Beach were president Betty, Glea Robinson, Erma Pasque, Pat Hutto and Verla Wilson. Plans were also made for local participation in the state convention which will be held at the Claremont Hotel, Berkeley, in May. It was announced the next regular dinner meeting will be held April 6 in the Empire Room of the Wilton Hotel.

Sandra Scroggins Bride of Richard M'Neeley

A profusion of early white spring flowers met the eyes of the many guests as they entered Lakewood Community Church March 14 to witness the marriage of the former Miss Sandra Scroggins and Richard W. McNeely. The late afternoon service was conducted by Rev. W. R. Hall. Gilbert Vaughan gave his niece in marriage.

The attractive young bride, daughter of Mrs. Mary Jo Scoggins of 3415 E. Second St., was beautifully gowned in tulle and Chantilly lace. Her bridal attire was designed with white panels of lace down the front of the skirt and in back the lace extended into the cathedral-length train. Lace gloves and a tiered veil completed her regal attire. She carried a white orchid nestled amid lilies of the valley and stephanotis.

Attending the bride were Mrs. John Callard, matron of honor, and bridesmaids Mrs. Robert Brandis, Mrs. William Sundell, Betty Decker and Ann Hazelhurst, all a symphony in pink champagne tones. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Wilcox of 83 Rivo Alto Canal, was served by Charles Ranger as best man. Guests were seated prior to the vow exchange by Reggie Ritter, Joe Newman, Don Blasdel and William Strickland.

At the reception at Lakewood Country Club, Mrs. Scoggins received guests in a blue-grey Alencon lace frock with harmonizing accessories, accented in Parisienne yellow. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in champagne pure silk with aqua accessories. Both wore orchid corsages.

The former Miss Scoggins served as president of SFC while a student at Polytechnic High and was a member of TNT at Long Beach City College. Her husband is a graduate of Wilson High School.

After a wedding trip to Laguna Beach and Palm Springs, Mr. and Mrs. McNeely are at home to their many friends at 240 Coronado Ave.

College Choir Sing Slated Wednesday

By SUE ROBERGE

Long Beach-trained soprano Marilynn Horne will appear as guest artist with the College Choir of Long Beach City College in an annual concert Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. in Concert Hall, Municipal Auditorium.

Miss Horne, who is a soloist with the Roger Wagner Chorale, will sing with the choir "Elfin Song" by Wolf, "Lia's Aria" (Debussy), "Robin Adair" (an old Scotch song) and "A Dream" (Grieg). In this group she will be assisted by Benjamin Herbert of USC.

Other solo numbers she will perform with the choral group will be "The Omnipotence" (Schubert) and "While Hearts Are Singing" (Oscar Straus).

Among the several selections the choir will be heard in is Bach's "Cantata No. 4." Also performing will be the College Madrigal Singers in a special group of English madrigals and folk songs of the 16th and 17th centuries.

A familiar performer to Long Beach musical audiences, Miss Horne has appeared before with the College Choir and when she was a student at Poly High she sang the lead in the school production of "The Merry Widow."

Marilynn Horne

She also attended USC where she was soloist with the University Choir and the nationally famous Madrigal Singers, directed by Dr. Charles C. Hirt. She is currently starring in the Los Angeles Guild Opera's presentation of "The Bartered Bride."

Most recent honor won by this young singer was first place in the Most Promising Young Artist Competition, sponsored by Sigma Alpha Iota Sorority. As winner, she will be presented in concert April 4 with Camilla Wicks, concert violinist of Long Beach, at Hollywood Women's Club.

Tickets for the concert Wednesday can be purchased at Humphreys and Penny-Owsley Music Stores, from members of the choir or at the box office. Proceeds will help finance choir and student body activities.

The Wild Waves Are Saying:

City Beautification Gathering Slated

By IOLA MASTERSON

Can't resist paraphrasing those two radio shows, "Life Can Be Beautiful" and "Let George Do It," to "A City Can Be Beautiful" and "Let US Do It!" This all leads up to tomorrow night's mass meeting in the interests of beautifying Long Beach. Everyone is invited to be in the Concert Hall of the Auditorium by 8 p. m. to hear, for the first time, the outline for beautification of the entire city by Ellwood Allen the park consultant who has been making a several months study of the problem here in Long Beach.

Among those who wouldn't miss it are Helen and Douglas Newcomb, Cassieta and Gus Walker, the Lewis Bryans, Ruth Bach, County Supervisor Burton and Polly Chace, Margaret and George Hanson, Laura and George Stilson, Helen Forker, Ann Davies, Rabbi and Mrs. Elliott Grafman, the Leonard Montagues, Mr. and Mrs. David Rose, the T. J. Taylors, and of course, all the city officials, plus every John Q. Public who wants to know "what about golf courses," every Jane Doe whose interest is in better parks, every Henry X. Saltwater who wants to go down to the sea in ships, and yep, you Traffic Circle "gardners" should be present, too!

JUST IN CASE you didn't know that Margaret and Tim Rogers were dinner dancing at the Moulin Rouge in Hollywood last night, thought we'd tell you. They were well chaperoned, though, and among those keeping an eye on them, while they whiled away the time dining and dancing themselves, were Audrey and Don Helmer, La Vonne and Jack Crippen and Jean and "Oz" Ousdahl.

Naturally there had to be some "watchbirds watching the watchbirds" at such a gay spot and these "watchers" included Martha Ford and Cliff Cailland, Lorena and Dan Farnham, Louise and Bob Edds, Billie and Fred Lehman and Shirley and Howard Jones. It was all a social lark for the Sandlarks (nee Sandpipers), the local Guild for the Children's Home Society, and really, everyone spent more time watching the floor show than each other!

Jane and Phil Brewer are combining planning talents with Rose and Gene Bishop to form a committee of four in charge of another informal dance at the University Club next Saturday, April 3. Pat De Rosa, who is a designer of things architectural during daylight hours, will turn designer of music for the evening with his zippy little orchestra.

OUR CIVILIAN 1st Class rating didn't get us into Allen Center last night so how did we find out Gloria and Paul Grandle, Lita and Bob Place, Susie and George Booth, Lois and Odie Wright and Marge and Dwight Garner were all over there dinner dancing? Well, it's like this, we know a stool pigeon who has wings on his shoulders, see?

Pat Moore no sooner arrived home from a several weeks USO Camp Shows tour than she signed up to become a member of the ballet corps for the Los Angeles Civil Light Opera Association. That's speed (it would be more correct to say, talent!) considering she's only been home a little over a week from Korea, Japan, and other faraway places. Among Pat's clearest memories are the hardships of Korea, the thrill of entertaining our troops overseas, the charm of Japan, and accidentally running into a cousin, Richard Laughrin, whom she hadn't seen in years and had no idea was even in the Army, let alone in Korea!

Wonder if 'ole Jupe Pluvius is sorry for what he did to spring vacation week for that gang down from Stanford, University of Oregon and San Jose. What can Hank Viets, Don Hazelwood, Denny Stimson, Phil Clock, or Seldon Beebe tell the gang up there at Palo Alto about sunny Southern California? Just as mum about the glorious "south coast" when they return to the Indian campus tomorrow will be Bob Fletcher, "Kim" Munholland, Paul and Charles Merrill, Mary Brightman, Rosalie Tucker, Larry McIntyre, Robin Read and Jim Hopkins. And how about Sue Merritt returning, of all places, to the University of Oregon? Ouch! Or Judy Mong, Elere Herbert and Sarabeth Ashbrook unpacking their raincoats in front of classmates at San Jose? Wurra wurra.

A LITTLE GENTLEMAN by the name of Carter Hale Boswell Jr., who will celebrate his first month's birthday April 3, has decided he likes the way mom and pop, Katie and Carter Boswell, do things and will stick around for awhile over there at 351 Mira Mar.

We'll have to have a jet assisted take off on this one, or at least a running start. Here goes—Dr. Paul and Dorothy Southgate leave April 19 for the (now give us room!) West Coast Ophthalmological and Otolaryngological Society convention in Honolulu! Whew! From now on, friends, that will be referred to as the eye, ear, nose and throat gang far as we're concerned.

Anyhow, the Southgates will board the Lurline in San Francisco and will return about May 2 by air, and in between time their eyes, ears, noses and throats will be kept busy with more than talking about them!

When the El Capitan choo-chooed into LA yesterday at a cold and early 7 ayem, Gayle Leatart and Marily and Shirley Irvine were aboard, arriving from Monmouth College for spring vacation. They'll leave May 4 for a new term on the Illinois campus.

ABOARD THE LINER SS President Cleveland when it sailed from Wilmington last week were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Humphreys, prominent Long Beach businessman, and his wife. The Humphreys are embarking on an around-the-world cruise.—(Staff photo.)

Success of Slam Hinges on Finesse

In today's hand the success of the slam appeared to depend on a finesse in diamonds. If that finesse succeeded, South could afford to give up one diamond trick, but the rest would be his. When the hand was played in a recent English tournament, however, one player found a way to make his contract even though the diamond king was offside.

West opened the queen of clubs (a diamond opening would have settled declarer's hash, but West could not know this), and South won at once with the ace of clubs. Declarer took the ace of trumps, cashed the ace and king of hearts, and then entered dummy with the nine of spades in order to lead the jack of hearts.

East quickly played a low heart, since it was obvious that South was now void of the suit. East hoped that South was merely trying a bluff play and that he would take the jack of hearts when the queen failed to show up.

South didn't know who held the queen of hearts, but it wasn't necessary for him to know. He discarded a diamond on the jack of hearts, intending to discard another diamond later on the ten of hearts if this trick happened to lose. In such a case the heart play would neither gain nor lose, and the slam would still depend on the success of the diamond finesse.

As it happened, the jack of hearts held the trick. This made it evident that East still held the queen of hearts. Declarer therefore ruffed dummy's remaining club with a high trump, got back to dummy with the ten of spades and led the ten of hearts to East's queen, discarding another diamond from his hand.

This line of play caught East. If he returned a club, dummy could ruff while South discarded a third diamond. If East returned a diamond instead, dummy would get a free finesse, and South would still make his slam.

Child Care

Baby's Bath Can Be Fun

By BEULAH FRANCE, R.N.

(Q) "In one of your columns you said children need daily baths. While Teddy was tiny I had a terrible time bathing him. Now at the toddling stage I just can't get him into the tub. Have you helpful suggestions?"—Mrs. W. W.

(A) In the bathroom keep a washable bag filled with floating bathtub toys. Tell him these "want to stay" in the bathroom.

Get him figured bath mittens. Some change color when soapy then return to original color when soap is rinsed out.

Allow time to tub at leisure. Don't say "hurry." Start early. Let him splash, chase the floating soap, "shoot" cakes of wet soap from his slippery hands, play that the soapsuds he makes are clouds and that he's "flying high." Never let soap get into his eyes, though!

Gradually teach him to take over the task of actually washing himself. Little by little he should learn to. Show him how to "go between his toes," "get behind his ears" and perform the rites of the bath.

Let him play he's swimming." Even if his kicking feet splash the washable walls and floor say nothing. Rub his back for him with soapy water, then rinse it, holding the wet wash cloth so that the drops trickle over his small body.

Let a moist cake of soap slide down his back and splash in the water, laughing with him all the time so he'll catch the spirit of fun in cleanliness.

Never leave him alone in the tub even for "just a moment" as you answer doorbell or phone. Too many fatal accidents occur when water is turned on by the child or he slips in the tub while trying to stand up or touches some electrical outlet while wet.

Always keep a big beach towel in the bathroom. Lift him from the tub, wrap him in the towel and take him with you if you have to leave the bathroom while he's bathing.

Ask Beulah France to help you with your child care problems. Write her in care of the Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for her reply.

Teen Talk

Young Set Builds Up 'Slanguage'

By VIVIAN BROWN

Wanna know how the other 99 per cent live?

Well — as part of a plan to conduct coast-to-coast hook-ups on our teen-age friends for this column's readers, let's tune in to Boston today, and see what AP reporter Richard Sinnott says . . .

. . . The high school set in Boston has borrowed a bit of bop in its '54 edition of slanguage.

No matter who you are or where you are, you're certain to be addressed as "Dad" by those who make the lexicon rules.

"I dig you the most," means we're in complete accord. If a he, she or it is described as the "end," the "greatest," the "overall," "real cool" or "keerazy," why, Dad, that means it's just about the ultimate.

Dorchester High School recently went coed after some 30 years of having separate schools for the boys and girls. The majority of the students think this stroke of good luck is simply "the mostest."

Some of the more studious lads consider the invasion of the "frails" a gross injustice. The dissenters are referred to as "toads," that is, they belong in the "tough all over department."

At Brookline High School Joe Sylvano is a "real something" or a "3-D." On Friday nights Joe often "drags a doll" to a dance.

Cute Connie Snider, also of Brookline High, has "frosting on her forehead." She has a hair-do with bangs.

In near-by Newton if a girl is being "tracked by an elephant," she's dancing with a lightweight who's not so light — on her feet.

At Quincy High anyone who makes the honor roll is known as a "slurper." The announcement that a glad lad has won public commendation is usually accompanied by a refrain of "Night and day he's been slurping around . . ."

Seventeen-year-old Ann Dahlbo is a "druell." The beautiful senior at Milton High is the girl all the boys want to go "mogging" with. A "mog" is that kiss you build a dream on.

Betty Muldoon, also a senior at Milton High, comes up with a definition of a boy that's the "greatest." "A boy," says Betty, "is a disappointment."

At Hyde Park High School, the principal's office is termed the "pentagon." If a "wailing sheet" is passed out, forget your handkerchief and remember your notes — it's exam time.

Dick Keddy, 17, of East Milton has a girl friend so he belongs in the "I-H-O" category. That, dolls, means "it's hands off."

About once a week Ronnie Romano of Boston Latin gets the "wheels" (car) to take his "chick" to the "snack pit" (a drive-in restaurant).

On the South Shore, football hero George Williamson is thought by the girls to have "perdynooks." Unraveled, this means George has a combination of personality, dynamite and good looks.

Dave Cleary of Dedham High is described as "in a super stupor." (He's just in love).

White shirts (father's) and bow ties (brother's) are the most popular items of female classroom dress. The boys are going in for loud, plaid, flannel shirts. White buck shoes are popular, but have to be dirty to be stylish.

Model T's are painted in plaids and convertible car tops are bought in plaids. Bill Jaunbral says, "Dad, you're really sad without a bit of plaid."

Music-wise, the "big band" craze seems to have died out around the Beantown. Many nickels still find their way into the juke boxes.

The girls' favorite singer is Julius LaRosa. Most of the boys seem to like Joni James as their favorite femme. But at Medford High School, both boys and girls cast their vote for Cindy Lord as their tops in pops vocalist. Cindy, you see, attended Medford High.

REPRESENTING 25 PEO CHAPTERS in Long Beach are the five members pictured who were chosen at the annual presidents' council of the Long Beach PEO Reciprocity Bureau at the YWCA. Mr., Mrs. Charles Bright

Mr., Mrs. Bright Receive Honors on Golden Year

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glover Bright were feted on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday at Pine Avenue Church of God. During the morning service they were called to the church rostrum for congratulations and a gift from the assembled congregation presented by Rev. Albert J. Kempin.

The celebration was continued in the home of their son, Hiram Bright of 4165 Walnut Ave., at an open house during the afternoon when the family presented the pair with gold watches.

The couple were married March 20, 1904, in Cincinnati, Ark. Their other children are Mrs. Goldie Mercier of Bellflower; Granvel, Mrs. Gladys Nation and Mrs. Bill Oakley, all of Long Beach. They also have seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. The Brights came to Long Beach in July of 1923.

Reciprocity Event Given

The Gladys Comstock Smith Foundation held its reciprocity meeting in the Blue Room of the Victor Hugo, when presidents belonging to the Presidents Club were entertained at a coffee hour and program.

Signe Monahan, president, extended greetings to the honor guests, and Mabel Trotter Dunn, chaplain, gave the invocation. A tribute was given to the late Mrs. Gladys Comstock Smith, founder of the organization.

The new first vice president, Jeanette Spurrier, introduced the speaker, Rev. H. B. Long of the Walnut Ave. Baptist Church of Long Beach, whose subject was "Forgotten Elderly Folks." Melle Roseff played several of her own piano compositions while coffee was served.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Tenter of Santa Rosa have announced the engagement of their daughter, Georgia Elaine, to Herbert J. Hogle of Long Beach. The couple have not yet set a wedding date.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Santa Rosa High, is now attending Santa Rosa Junior College. She is majoring in commerce.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Hogle of 3650 Golden Ave. was graduated from Poly High, where he was a member of Chi Sigma, and he attended Long Beach City College. He is now serving with the U. S. Navy.

Dinner Party

Mrs. Frances Holt was hostess at a dinner party Friday evening in her home, 1010 Appleton St., in honor of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. O. Giles of Hastings, Neb., who are wintering here. Guests were Mmes. Etta Tower, Lois Snyder, Grace Bigger; Misses Evelyn Watson and Flora Perry. Canasta was played during the evening. Reports Show Fine Record

An admirable record of numerous good deeds has been disclosed by reports of the activities during the month of the social service committee of Woman's City Club. Members of the committee had a luncheon meeting at Town Hall, with Mmes. Margaret Alee, Ann K. Stalling, Alma Kropp and Susie Frazer as cohostesses, when the reports were given. Mrs. Rose M. Wear, chairman of this active committee, presided.

Members visited 72 blind and shut-in men and women, taking them home-made cookies or candy, or a small gift. Many wheelchair lap robes and pillows also were taken to them. They made many scrapbooks for a children's hospital and a day nursery, and provided transportation for people going to clinics.

Mrs. Wear announced that the luncheon and tour of the Los Angeles County jail on Terminal Island was set for Wednesday, and that all chairmen and their guests are to meet at 10:30 a. m. at Town Hall with their donations of wearing apparel and shoes for women inmates to wear when they are released. Capt. Francis Blumfeld will take the Long Beach women on the jail tour. A Dutch treat luncheon will be available, if reservations have been made in advance, Mrs. Wear announces.

Walker's Hi-Teen Talk

It's Campus Star time again . . . yes, last night the most outstanding one of the three Hi-Teen Favorites from each school was chosen to bear the title of "CAMPUS STAR" and reap the rewards that go with the title.

It's pretty tough going, too, for the judges, that is, with 12 such terrific girls to choose from . . . it's hard to decide just which four are the most terrific! . . . and not just in looks! They are judged on their ability, their popularity, their cooperation and their all-around performance during the year.

Since they became Hi-Teen Favorites at Walker's, last September, they have been piling up points . . . for their job, their salesmanship, regularity of attendance, courtesy, personal initiative, and interest in merchandising. They have been showing off their modeling ability, too, at fashion shows, from time to time.

But the final test came a week ago Friday night at Walker's Voted Best by Boy Test fashion show on the second floor, when a jury of 12 top men from the high school campuses chose their favorite clothes. The audience of over 500 cast a popularity vote at this time and Wilma Hastings came to add her approval . . . One of the awards is a complete course in charm and modeling at Mrs. Hastings' school.

The WINNERS were announced last night at Walker's Annual Campus Star Dance for the Hi-Teen Club members, "Symphony of a Starry Night" . . . held in the Marine Room of the Wilton Hotel. It was attended by the largest crowd yet and if you weren't there, you surely missed out!

So now, let us introduce your four Campus Stars for 1954:

BABS DINSMORE from Wilson. She's a sophomore, very active in Lambda Phi, Y-Teens, Demos, Girls League, and was attendant to the Homecoming queen. She likes to swim and sew; and is showing she can do everything she attempts exceedingly well.

MARION BROWN, a junior at St. Anthony's, is the vivacious brown haired, brown eyed class secretary. She's a member of G.A.A., Sodality, and Y.C.S. Her special interest lies to Loyola University where Carl Maggio attends.

SHIRLEY SHAW will graduate from Poly this semester. Her special interest is music and dancing which she does to perfection. She's a member of Phi-Gam, Ragads, and A Cappella, on campus, and is known for her lovely voice, vivacious laugh, and good looking L.B.C.C. boyfriend Jon Sullivan.

MYRNA WALKER represents the senior class at Jordan, of which she is class secretary. She is also well known as Head Song Leader, Homecoming Queen, and a member of Socii, along with other school organizations. Her special hobby is knitting, and she showed exceeding talent as a chorus girl in the Jamboree.

In addition to the Campus Stars a publicity scout and style scout were named from each school. From Wilson, Carol Dalton is Style Scout and Bobbie Brown is Publicity Scout.

From St. Anthony Cherie Miles is Style Scout and Connie Canavan is Publicity Scout.

From Poly Margo Robertson and Barbara Nowling are Style Scout and Publicity Scout respectively.

From Jordan Suzie Fulton is Style Scout and Publicity Scout is Jo Ann Bigger.

Be sure to come down to the Hi-Teen Favorites' Campus Shop on Walker's Second Floor, and meet these girls on Saturdays . . . they're here to help you with your shopping problems.

Why Grow Old?

No Matter What Your Age You'll Find Sports Helpful

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Too many women think of sports, like jitterbug dancing, as for the young only. I think they are correct when it comes to jitterbugging, but some sport should be a part of every woman's life. There is a sport for every age.

Many distinguished physicians feel that lack of exercise rather than too much exercise is the culprit when it comes to premature aging. The sedentary life leads to early deterioration, poor circulation and lax muscles.

Sports are wonderful in their therapeutic value. They give you exercise, outdoor life and play and companionship. This is a magic combination, so far as health and beauty are concerned. Yet most women give sports up as soon as they are settled in their own homes. They are busy doing their housework and taking care of their babies and somehow they drop many outside activities which they formerly enjoyed.

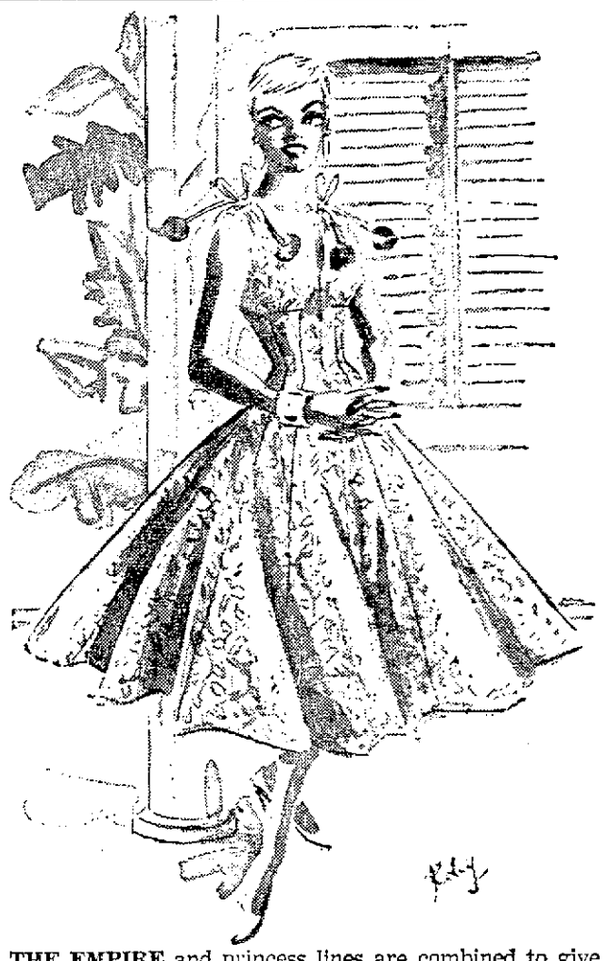

You can get more exercise playing ping-pong than you imagine. Put the table on the porch in the good weather and go to it! Badminton is not strenuous when you play doubles. Singles are rugged if you really try to get the bird. I mention these two because you can indulge in them at home. Even horse shoe throwing uses a lot of muscles.

Of course, golf and swimming are two sports you can take all through life with you if you use a little good sense in how hard you go at them. Roller skating and ice-skating and bicycle riding are three more which middle-aged and older folks in good health can enjoy.

Tennis is too vigorous to adopt at midlife. Many people play it into later years but they have played since early youth and are in training for it.

Before beginning any sport or exercise from middle life on you should have a physical checkup. You should have it anyway. Do not sit down to stiffen up. Tap the world of outdoor sports for increased vitality and fun. Do not let timidity make you hesitate.

Young Persons Must Weigh Pros and Cons of Marriage

By ANGELO PATRI

"Our son is back from the service. He has two years of college to complete and then to find a job. He and his girl want to be married right away. We want them to wait until the boy finishes his education and gets to work. They cannot see it and say they do not want to be old and gray when their children are growing up. What would you say?"

I would be inclined to go along with the young people provided they were the clear-headed kind who were accepting the hard facts of the life ahead. War makes many things that in peacetime would not be acceptable the only way out. I agree with the young people who want their children while they are able to take care of them, enjoy and endure them. I say "endure" advisedly.

Children are a great care for the first 15 years or so of their lives. They demand constant attention in the early years and they are a constant strain on the minds and bodies of their parents for the 20-odd years of their childhood and youth.

Children fall ill in the night and parents lose sleep. They have to be taken to the doctor and the dentist. They must be schooled. They must be taught how to live within the house and with the family. They must be trained so as to live comfortably with the friends and neighbors. All this goes on against the background of their parents' lives and they need the strength of ten. They need patience, tolerance, spiritual and physical strength and these are the attributes of youth.

Whether or not young people should marry must be a matter of their own decision. Life is never secure. There is no knowing what a day may bring forth, so even the wisest planning is of little assurance. Let the young people sit down, alone, together, make a list of why they should, another of why they shouldn't. Go over their resources. Then make their decision.

There was a time when we believed that once a child of the family married he was on his own. We cannot say that today and be sure we are right, so the only way out is to leave it to the young people and help them all we can. They are entitled to have their children while they are able to take them in good heart and health, entitled to the support and affection each offers the other. I think I am on their side.

FITTING YOUR BABY SHOES

By G. R. FOSHOLDT

Until the time comes that every person given the responsibility of fitting growing feet is specially trained as to the function of shoes in relation to feet, irreparable damage will continue. Each year, our children are walking less on nature's surface, which increases the importance of the proper shaped shoe and the correct fit for the individual child's undeveloped feet.

Mother, please keep in mind as you read these articles from Sunday to Sunday that we are referring to feet in the formative stages, that are being prepared for their future task: For weight bearing, to give poise and balance, and as a shock absorber as the weight strikes the ground.

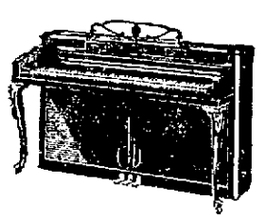

Now let us give you an example of what would happen, without a qualified fitter, or a store without adequate stock. Let us say your baby has extra wide feet requiring a EE width, with a thick instep and short toes. Unless the fitter has a shoe in this width, and is capable of recognizing this type of foot, he will use a shoe at least one size too long in order to get the shoe on, which would crowd the small toe, would bend in the wrong place, and would not fit under the arch. Do you realize what a few shoes fitted like this may do to his feet? This type of foot is common, but how many are fitted too narrow, using a D width instead!

In taking your child to a shoe store you may have observed that, even after your fitter has used a fitting device, he will in many cases, if conscientious, try two or more shoes before being satisfied in the fit. So please, mother, don't try to fit your child by guesswork.

Next Sunday: Baby Shoes, High vs. Low.

Penalty for Being a Gigolo

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am an unhappy man who married a rich widow.

She has a lot of education and I don't. I finished the eighth grade and then my old man made me get out and go to work. When I was 18 I went into the service and was discharged three years later. It was then I went to work on a dude ranch and that is where I met her. She was there for the summer and I taught her how to ride western style. She was a good egg and I liked her.

When she was going to leave, she took me to one side and said she would like to marry me, that she was lonesome, and that it would be a good job for me because she would put money in the bank for me and give me $200 a month to spend. That was a lot more than I was getting.

So, I quit my job and went to Chicago with her and we got married there. She bought me six suits at one time and hats and coats and more shirts than you could shake a stick at. She is a good-looking gal, a little plump maybe, which I never did mind, anyway.

We have been married two years now and she is getting tired of me. She used to take me wherever she went and I liked her friends, most of them, and they seemed to like me and would laugh a lot and be chums. But now she makes up a lot of excuses when she goes out as to why I should stay home or go to a movie, and I've got to feeling that she is ashamed.

She knew I wasn't a hot shot when she asked me to marry her. I'm a simple guy and I shouldn't ought to have married a woman just for money, but I did. I guess we all make mistakes and this was one.

Well, anyway, I left her the other day, and the people I'm staying with now said I ought to write to you. I think I ought to tell her to divorce me if she wants to or if she would rather I'd divorce her, I could do that. I don't think it's fair to keep her tied down to somebody she don't like.

I don't want any of her money. I shouldn't have taken what I did. Now all I want is to get out and get a job and work the way I used to.

What do you think I ought to do? I wrote to her, but no answer yet. Maybe she don't care where I am, or what.—JIM.

DEAR JIM:

You say you shouldn't have married this woman under those circumstances—to live off her. I agree.

You say you want to get a job and work the way you used to. I agree. It would be the best thing you could do to restore your pride—which must be at a low ebb right now. I can tell you feel pretty ashamed of acting the gigolo—and you ought to. It's a despicable role for a man.

How you could have played it, Jim, I don't know. But anyway, you see your mistake now. And let me ask you, how much better can a future be used than to make up for the past?

My suggestion is to call her, or write to her again, telling her what you've told me. Stress the fact that you don't want to be "paid off." Stress the fact, too, that you're ashamed of the role you played. Offer your wife her freedom—and suggest that you'd like yours.

After all, unless you have your freedom you'll continue in the role of gigolo—and what could be more softening to the character, I don't know. Your only chance to build up your self-respect and win the respect of others is to get out on your own again. Erase what's gone and start again, Jim.—M. M.

THOUGH he will settle for a bowl of cornflakes, he never feels quite "set-up" without his Cream o' Wheat. Now at 920 W. Anaheim, Chef of the Week Asa E. Fickling started his lumber business at American and Anaheim 34 years ago. He served Long Beach as mayor for a three-year term.

Lumber Executive Submits Recipe to Qualify as Chef

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

A bowl of Cream o' Wheat starts his day—and whether he be in India, Hong Kong or the Fiji Islands, he'll, without fail, hopefully and patiently order it. Chef of the Week Asa E. Fickling is a versatile man and by reason of actual experience.

Born in Cambridge, Ill., he started his westward trek at the age of 18, with South Dakota his first stop. His dad's farm provided the necessity for ingenuity. He thrived on that formula, so proceeded on to Iowa where he became affiliated with a company which practically owned the town. Grain, hogs, hardware, lumber, farm machinery, acting as postmaster and justice of the peace were all within his realm of jurisdiction.

In the meantime, a visit to the fairs at San Francisco and San Diego in the year '15 made an impression he couldn't forget. Then in 1919 the American Lumber Magazine advertised a Long Beach lumber yard for sale. That one proved too costly, but he found another located at Anaheim and American, and the sign "Fickling Lumber Yard Open for Business" went up. Though he has since moved to 929 West Anaheim, he has been in business on that street for 34 years. There are 33 lumber yards now as compared to eight in 1920.

Again, being in a bad spot at the right time became the lot of our "chef" for he was Long Beach's mayor in 1933 at the time of the earthquake. He was appointed to that office in 1930. A member of the Downtown Lions Club, he has been a four-time president of the Southern California Lumber Dealers Assn., an organization which includes some 600 yards — all south of the Tehachapi Mountains. Fickling was the first president of the Council of Service Clubs and has presided over the United Church Brotherhood and that same group at the First Methodist Church.

He golfs, but can't seem to remember his score—keeps a sylph-like figure "puttering" in the garage. He loves to tinker, be it on a clock or the family car. His travels have taken him into every state in the Union — to Canada, Alaska, South America and 12 countries in Europe. Last year he went out of bounds and toured the world, covered 55,000 miles, 25 countries and three islands.

Today, you guessed it, he's cooking Cream o' Wheat.

CREAM OF WHEAT
(4 to 6 servings)

To 3 cups water or 3½ cups milk, add ½ teaspoon salt and bring to rapid boil.

Slowly sprinkle ½ cup Cream of Wheat into boiling liquid, stirring constantly. Continue boiling over lowered heat for 5 minutes.

Serve with sugar and cream. Delicious, too, when topped with brown sugar and raisins or prunes.

They Keep the Breakwater Lighthouse

By Charles Neiswender

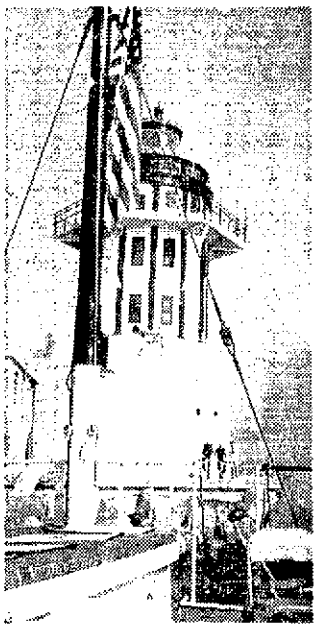

Prisms that flash beams far out to sea are shown here. Chief Henry Heikkila of the harbor breakwater light, makes an adjustment. He has four assistants.

TIME WAS when an old sea-dog who had too much salt and spray and was looking for a soft spot to retire without leaving the sea completely hired out as a lighthouse keeper.

All he had to do in the lonely tower on a rocky island or desolate seaward cliff was light the kerosene lamp in the evening and blow it out in the morning.

Today, there still remain a handful of these grizzled sea veterans and the kerosene-lamp lighthouses, but usually a modern lighthouse is manned by young Coast Guardsmen and there is far more than a wick to watch.

Seen from the deck of a harbor boat maneuvering close in are the breakwater light, 3 crewmen.

The installation on the tip of the breakwater at the entrance to Long Beach Los Angeles Harbor is more than a flashing beam of light . . . it is the home of a complete set of aids to navigation.

In charge at the Coast Guard-operated station is Chief Boatswain's Mate Henry Heikkila who directs four assistants in the operations of the lighthouse.

With Chief Heikkila are Oren Dinsmore, EM1; Kenneth Ritchey, EM3, and Seamen Albert Brechyne and Howard Sellz. It's "good duty," all five say, with 48 hours on and 42 hours off, despite the complexities and responsibilities of the post.

A MODERN LIGHTHOUSE is a fabulous place for a landlubber to tour. Atop the structure is the light, merely a 500-watt bulb encased in a removable green shield. Below, on the next deck, is the electronics equipment. The next deck down is the living quarters and galley. Below this is the power room with its massive generators.

Detailing the complexities, starting with the "mere" 500-watt bulb, shows that the bulb is not too important but the green shield is.

Long series of tests were made to uncover the exactly right color of shield to make the light different from any that might show miles at sea from the Long Beach, Wilmington, or San Pedro shoreline.

While it is called green, the shield is something of an unusual mixture of blue and green when it sweeps out to sea . . . unlike any light from land in its color.

A dual set of prisms, precisely ground and impeccably cared for surround the light. The prisms, made in France and installed when the light first went into operation in 1913, came in six separate circles of glass on each side and a "bullseye" for each side, looking somewhat like a round clam with its ribbed shell.

Still in use are two other circles of glass on one side and one on the other that were damaged in shipment from Paris. Since they are on the outer orbit of the prisms they do not affect the focusing of the light from the small bulb.

Within a few feet of the bullseyes, the focused light is intensely hot. Its beam, under ideal weather conditions can be seen for more than 20 miles. Far at sea, only the small circle of the bullseye is visible.

LIKE EVERYTHING else in the lighthouse, the mechanism that rotates the light has a dual power system run with electricity. If one fails the other can be switched on. If both fail, a weight-operated mechanism rotates the light.

The room containing electronics equipment is the heart of the lighthouse. From there, the light and fog horn at the tip of the Long Beach breakwater is operated by remote control as well as small lights at the tip of the central section of the breakwater and Fish Harbor on Terminal Island.

Some of the remote functions are carried out by control panels in the room and some through telephone. Again, all equipment is duplicated at the distant points to guard against failure.

Aside from the lights and foghorns, the electronics room controls the special calibrating transmitter that allows ships at sea to adjust navigational equipment through what is called a radio beacon, and serves as a distance-finding station. A network of Coast Guard radio beacon and distance-finding stations stretch from Scotch Cap at the tip of the Aleutian Islands to Pt. Loma near the Mexican border.

ANOTHER PART of the operation is a series of three clocks, weight-driven because electricity allows more than the minimum variation from Naval Observation Time of five seconds in 24 hours.

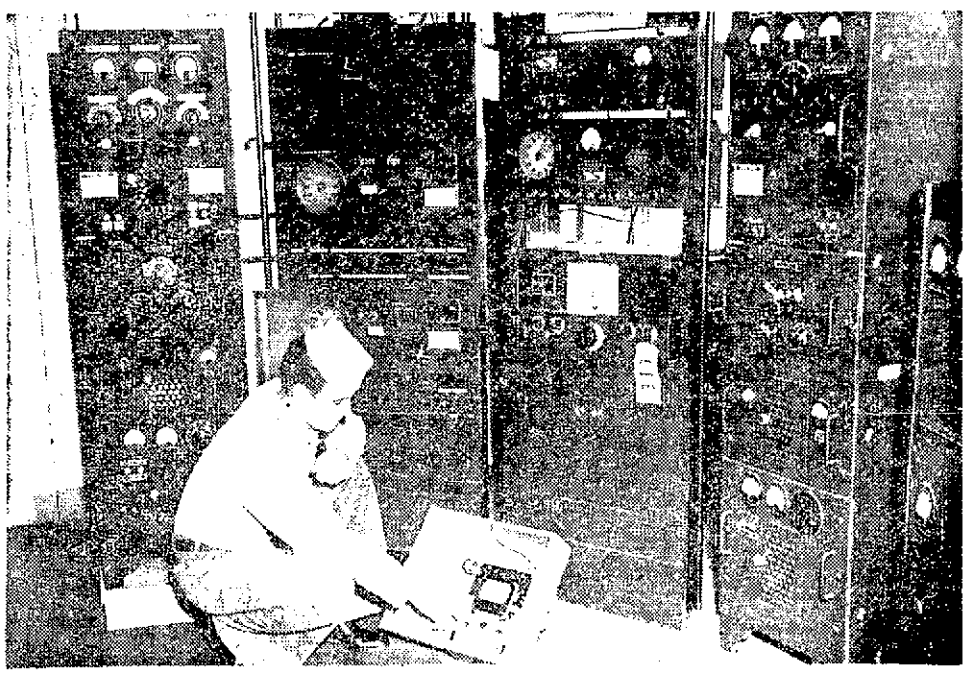

The clocks set off the radio beacon signal on time, regulate the timing of the radio beacon and the fog horn to provide for distance finding in fog, and generally time the intricate pattern of light, horn, and radio signal. Precise timing is needed because this lighthouse is timed with others along the coastline and even a split second would "foul" the operations of the different installations.

Skipping the galley and living quarters for a moment, a look in the power room discloses

Fishing is a crew recreation. Here is Cliff Dolan, EM1, a visitor, who snagged string of perch in few minutes.

Electronics equipment that provides many aids to navigation for ships at sea is checked here by Oren Dinsmore, EM1, principal assistant to Chief Heikkila.

IT'S ECONOMICAL, TOO, SAYS STATE ENGINEER

Landscaping Makes Highways Safer

By Ken Adams

THE PLANTING of shrubs, trees, and ground cover along California highways is primarily a matter of safety and economy. The often-used term "landscaping," says State Highway Engineer G. T. McCoy, is in most cases a misnomer.

Actual landscaping, in the sense of roadside planting for improved community appearance, is rare. It represents only a minute portion of state highway construction costs, McCoy said. In view of the state's vast highway needs, funds for landscaping are rigidly restricted as a matter of policy.

"Criticism of the Division of Highways for expenditures on so-called landscaping," he said, "has overlooked the fact that most of the roadside planting is an essential element of practical highway design, necessary to protect the public's interest in safety and ease of travel. A more truly descriptive term for this necessary function is 'roadside development'."

Expenditures for roadside development on state highways are approved only if they will:

1. Improve traffic safety.
2. Control weeds and reduce fire hazards.
3. Prevent erosion, thus keeping down future cost of upkeep and repair.

In the past two years, McCoy reported, the total cost of construction on state highways has totaled some $183,000,000. The outlay for roadside development was about $1,176,000, or about 64 cents out of every $100 of construction. For landscaping, included in the total for roadside development, the amount expended was only $86,441.

SOME OF THE PROJECTS included under the heading of landscaping, McCoy said, serve practical as well as aesthetic purposes. For example, "landscaping" items in recent years are the sections of lawn along the Hollywood and Santa Ana Freeways which have proved easier and cheaper to keep clear of wind-blown papers and trash than other types of planting. Another is the high thick screen of Japanese privet which absorbs traffic sounds along portions of the freeways in the Los Angeles area.

An example of roadside development to augment traffic safety on multi-lane divided highways is the planting of high-growing shrubs in the median or dividing strip. At the same time it provides a barrier against illegal and dangerous random crossings of the dividing strip.

Some of the level stretches of the U. S. 99 expressway through the San Joaquin Valley lend themselves readily to this type of natural safety treatment. Careful selection of plants which flourish in the particular region, such as oleanders, helps hold down maintenance and replacement costs.

ANOTHER TYPE of planting for the purpose of headlight screening consists of vines planted along fences between the roadways. Portions of the Arroyo Seco Freeway between Los Angeles and Pasadena offer examples of this type of screening.

Off-ramps on the Hollywood Freeway are marked by distinctive plantings. In urban areas, where city streets dead-end abruptly at freeways, a row of trees straight ahead in his path tends to make the motorist ease up on the throttle long before he can read the "Not a Through Street" sign.

THE MOST WIDESPREAD use of planting is to keep the roadside soil in place wherever it slopes up or down from the highway. It is much safer and cheaper, McCoy pointed out, to plant a little vegetation than to keep scraping off the roadway the dirt washed down from a cut slope or to keep shoring up an embankment undermined by gullies.

The Arroyo Seco Parkway is one of the best examples of multiple-purpose planting. The thick green English ivy which covers the cut slopes along this famous freeway, while appreciated for its ornamental value, was actually planted for erosion, weed, and fire control.

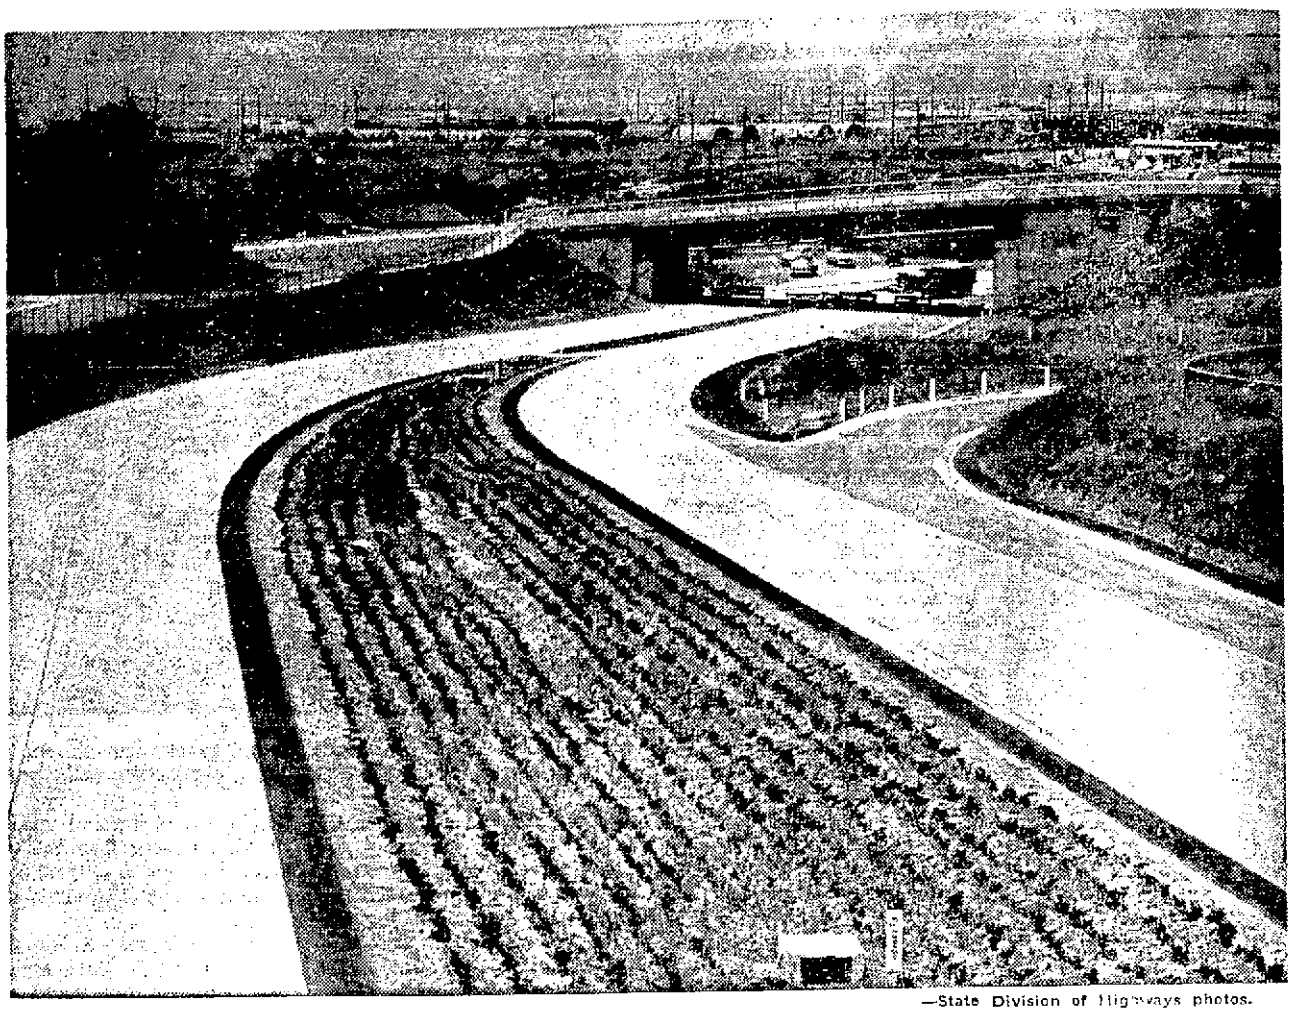

Similarly, the colorful ice plant on the slopes of the Atlantic Boulevard interchange on the Santa Ana Freeway is there because it will save thousands of dollars in maintenance costs. The "landscaping" effect, McCoy said, is purely a by-product.

WHERE TRUE LANDSCAPING is undertaken for the sake of attractiveness, McCoy said, it is a matter of preserving and enhancing the appearance of the community rather than of the highway. It is done only where there is general agreement as to the desirability and necessity of the work.

Also, in accordance with the California Highway Commission policy, no landscaping along state highways is authorized unless proper local ordinances are in effect to protect the investment against detractive sign installations.

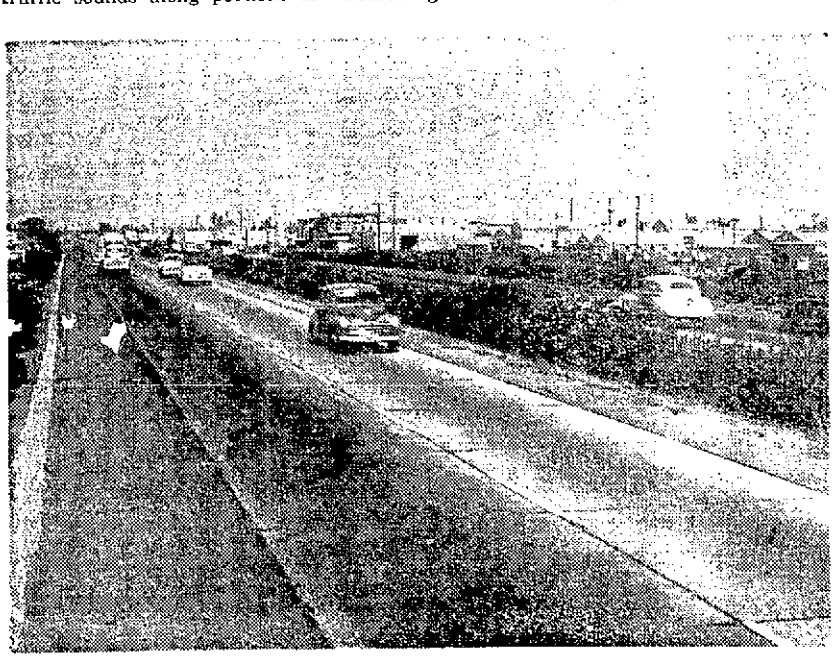

McCoy emphasized that all highway expenditures, including those for roadside development along state highways, are rigidly scrutinized.

"No such expenditures are recommended to the Highway Commission," he said, "unless we are certain that they will more than pay their way in terms of greater traffic safety, control of weeds and fire hazards, and keeping down the costs of highway maintenance."

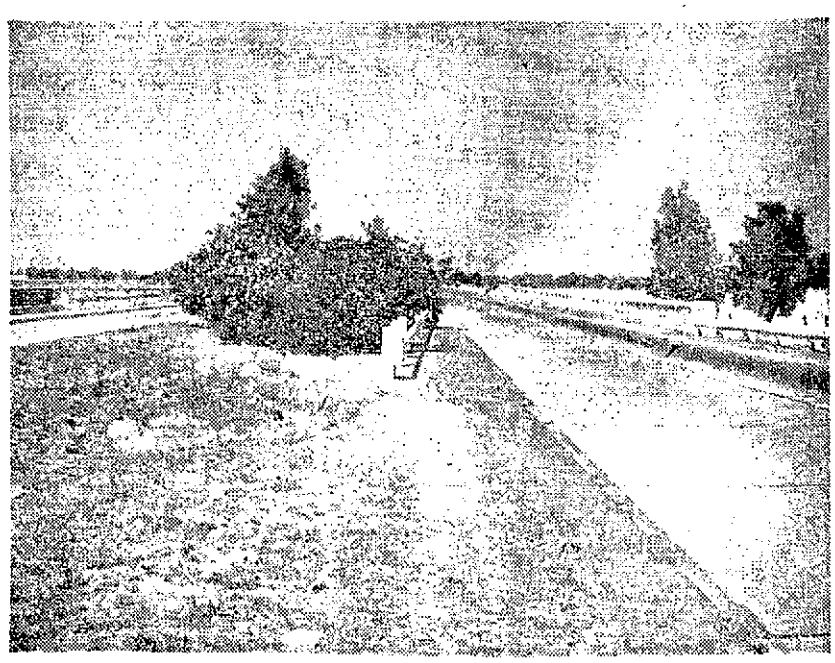

—State Division of Highways photos.

On this section of freeway on Hwy. 101 near Oceanside, soil will be kept in place by ice plant and natural grasses on adjoining hillsides and in ditch separating roadways, thus keeping down maintenance costs.

Mature oleander bushes separate north-bound and southbound roadways on U. S. 99 south of Fresno, screening opposing headlights at night.

Trees and shrubs grouped on straight and level section of U. S. 40 call attention of motorists to fact that they are nearing a bridge.

'The Living Desert'

THE MYSTERIOUS LIFE and allure of the desert, with its animal ferocities, its strange devotions, spectacular beauty and odd native humor all blended in a magnificent pageant—is the scene and substance of Walt Disney's first full-length True-Life Adventure which won an Academy Award Thursday night as the best documentary feature film.

The region covered in "The Living Desert" is the so-called Great American Desert, sprawling across loosely connected sections of the Southwest.

Here animal life persists in its primal ways, undisturbed by human encroachment, to work out its own destiny in accordance with the inscrutable designs of Creation. To see it, as the True-Life Adventure cameraman-naturalists have recorded it, is to peer back into geological time a million years and more from that comfortable theater seat just a few steps off Main St. or Broadway.

In these desolate solitudes, shunned by humans, Disney's collaborative wildlife photographers found an amazing variety and profusion of creatures, bizarre and beautiful, where life of any kind might be thought least likely to exist.

The picture answers with an incredible pageant of animal life the endless curiosity about the earth's wastelands: What lives here? How does it exist? What goes on behind the shimmering heat mirages? What ghosts of past inhabitants haunt its stony scarps and hidden arroyos?

DRAMATIC HIGHLIGHTS of wild life in action against the magnificent vistas of weird and beautiful landscape offer a constant succession of factual wonders and excitements.

Weaving the spell of the desert, natural comedy in animal antic balances the grimmer affairs of survival with which the picture seethes and holds compelling attention.

So profuse is the film footage brought in from the desert's most secret and remote places — so packed with dramatic incident —that fully 70 minutes of close-packed action are needed to do justice to the material.

Patient stalking and observation of western desert life by some of the nation's leading naturalist-photographers to compile "The Living Desert" occupied more than two years. Some of their trophies have never been seen on theater screens before.

Strangely stirring is the defense of her young by a valiant little kangaroo rat mother who kicks dust into the eyes of a serpent to divert danger. . . And the frantic dance of her tribal neighbors in joyous celebration of the victory.

Exciting is the furious chase of a trespassing bobcat by an outraged family of Javelinas, or desert peccaries, who run the abashed intruder to the tip of a giant cactus to lament his mistake.

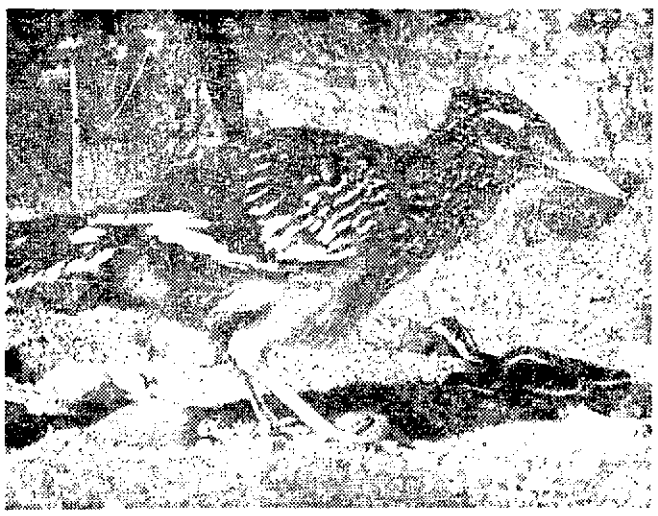

THE GIDDY COURTSHIP dance of a pair of scorpions in the moonlight, claw holding claw in primitive affection, is appropriately set to the measures of a hillbilly square dance in the picture's outstanding musical score.

Endlessly fascinating are the desert dwellers and their varied ways. Pictured also in their interlocked fate, are the roadrunner, the gekko lizard, the Gila monster, the chuckwalla, coati mundi, pocket mouse, spotted skunk, kingsnake, centipede, the tiny sober-faced elf owl of the cactus thickets and clouds of cliff-dwelling bats sallying out on their nightly foray — each kind having its brief moment or dramatic episode on the screen.

The picture adds up to an achievement far beyond mere skill with a lens!

Kangaroo rat mother saves her family by kicking sand in serpent's eyes in Disney's dramatic nature movie.

A hapless little garter snake meets his nemesis, the swift, ruthless roadrunner, in one of many episodes.

The ring-tailed cat is one of the shiest creatures in the great family of desert-bred animals seen in film.

It's lunch time for the ground squirrel in this full-length feature in Disney's True Life Adventure series.

An angry beauty of the desert thickets, young female bobcat, hisses hatred at a band of prowling javelinas.

No fearsome visitor from outer space, but the close-up of the fighting face and pose of the Wolf Spider.

Don't Blame the Weatherman

—Drawing by Clyde Winslow

Weatherman compares his forecast with the facts.

By Art Edson

Associated Press Newsfeature Writer

HOWEVER UNCERTAIN a weatherman may be, he's pretty sure of one thing: Nowhere is the weather any more tricky or more unpredictable than where he is.

Associated Press reporters have interviewed forecasters from coast to coast. The results are in, with this conclusion: Each weatherman really does have his special problems, and plenty of them.

If the forecaster is on the west coast, he's worrying about unseen storms hatching over that vast incubator, the Pacific Ocean.

In the middle west, he's watching weather that breeds rapid temperature changes.

If he's in the south, and the weather is near freezing, a drop of one degree can be disastrous.

If he's along the east coast, he may be worrying over what one weatherman has called "the most cantankerous, capricious, aggravating critter in all the meteorological world," the hurricane.

ROUTINE WEATHER in one area may be a calamity in another.

A. K. Showalter, chief of the joint analysis center of the weather bureau, Air Force and Navy, gives, this example:

"In Kansas City a 2-inch rain isn't too unusual. But if it rains that much in Los Angeles, where I used to forecast, the hills come down."

The weatherman's problems may involve decisions which - if correct and given quickly enough - will save lives and millions of dollars in property.

Or they may range down to that once faced by Forecaster Charles H. Pierce of Boston. A lady called in to ask what the weather would be like in two weeks.

"I need to know," she confessed, "because I am planning to have an affair in my garden that night."

Let's drop in on the forecasters, traveling as the weather usually does, from west to east.

First stop San Francisco, with R. Corday Counts Jr.

Counts says the trouble is, weather isn't an exact science yet.

"There are factors we don't understand," he says, "or are not able to observe. And every forecast center has other problems caused by the influence of mountains, valleys and water areas."

THE WEATHER BUREAUS on the west coast depend on ships for news of weather out at sea. Since the ships often are widely scattered, Counts says, "a storm may be threatening the west coast for hours before we know about it."

Local boosters sometimes berate the weatherman for not being more optimistic in his forecasts. But Counts thinks the most enthusiastic Los Angeles rooter must have been satisfied with a forecast made there a few years ago. The forecaster promised:

"Sunny today, tonight and tomorrow."

J. C. Thompson holds the weather fort in Los Angeles today. He says his hardest job is to predict the first rain after the long summer dry spell. Everyone is interested one way or another, he says, so a miss becomes very public.

Up in Seattle, Carrol Elford says weather possibilities often boil down to a 50-50 proposition. But, he adds a little wistfully, "nobody's ever satisfied with a forecast which says 'It may, then again it may not'."

J. C. Eberhardt of Salt Lake City says he has his roughest times forecasting cold fronts. He can never be certain the cold air masses will not be stopped by towering nearby mountains.

Kansas City's H. L. Jacobson finds that in Kansas, three great air masses from Canada, the Rockies and the Gulf may meet.

"It's hard to imagine," Jacobson reports, "when there's not an emergency."

EVERY FORECASTER has a prediction he's particularly proud of. On Jan. 1, 1946, Kansas City weathermen were able, after close study of upper air data, to predict a storm would form into eastern Nebraska and become a blizzard.

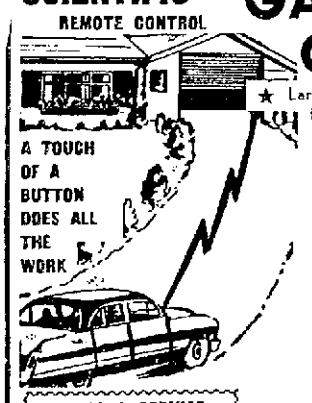

It did, and dumped 4 feet of

WEATHERMAN'S EPITAPH

And now among the dying embers,
These in the main are my regrets:
When I am right no one remembers,
And when I'm wrong no one forgets.

OUR COVER

The picturesque snow scene on today's Southland cover, photographed in Ansco color by Ed Hecker near his mountain home at Lake Arrowhead, reminds that the deepest snow of the year lay during the past three or four days in areas easily accessible to Long Beach skiers. Naturally, with snow depths ranging from two to five feet depending to a great extent on altitude — skiing was reported the best of the year. Depths, in inches, reported by The Automobile Club of Southern California as Southland went to press: Big Bear, 24 to 60; Blue Ridge, 50; Kratka Ridge, 48; Mount Baldy, 36 to 72; Mount Waterman, 48; Snow Summit, 24 to 60; Snow Valley, 36 to 54; Table Mountain, 36 to 60; Holiday Hill, 24 to 48; Green Valley, 36 to 48. Have snow-fun, all!

snow in a little more than 30 hours.

In Chicago, Forecaster Gordon E. Dunn wrestles with meteorological brain twisters worked up over the near-by Great Lakes.

"The peculiarity here," says Dunn, "is that there is normally more cloudiness and precipitation in the Great Lakes region than elsewhere and frequent precipitation always makes forecasting difficult."

Sounds like a simple solution: Predict rain.

In Atlanta, L. F. Thomas recalls his bureau was swamped with telephone calls 800 in 8 hours one day a few years back.

"It was nothing but a little cold spell," Thomas recalls, "but in the south a little cold spell can spell big trouble. People here worry as much about a temperature of 32 as they do about zero in the midwest."

Georgia peach growers and other farmers can be ruined by a sudden cold snap.

FARTHER SOUTH, in Miami, Grady Norton is the nation's hurricane specialist. When a hurricane roars up in the Caribbean, Norton must keep constant track of it and issue frequent bulletins on its progress.

During the approach of one hurricane, the Miami Weather Bureau received 32,000 telephone calls.

Norton's appraisal of the hurricane: "It's a cantankerous, capricious, aggravating critter."

In New York City, Ernest J. Christie says making a forecast is only half the problem.

"Passing along what you know is probably, as great a problem as forecasting," he says.

Christie's pet gripe is the broadcaster who cuts a forecast down to "cooler" or just "snow."

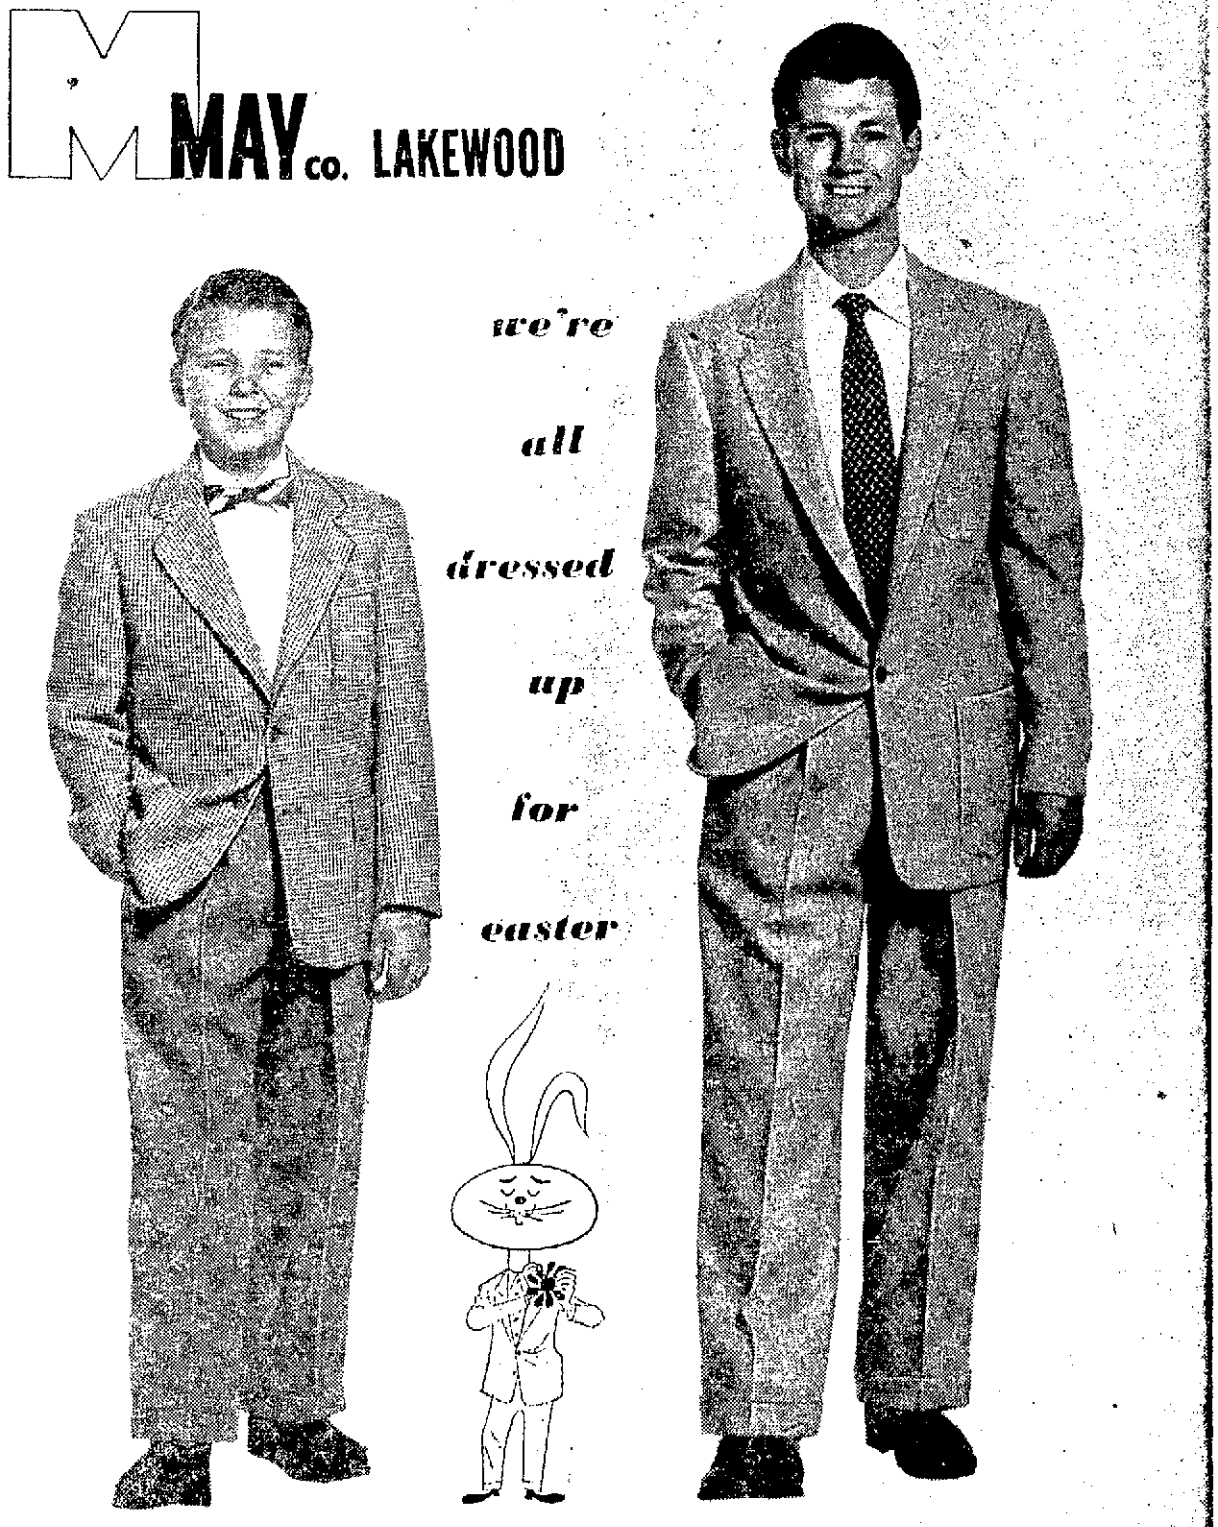

"If the reasons for the forecast were given," he says, "I think people would get more out of it."

Hi-Fi - - Newest

By John Frederick

Press-Telegram Radio-Television Editor

HI-FI IS SWEEPING the country with the same gusto that Monopoly, Mah Jongg, Chinese Checkers and Scrabble managed to muster, but there is a vast difference between games and good musical production.

The term, "Hi-Fi," for high fidelity, is the newest catchword of Americanese. There is science behind this new means of reproducing the very high and very low notes of any musical program, record or alive.

Fidelity is the measure of preciseness or fullness of tone and it follows that high fidelity is the very peak of excellence in precise reproduction. A true high fidelity set, either phonograph, record player or specially constructed system, must be capable of reproducing every tone, and overtone, which a musical instrument produces — within the limit of human hearing, of course.

Most important to remember in selecting your own Hi-Fi set is that it must not introduce any tones of its own to mar the perfection of the music offered. Distortion can come from a record player that is not perfect in its rotation or from a needle that is not fit to the recording grooves properly. It may also come from the amplifying system itself or from the speaker.

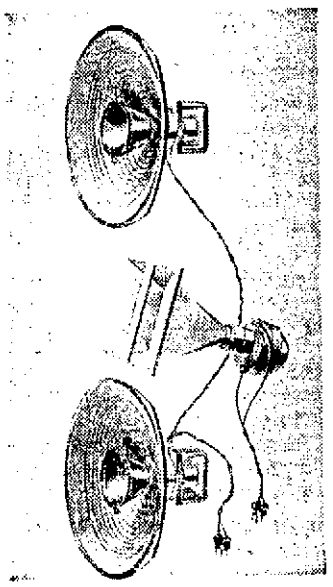

One of the first rules to remember in purchasing a Hi-Fi set is that you get what you pay for in most cases. Certainly this is true in nationally branded lines of record players, phonographs or combinations. Many people prefer setting up their own Hi-Fi system in their home, using two or more speakers.

The two-speaker system is very popular now, not only in radio, record players, etc., but in television. Many of the new sets have a speaker to handle the high notes and one to handle the low notes. Perfectly blended through the amplifier controls comes the music with the very high notes and very low notes harmonizing with the great middle structures.

NATURALLY, you want an FM radio for Hi-Fi — and it is wise to buy a set that has both AM and FM. Many programs on the standard bands are not on FM and others are on FM alone. Thus you would be providing yourself with both of the frequency sets against the time when some one program is to be enjoyed. FM is received without any static — no man-made interference — and gives as near perfect quality as can be obtained on radio.

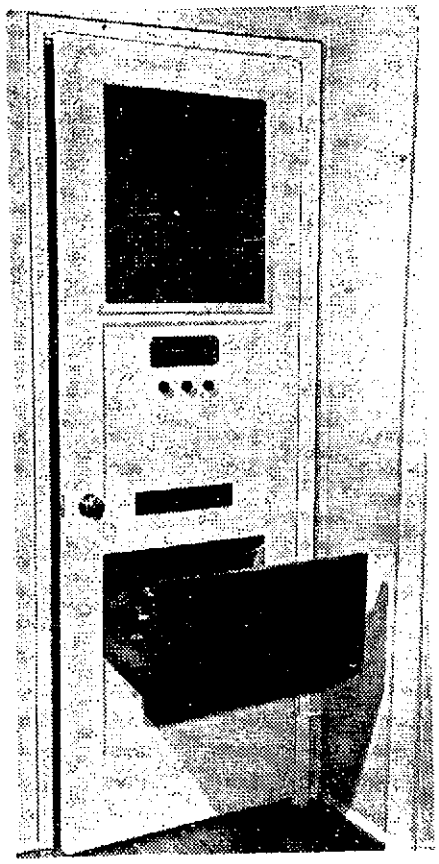

Most of the big firms in the business of producing sound systems have come out with regular Hi-Fi sets that retail from about $150 up. They come in regular console or table model cabinets and are a nice piece of furniture when not in use.

However, it remains a fact that real enthusiasts for high fidelity will assemble their own systems to fit the acoustics of their room and please their own hearing. These installations can become very expensive, depending upon the extent of the system. Many new homes are being piped for sound in all rooms and many restaurants and retail stores in Long Beach use the high-fidelity FM radio for store-wide music reproduction.

One Hi-Fi set comes with two speakers with sound diffusers and also a high-frequency horn speaker.

MANUFACTURERS now provide matched component parts of a hi-fi system and this is rather expensive. But you can shop around and get the various parts you need without spending too much money. In doing your looking for a high-fidelity system take along one of your own favorite records and shop until you hear the set that gives your ear the most pleasing notes.

Here are the parts you'll need for setting up your own home hi-fi sound system:

TUNER ("Hi-Fi" word for radio). You can have AM, FM or AM/FM, depending upon your locale and the stations you receive.

RECORD PLAYER: Here you have your choice of two types. Automatic record changers which will operate on all three speeds (old 78 rpm and the longer-playing 45 and 33⅓ rpm). Check your player for unevenness of speed, which can well produce wavering tones. However, most experts agree that a turntable with a powerful motor and a manually operated tone arm will give best results.

AMPLIFIER: This controls the volume and tone. There are three parts to these high-fidelity amplifiers: pre-amplifiers, power amplifier and power supply plus many optional refinements. The amplifier takes the electrical impulses from your tuner or tone arm and delivers them to the speakers.

LOUDSPEAKERS: This converts the amplified electrical impulses into sound energy and delivers the music to you. You will need a "woofer" (a kind of horn that produces the low frequencies) and a "tweeter" (to deliver the highs). There are coaxial systems where the tweeter is fitted into the woofer and even tri-axial systems. Three separate speakers are considered as de luxe installations at the present writing.

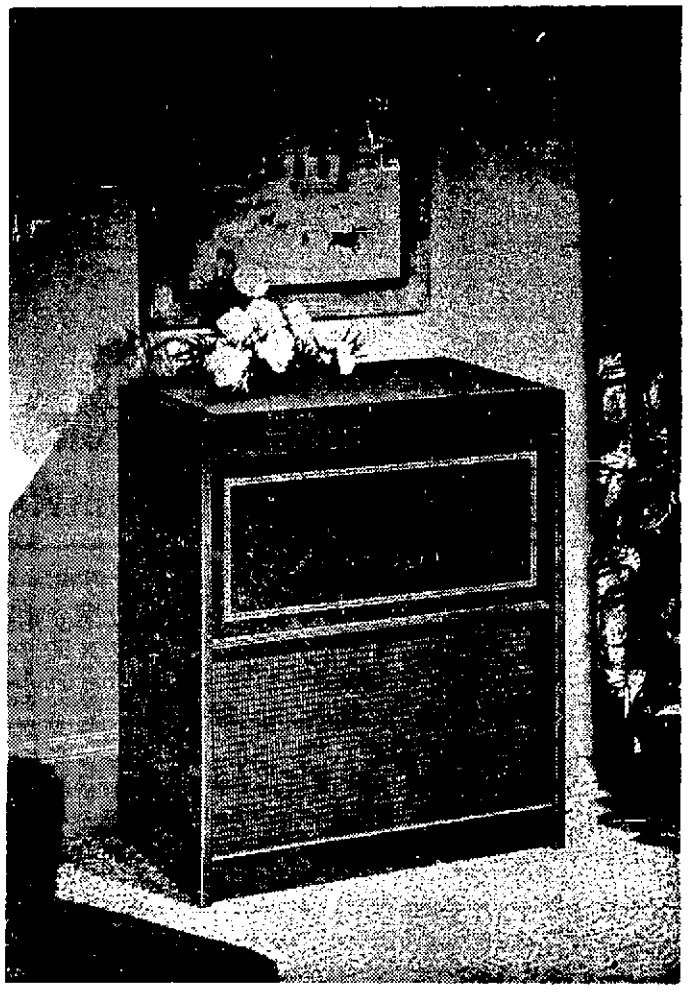

PICKUP CARTRIDGE: This is the gimmick that gets the music out of the recording. Magnetic pickup cartridges are the most popular as they provide no surface noise.

STYLUS: This is the "needle," as we used to know it, but not any more. There are hundreds of different types of stylus from which to select the right one for your system. The long-lasting diamond stylus is the most preferred but certainly the most expensive. Nearly every record player calls for a certain type of stylus and it is best to be sure to check with your dealer for replacement parts.

NOW, AS WE GET ALONG toward the close, let's remember one thing when assembling our high fidelity system. It is imperative to have more power than you use. A 40-watt system is ideal even though you will never use all that power. It is like driving a high-powered car at moderate speed for a far smoother ride than driving a low-powered car at the same speed.

Always keep your units easily accessible for repair work. If you build them into a wall or cabinet be sure they are easy to remove. Put your loudspeakers in a corner if possible and be sure you have a large enough speaker housing. Be sure the system is well ventilated as they generate a lot of heat and this can be disastrous to your sound system.

We hope you'll enjoy your new Hi-Fi system. Any dealer will be pleased to discuss the technical and fine points with you.

You usually get what you pay for in Hi-Fi. Get the best and you'll be repaid with fine music.

Cabrillo Overtakes the Lovely Goddess

By Aubrey B. Haines

FOR YEARS the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor has been a national shrine attracting many hundreds of thousands of visitors annually. But what almost nobody knows is that back in 1949 the Goddess of Liberty got a new rival which has been outdoing her in luring visitors every year since. In 1941, only 85,408 people went to see the Cabrillo monument in San Diego's harbor, a great contrast to the 452,143 who saw the harbor goddess. Cabrillo has been gaining on the goddess ever since. So last year saw 757,468 people at the Cabrillo shrine while only 714,345 sought out the Goddess of Liberty.

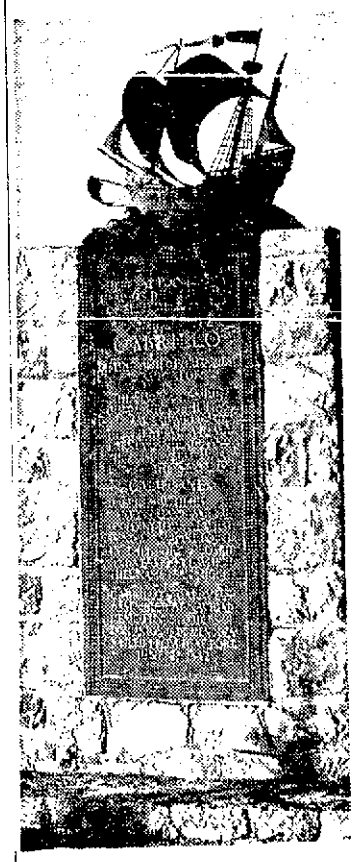

The Cabrillo National Monument, as it is now called, commemorates the discovery of the coast of California by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo on Sept. 28, 1542. His landfall at Point Loma, on which the monument is located, and his entrance and landing in San Diego Bay—which he called San Miguel Bay—mark the first contact of Europeans with this part of the New World.

Significant as Cabrillo's discovery was, it represents only an incident in the explorations which had such a profound effect on the institutions and the thought of our civilization. The voyage was one of many sea and land expeditions by means of which Spain extended its dominions in the New World and made known the continental character of the Americas.

TWO SMALL VESSELS, the San Salvador and the Victoria, sailed under Cabrillo's command on June 27, 1542, from Navidad on the west coast of Mexico. Crossing the gulf of California.

After three months of navigating, the two ships finally arrived at the islands that can be seen off the Mexican shore, opposite San Diego Bay.

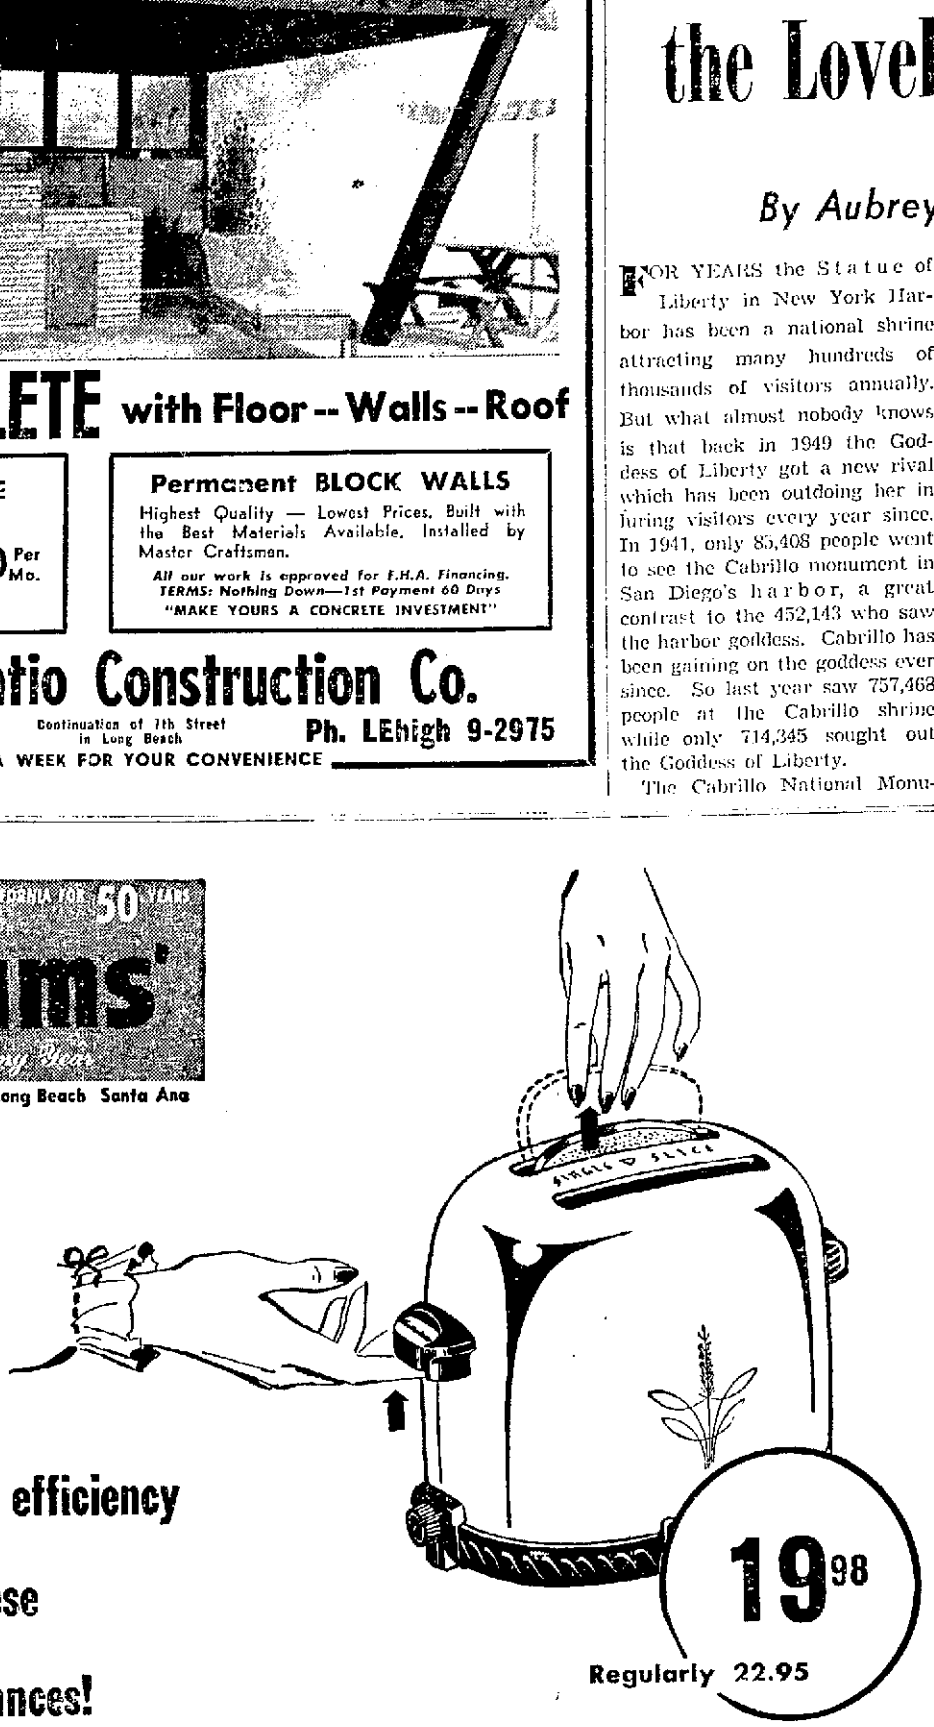

The Cabrillo National Monument consists of one-half acre and was established by Presidential proclamation in 1913. The old San Diego Lighthouse on Point Loma is the principal historical structure in the area and was first lighted back in 1855. From the tower of this sandstone building the visitor beholds one of the great seascapes of the world. An inspiring scene, it comprises the ocean, bays, islands, mountains, foothills, valleys, and plains surrounding San Diego. Is it any wonder then that the Goddess of Liberty has had to give way to this new rival — the monument to Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo?

Bronze and stone marker tells story of Cabrillo.

Apartment Refreshed

A cozy dining area is situated by the window in the 8th-floor O'Donnell apartment. Note planter and desk.

JUST AS A FAMILY can outgrow a house, they may also outgrow an entire way of life. When children grow up and leave, and the head of the house retires, the need for a large house dwindles. And often the attractions of a more carefree apartment - dweller's existence beckons welcomingly.

However, it is occasionally difficult for former owners to accept the fact that such a roof is not their own. Too many years of hanging pictures where and when they wished, painting rooms to suit their fancy, and performing minor and major feats of redecoration can make the prospect of renting less intriguing.

The solution, then, for a leisurely, yet completely independent mode of housing might be to consider an "own-your-own" apartment.

Which is just what the C. J. O'Donnells of this city did less than a year ago.

The O'Donnells were tired of the maintenance of their California Heights home, which kept them close to home most of the time and caused a certain amount of worry when they traveled. So they investigated the merits of owning an apartment. And now, in their newly decorated eighth-story domicile in the Sovereign Apartments, they are getting ready for an extended European tour. And the best part about the trip will be the complete absence of any concern for the "home front."

But lest this all sound easier than it really was, it should be mentioned here that this apartment, as it appears today, bears not even slight resemblance to the apartment in which the O'Donnells originally "saw possibilities" and bought.

To begin with, virtually every partition in the apartment was torn down, and small rooms became large ones. Meaningless nooks and crannies indigenous to buildings constructed 30 years ago were eliminated. Folding beds and narrow-shelved cupboards were ripped out. And with their removal, a completely modern, spacious apartment emerged — almost unbelievably beautiful.

THE SMALL ENTRY has been papered on one wall with a tiny medallion design in rose and deep aqua. The other wall appears to be solidly paneled in natural mahogany. But, in reality, vast storage areas are con-

COOKING

Finnan Haddie Casserole

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

TIME WAS when the "poor fish" inevitably landed in the frying pan.

Time, though, has been very good to the fish, for now it finds itself in thermidors, Newburgs, broiled, baked, and even pickled. It holds its own in cream sauces, tomato sauces or just plain buttered, too.

During the Lenten season we turn to fish — fresh or frozen, fish in shells or even cans. And well we should, for gourmets and culinary experts have left nothing undone in their perfection of recipes to delight the homemaker, her family and her guests with this food from the watery depths.

One young lady who charms her guests with both her personality and the foods she serves is Mrs. T. E. Peterson, 4543 Goldfield Ave. Her Finnan Haddie Casserole recipe is featured today.

Since many of you will be alert to other ways of serving fish, we suggest the following:

Oysters and Bacon

Large oysters
Sliced bacon
Hot, buttered toast
Salt, pepper
Tartar sauce
Lemon
Paprika

Select large fresh oysters, drain and wrap each with a strip of bacon, fasten the bacon in place with a toothpick. Sprinkle each with paprika, salt and pepper and grill them under the broiler heat till the bacon is well browned. Serve two on a round of hot buttered toast. Serve with lima beans and diced tomato salad.

Fish can be prepared by many interesting methods, as in Finnan Haddie Casserole, a recipe given elsewhere on this page and from the file of Mrs. T. E. Peterson.

Broiled Steaks or Fillets

Brush fillets or steaks with bacon drippings, butter or oil. Sprinkle generously with paprika. Line broiler pan with aluminum foil, place steaks or fillet on pan, broil about 8 to 10 minutes on one side, turn when half the thickness has become opaque and broil on other side. Allow 15 minutes for cooking fish 1 inch thick. ½-inch steak about 9 minutes. Steaks or fillets may be sprinkled with lemon juice, spread with mayonnaise.

Savory Fish Stuffing

4 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, chopped
1 large green pepper, chopped
½ cup tomato puree
¼ teaspoon marjoram
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
Pepper to taste
1 cup bread crumbs

Melt butter, add onion, saute for 5 to 10 minutes. Add chopped green pepper, cook five minutes longer. Add puree, seasonings, cook for 5 to 8 minutes. Add bread crumbs, blend well, remove from heat.

Mrs. Peterson's Finnan Haddie Casserole:

Cover 1 lb. finnan haddie with cold water and bring to a boil. Simmer 15 min. Cool and flake.

To 2¼ cups of boiling salted water add ⅔ cup brown rice. Cover tightly and cook over low heat for 45 minutes.

Make a cream sauce of 3 tbs. butter, 3 tbs. flour and 1 cup milk. Last, stir in 1 beaten egg yolk. To this mixture add flaked finnan haddie, 1½ tbs. finely chopped onion, ½ cup finely chopped celery and 2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Salt and paprika to taste.

Place half of the cooked rice in a well-buttered casserole. Pour over this the cream sauce mixture and top with the remaining rice. Dot with butter and bake at 350 degrees F. oven for 20 minutes. Rem ovefrom oven, sprinkle with grated Tillamook cheese and bake 10 more minutes.

Kitchen Tip:

Mrs. Peterson's Kitchen Tip: Homemade waffle batter will keep several days in the refrigerator.

Keepers of the Lighthouse

a battery of generators that turn out enough power for a small town. Electricity is produced through generators to prevent a loss of power through broken cables in the event of storm, earthquake or snagging by a ship.

RELAXING between watches is done on the galley deck. Radio, television, and phonograph are available. Also, the inevitable coffee is always steaming on the stove.

Between tours of duty, Chief Heikkila and his men may fish for recreation and also may catch a few lobsters and crabs from the rocks of the breakdater for special meals.

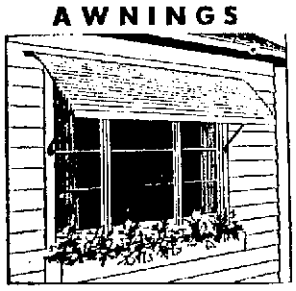

Another pastime is talking about wives and children. All are married except Sellz. The chief says a modern lighthouse operation appears to appeal more to married men than the bachelors. Most single men prefer ship or shore duty than life abourd the lighthouse station.

Chief Heikkila expressed it for himself and his men when he said:

"Don't say too much about what good duty this is or there'll be a hundred guys applying and trying to cut us out of the job."

So, gone are the days of the lonely lightkeeper. Nowadays he is young, specially trained through difficult study, and usually a happy family man in a job with a future, instead of being tucked away to muse over the past.

HOW TO Speed Your Home Repairs

ABOUT HALF THE WORK of making home repairs can be saved by having a tool carrier ready for action. All you need to save many steps is an open-topped box equipped with a handle and provided with compartments for tools, nails, screws and spare parts.

The photographs show contruction of such a toolbox. This one was built of pine boards salvaged from a scrap pile. Among its features are rubber corner pads to prevent damage to woodwork or furniture, a porcupine arrangement in the handle for carrying screwdrivers and other small tools, and compartments in which tools and supplies are stowed.

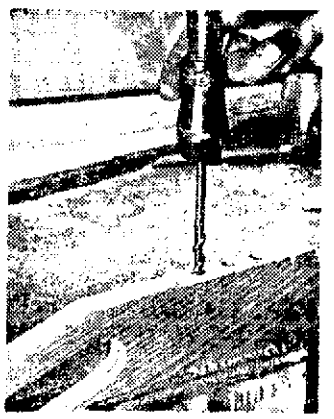

HERE IS THE TOOLBOX ready to go on a repair job. It holds such always-needed tools as hammer, saw, screwdriver, pliers, nail set, awl, file, steel tape and pencil, and such repair items as nails, screws, faucet washers, cotter pins and glue. For specific jobs, add the tools required. Note rubber corner bumpers to protect finishes, leather could be used instead. Cement bumpers in place or imbed heads of tacks.

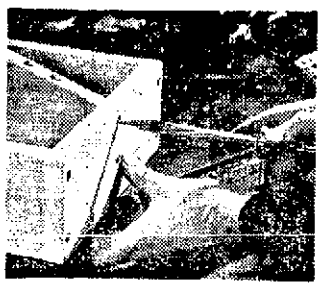

Center board should be wide enough to provide space for a handle. Here, hand opening is being cut with a saw after two holes were bored at ends. Lumber ¾ inch thick is suitable for box and center partition; thinner stock could be used for the other partitions.

After handle piece is cut, round its various corners and edges with a rasp and sandpaper. Then, in the edge, bore several holes ranging from ¼ inch to 7/16 inch in diameter, 2 to 3 inches deep. These hold small tools; should be drilled at right angles to edge of board as shown in picture.

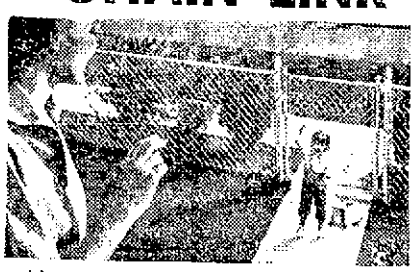

For maximum strength and service, assemble your toolbox with countersunk wood screws. Nailed joints will hold for a time, but eventually will open as box is knocked around.

REANEAU E. MON

REANEAU E. MON, owner of the Talk o' the Town restaurant at 3980 E. Ocean Blvd., is a wise, friendly gentleman who learned long ago that people love to eat chicken.

So, by golly, he serves 'em chicken. And it's prepared in not merely two or three different ways—but in a dozen different ways. All, needless to say, are unique and delicious.

Three of Mon's chicken specialties are served in grandeur on silver platters. These are his Chicken Au Sec, which is sauteed in sherry and prepared with fresh mushrooms in a special sauce; his roast whole young capon, served with a southern cornbread dressing and giblet gravy, and Mon's scrumptious Chicken Cacciatore, which is also sauteed in sherry and served with fresh mushrooms, tomatoes and peach compote.

OTHER CHICKEN preparations which leave the guests' palates tingling with pleasure are Mon's chicken in the pot, served in a covered casserole with egg noodles and Parisienne vegetables; his barbecued chicken from the Ozarks; charcoal broiled chicken with a spiced crabapple and his chicken liver specialty served with a rasher of bacon on toast.

But that's not all. Mon's originality also includes a spectacular whole baked boneless squab chicken stuffed with expensive wild rice; chicken curry West Indies style with steamed rice, Major Grey's chutney and coconut, and also a chicken pot pie served with a rich gravy and a flaky crust en casserole. In addition, there's Mon's marvelous chicken Eugenia which includes breast of chicken, baked ham and fresh mushrooms served under glass.

The prices are all reasonable and, since Mon's is a real dinner house, all entrees are served with complete dinners. Included are the Talk o' the Town's famed onion soup, giant chilled salad, baked potato with cheese sauce, hot cheesebread and a sundae for dessert.

Kimonos to Replace Sarongs in Honolulu

NATIVE SARONGS will be replaced by kimonos this spring when Honolulu acquires a Nipponese flavor for its second annual Cherry Blossom Festival sponsored by the Japanese Chamber of Commerce.

Already ranked alongside such popular yearly Hawaiian programs as Aloha Week and the Chinese Narcissus Festival, this season's Cherry Blossom Festival will be staged April 19 through May 1. Mainland visitors from this city traveling to the Islands for the unique pageant have their choice of 14 weekly United Air Lines' flights departing from both San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Although cherry trees won't grow in the islands, Honolulu vacationists will see plenty of blossoms or reasonable facsimiles adorning Oahu thoroughfares. Entertainment will ininclude religious dances, floral shows and a coronation ball, one of the big social events of the year. Leading restaurants will feature special Oriental dishes.

A "Sport Field Day" at Ala Moana Park will highlight competition and demonstrations of Sumo (wrestling), Judo (self-defense), Kendo (fencing), Kyudo (archery) and other traditional Japanese sports and feats of strength and agility. Cultural programs contrasting ancient modes of dress with present day wear are also slated. A gigantic fireworks display will close the 13-day festival.

United serves Honolulu with eight DC-6 air coach and six de luxe Mainliner Stratocruiser flights weekly. The airline also offers eight inclusive Hawaii vacation tours averaging from seven to 23 days.

'Motoring to Mexico' Ready

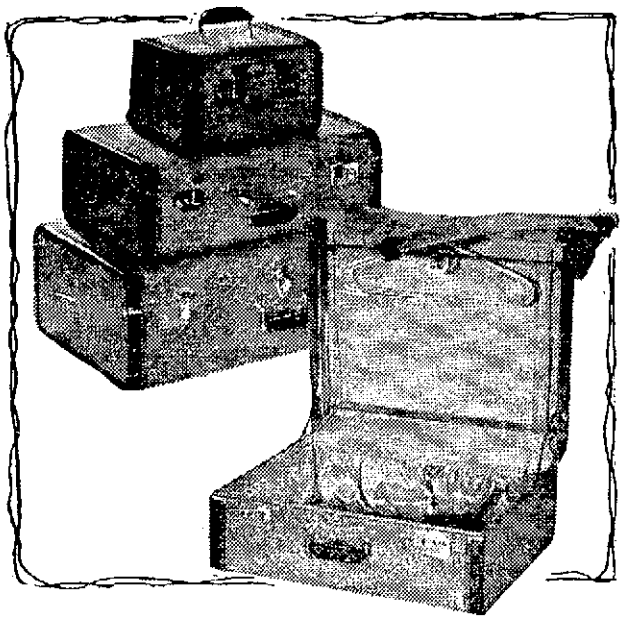

THE EXTRAORDINARY expansion of the Mexican Highway System, including the Pacific Highway from Nogales to Mexico City soon to be completely paved, is featured in the 14th edition of the booklet, "Motoring to Mexico," recently published by the Travel Division of the Pan American Union. The booklet may be obtained by sending 25 cents to the Pan American Union, Travel Division, Washington, D. C.

The Pacific Highway will be especially convenient for motorists from California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and the middle west of the United States, and will open up new vistas for the seasoned travelers who have been to Mexico by other routes. Although somewhat longer than the routes via Laredo or Ciudad Juarez, the trip from Nogales to Mexico City along the Pacific Coast is one of the most scenic.

The northern section of the highway is much used by U. S. tourists who drive to Guaymas for fishing vacations or for general relaxation at the desert resorts on a beautiful land-locked bay in the Gulf of California.

In addition to logs on Mexico's principal highway routes giving detailed information on altitude, population, historic landmarks, some local fiestas, and available facilities such as gasoline stations, repair shops, telephone, telegraph, restaurants and hotels, the booklet also contains sections on what clothing to take with you, what documents you will need, customs and safety regulations, and many other subjects.

CAMERA ANGLE

Go Fly a Kite, but... Take Camera Along

Kite-flying pictures are perennial pictures—but such good material that new ones can be taken every year.

By the Shutterbug

MARCH has long been known as a month of strong breezes. They may be warm, or very chilly. March isn't exactly the most dependable of months, weatherwise. But, there is always the wind, and it can offer us some very interesting picture-taking opportunities.

One sure-fire subject for a good snapshot is a boy and a kite. It's a perennial favorite.

In fact, there's one such picture that's almost a classic — one of tried and proven composition.

We are referring to the picture which includes one or more young kite flyers, posed on a knoll. The kite is seen in the distance with the sky for a background. The youngsters' backs are to the camera. This is a picture that includes all of the elements of a first-class snapshot. Obviously, that's the reason why such pictures so often crop up in the prize-winning ranks.

THIS YEAR, however, we've got an idea that we think will make your enjoyment of such a picture even greater. Why not make it the climax of a series of story-telling pictures? One picture of your favorite youngster is fine, but a series of them is always better.

If the weather is on the cool side, it may well be that your picture story will have its beginning indoors, probably in the basement. Wherever the kite construction takes place, assembly of materials and tools would make the first picture. From there on, each major step should be recorded. If this is a joint father-son project, mother should take over the camera to snap them as they are both absorbed in their task.

Progress on the kite will write the script for your shooting and will lead nicely into the popular end-result picture we described earlier. Consider having the kite-flying shot enlarged and have the other pictures build up to the big one to form a fine page for the family album.

CLAUDE FREEMAN, program chairman of the Long Beach Camera Guild, announces that the travelogue section of the Guild will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the social room of the Bank of Belmont Shore, 5129 E. Second St.

The program will be varied. The first part will be a series of colored slides showing "Desert Country of the Southwest" with Elva and Don Hayward presented "Arches National Monument"; Howard Rollins, "Monument Valley and Canyon Dechelly"; Lowell Weeks, "Navajo Country and Character Studies"; Floyd Williamson, "Dead Horse Point" and Edith and Claude Freeman, "The Mojave."

For the second part of the program, George R. Tracy, guest photographer, will present "A Year in Turkey" also in color slides.

COMPTON CAMERA CLUB will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday at 1021 E. Compton Blvd., Compton. . . San Pedro Camera Club will meet at 8 p. m. Friday in Anderson Memorial Bldg., Eighth and Mesa Sts., San Pedro.

cealed behind the paneling — a specious linen closet and guest closet — side by side. Touch latches were utilized for these closets.

Immediately beyond the entry one steps into a clever little area set apart from the dining-living room area beyond by an independent planter island. This serves the purpose of a sort of free-standing partition, four feet high. Against the planter, beautifully constructed of mahogany, stands a Gov. Winthrop desk.

The dining area is papered in a beautiful floral motif carried out in tones of soft coral, coppers and blue-greens.

THE DINING SET, a drop-leaf Duncan Phyfe table and upholstered chairs, folds compactly and stands by this window. Draperies throughout the dining-living area are of soft yellow-green satin damask while the glass curtains are pleated rose-beige fibreglas.

The walls and the carpeting of this extensive duo-purpose room are of warm coca-pink. Duplicating them are the fibreglas curtains. The drapery tone is repeated in the curved oversized sofa of yellow-green damask. Thus the two-toned color scheme is integrated.

Because the living-dining area is one, divided only by the dropped ceiling suggestive of an arch, the feeling is one of luxurious spaciousness. Before, however, the rooms were completely separate, both were cramped, and both were unhappy possessors of busy little cupboards, closets and wall beds.

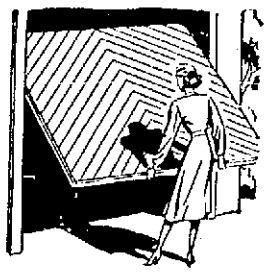

Large glass windows on two walls of the living room provide a sweeping view from Palos Verdes all the way around to Huntington Beach. Glare has been lessened with the use of polaroid glass.

Adding to the beauty of this room are the many appointments Mr. and Mrs. O'Donnell have collected on their extensive travels. Intricately-crafted pieces of porcelain, cut glass and antique bric-a-brac lend themselves gracefully to the decor.

THE KITCHEN, tiny and highly efficient, takes no back seat to larger ones for workability and good looks. And this room, perhaps more than any other, represents the greatest (and most difficult - to - manage) changeover.

The master bedroom has a view window facing the ocean. This is a luxurious room — spacious and elegantly furnished in French provincial fruitwoods.

He Plays It Straight

Many myths about Indians were exploded in research for film, "Apache." For instance, Burt Lancaster is cast as blue-eyed Indian. Jean Peters plays feminine lead.

BLUE-EYED INDIANS, generally thought of in the same league as purple cows, should more rightfuly be catalogued with blond Italians, swarthy Swedes and other unusual, but not unheard of pigment groups. Authority for this is Burt Lancaster, who may shortly be seen, blue eyes a-glint in Technicolor, as an Indian warrior in the production "Apache." In fact, adds Lancaster, there are many misconceptions about our American Indians including the misguided beliefs that they never have to shave, that they are "red-skins," that they have straight black hair, and that they are invariably of hawk-like visage and brown of eye.

Many of these false ideas about people of our own country, whom we take for granted were cleared up by the research staff of the Hecht-Lancaster Organization in the course of preparing material for "Apache," first in a group of films made by the new producing organization of Harold Hecht and Burt Lancaster in their multi-million dollar releasing arrangement with United Artists.

While preparing "Apache," a true story about the renegade warrior, Massai, who continued his own private war with the United States after Geronimo surrendered, it was discovered Massai was reportedly a blue-eyed Apache. Burt Lancaster plays the part of Massai, blue eyes and all. In wide-screen Technicolor, the swarthy features and black hair of the Apache brave are in startling contrast to Lancaster's blue eyes. The effect is dramatic to say the least. Not only that, but it is true to historical legend. Contact lenses for Lancaster were thought to be essential until research disclosed that such disguise would, in this particular case, be unnecessary and also quite probably historically inaccurate. Thus, not only "redskins bite the dust" as motion pictures are made, but also misconceptions and legends fall by the wayside as well.

Curtains, shawls and other items result from useful hobby of netting which occupies Mrs. Mary Alice Ray.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

She Ties Holes Together

By Vera Williams

WHEN MARY ALICE RAY was a little girl in Lancashire, England, her mother showed her how to net. That's right, net, not knit. The skill with which, for instance, fish nets are made - - a lot of holes tied together.

Through the years she made netting only once in a while. Then recently, in the salty coastal air, her curtains went to pieces. And new, good curtains are expensive.

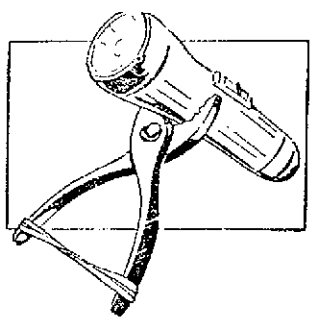

Mrs. Ray, who resides at 112 Magnolia Ave., set to work with the netting needle she brought from England many years ago, and some ecru thread. Already she has finished four handsome curtain panels.

With netting needles, she also has made a variety of stoles, shawls, jabots and handkerchief trimmings. She makes her own patterns.

A netting needle looks something like a knitting needle, with a big eye at each end and it is threaded as a tatting shuttle is threaded. "Like everything else," Mrs. Ray says, philosophically, "every piece of netting starts with one stitch."

Mrs. Ray, early in the century, was one of the Eckersley Sisters, celebrated mandolin, banjo and guitar players in England.

Golden Shower of Flowers

When springtime comes, gardeners who have planted the Forsythia can rejoice in a golden shower of flowers.

By Beverly Ronson

FROM MARCH to May the graceful pendant branches of forsythia are strung from tip to toe with showy golden yellow bells. It is a sight to lift the heart and lend glorious beauty to the garden.

New Englanders and southerners feel a garden is bare unless forsythia announces the arrival of spring with her handsome "golden shower."

More gardeners in California should use this highly ornamental and hardy shrub.

The bush, however, is among the deciduous flowering shrubs that go dormant around December, remaining bare of leaves for several months. So many Southland gardeners prefer to grow evergreen shrubs, although interplanting deciduous bushes amid evergreens lend variety to the landscape.

For an attractive grouping, use forsythia with white spirea, or bridal wreath, which is another deciduous bush, a free bloomer and with the same graceful mounding habit of growth. Add to the group evergreen, shiny-leafed pittosporum tobira with fragrant cream-white blooms. For a low-growing border for the foreground use blue violas and lemon yellow Alyssum saxatile.

Deciduous bushes are very hardy specimens, renew their vigor during their winter's rest period, then come up more beautiful and stronger than ever each spring.

CUT SPRAYS of forsythia, if clipped when in bud and placed in water, will open nicely for indoor bouquets, adding a graceful Oriental mood to an arrangement.

Forsythia does well in almost any kind of soil, though a moderately rich loam is preferable. Set the plant or plants in full sun, except in exceedingly hot places. Then filtered shade, from midday on, is better.

The plant is not at all susceptible to insects or fungi.

Forsythia suspensa, a popular and graceful variety, grows to eight feet, its slender branches bending to the ground, many of the branches taking root. Cuttings made from these rooted branches will produce hardy new plants the following year.

THE BUSH should be pruned each year after it is 3 years old, in order to prevent its growing too rank.

Branches that have reached two seasons of growth should be cut down almost to the base, leaving about an eight-inch stub on which new shoots will develop the following spring. Do not attempt to tie the plant to a stake, since it has a natural spreading habit of growth. Any effort to force it away from this habit will destroy the attractiveness of the plant.

Do the pruning as soon as the plant goes dormant, usually in December.

Pasadena Show

One of the most spectacular entries in the Pasadena Spring Flower and Garden Show April 3-11 in the Fannie E. Morrison Horticultural Center, Brookside Park, will be sponsored by the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, Honolulu.

Stephen W. Royce, director of the Royal Hawaiian, has informed the sponsoring Pasadena Flower Show Association and show manager, G. Wyman Hope, that the island exhibit will help carry out the Polynesian atmosphere to be featured at the forthcoming event. Floral leis and native plants to be flown here from the islands also will be part of the display.

In conjunction with the exhibit, demonstrations will be given on the weaving of cocoanut hats and baskets and the fashioning of floral leis.

Housed in the main building of the center, the hotel entry will be one of scores of Polynesian and Pacific exhibits stressing the Hawaiian motif currently so popular in Southern California gardens.

Flower of the Islands

By Murtha Hurley

LONG ASSOCIATED with the romance of verdant Pacific islands, where it is one of the principal ornaments of the pretty belles, the hibiscus provokes more admiring comment than almost any flower that shines in Long Beach gardens. Huge, vividly-colored flowers adorn these showy shrubs that boast of large glossy leaves and sturdy habits of growth.

The flowers, often six inches across, both single and double, now include just about every color but blue, from delicate blush pink, brilliant crimson and deep reds, to the exciting golden and orange shaded double varieties.

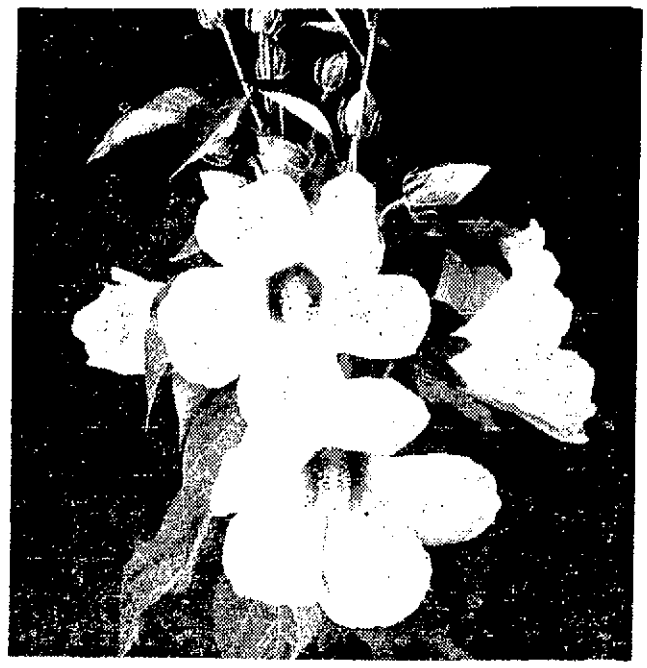

The plants bloom continuously from mid-spring through fall and often into winter months if the weather is warm.

Hibiscus prefer a sunny location, especially if planted near the coast where they are at their best. However, the plants also do well in the foothills and interior valleys, if night temperatures do not go too low.

The plants like a rich, well drained, deeply dug, somewhat heavy soil. Dig in four parts of good garden loam, two parts of compost, leaf mold or peat moss and one part of sand. Dig the area 18 inches deep if possible. For a large specimen plant dig a hole two feet deep and two feet wide.

It is best to plant hibiscus in the spring so they can become

PET PARADE

He's a Feathered Riot

A party is fine with Congo, painted Amazon parrot, but when things get dull he can dream up a one-bird riot.

By Eleanor Avery Price

CONGO, a beautiful painted Amazon parrot belonging to Mrs. June Simpson, 4344 Clark Ave., not only enjoys the confusion and merrymaking of a party, but he is a riot by himself. When things get too dull, he bursts into enthusiastic jabbering or stirs up the atmosphere with his whistling. He especially enjoys the musical melody of "How Much Is the Doggie in the Window." He is adept at dancing, too, and sways and steps about on his perch, fluffing his green feathers and nodding his red, yellow, and green head.

Congo likes dogs, the bigger the better, which is a good thing, for Mr. and Mrs. Simpson raise Great Danes. The parrot also likes the family cat and is particularly fond of cartoons on TV.

As a rule, most parrots like fruits and vegetables in the diet, but Congo draws the line on such nourishment and will accept only sunflowers seeds and various nuts.

Parrots really are fun, especially for those who need a companion. Parrots, or Psittaciformes, live up to 25 even 35 years, and some have been known to live up to 90 years.

As we know them, there are three cage-parrot families lories, cockatoos, and the one which includes lovebirds, parakeets, macaws, and others. The macaws are the larger, gaudier, noisier birds, and the lories are the most delicate. Cockatoos are hardy and are usually seen with white or solid black plumage, although some are tinged with color.

THE PARROT needs a cage, but he likes to be out of it part of the time. The cage should be warmly covered at night. He is sensitive to draft, chills, and dust.

Since the parrot needs to exercise his bill, he should have a log or soft hardwood to peck at. Wood fiber is helpful to his digestive system. Most parrots enjoy pulverized charcoal and crushed oyster shells as well.

Garden Budget Savers

By Walter Finch

Savory green peppers and juicy red tomatoes are a delight to the eye and a treat to the appetite.

MAKING A VEGETABLE garden is one of the sure ways to test a person's ability to bounce back for there is a measure of work from planting to harvest that needs to be done with astounding regularity if there is to be a good harvest. Still the measure of satisfaction that comes from producing one's own vegetables is made even more significant when the job is well done. There is always an extra measure of fresh tastiness and of healthful vitamins in fresh home-picked produce.

A few items in the garden pay off particularly well. According to the California Bedding Plant Advisory Board the two largest vegetable items handled in bedding plant containers for resale to the gardening public are tomatoes and peppers. Both are well suited to California conditions, but both require growing to transplant size in a nursery. During the short season that it is advisable to plant these two items there are many varieties of both that are available to the gardening public.

With both tomatoes and peppers the location should be in full sun with a loose friable soil for the best results. Tomatoes can be set out on a flat bed and flood irrigated while the peppers require hilling up on raised beds to insure good drainage as they rot out if they stand with too much moisture. Ordinarily, tomatoes will mature and set good fruit with two or three heavy irrigations while the pepper planting will require bi-weekly soakings and a liberal side-dressing of fertilizer every month until they mature.

In planting tomatoes it is wise to remember that the designation of early, mid-season and late refers to the period of fruiting and has nothing to do with the time of planting. Actually the later they are planted, the wiser it is to plant an early fruiting variety. Also it is best to keep your tomato planting away from petunia plants as they are both carriers of tobacco mosaic.

established before frost. Give the plants plenty of room. Most varieties grow five to eight feet tall and almost as wide. Most hibiscus do best in a slightly acid soil. When planting add one cupful of soil sulphur stirred into the soil mixture to (supply wanted acidity.

HIBISCUS ARE RESISTANT to most pests and diseases. Though they do require consistent watering, particularly in hot weather. Let the hose run slowly in the plant basin rather than spraying that will wilt the flowers.

Feed the plants every four weeks from spring to late summer to assure a healthy bush and bounteous bloom. Water immediately after fertilizing. Use about a half cup of plant food to the plant at least 10 inches away from the trunk of the bush.

Do not cultivate. In summer give the plants a mulch. Use it about two inches deep from the center of the bush to about a foot out beyond the leaves.

Hibiscus require no pruning till they are five years old or more. They should then be pruned to control their shape and to remove deadwood. Do not prune until late spring when blooms are light.

MANY BEAUTIFUL HYBRIDS have been added to the growing number of varieties of hibiscus. Yet there are three among the older varieties that still continue to be great favorites. They are Agnes Gault, single red, also called San Diego red, and the spectacular Crown of Bohemia.

Agnes Gault is one of the strongest growers and most prodigious bloomers of all hibiscus. The huge deep-coral pink flowers are beloved by most gardeners.

Single red or San Diego red ranks in popularity with Agnes Gault, especially for those who like a brilliant red tone.

Crown of Bohemia is considered among the best of the double blooming hibiscus. It combines the rich colors of autumn in the large double flowers—deep golden blended with copper and orange.

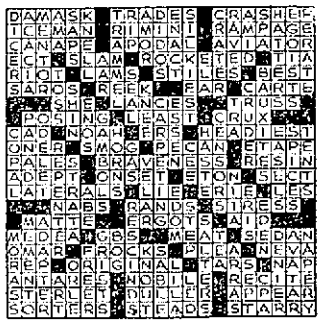

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Many nurseries now look like camellia flower shows and this is a splendid time to make selections. The plants are in bloom and thus you pick the types you like, rather than making selections from a catalog. Camellias require shallow planting and an acid type soil.

Tuberous begonias are among our most colorful summer bedding plants. A shady or partially shady location is advisable, but not dense shade. The tubers may be started indoors in a nursery flat, using leaf mold or planter mix. When the sprouts are just a few inches tall they may be transplanted to pots or the outdoor garden if the weather has warmed up sufficiently. Delphinium clumps are now being offered and may be planted at once. These are rather tall growing and should be placed towards the rear of the permanent border. Excellent shades of blue are obtainable.

RECORD ALBUM

Spring . . . and Love

By Delos Smith

THE RECORD-MAKERS seem to be bestirring themselves to broaden the record repertoire. A prime example of this is a beguiling recording of three sonatas and a prelude and fugue for organ by Felix Mendelssohn, musicianly played by John Eggington (L'Oiseau-Lyre-London). Mendelssohn had particular affinity for the instrument but few music listeners know that today.

Other new records in this category of the unusual but highly listenable are:

Carl Orff's arrangements of 25 spring, drinking, and love songs of the 13th century and called "Carmina Burana," as sung and played by Bavarian singers and orchestras under Eugene Jochum (Decca).

Mozart's "Musical Joke" coupled with E. H. Mehul's first symphony (Mehul was born in 1763) played by the Radio Berlin Orchestra (Urania).

Lord Berners' odd piano music, "Fragments Psychologiques," "Le Poisson D'Or," and "Three Little Funeral Marches," played by Menahem Pressler along with Constant Lambert's "concerto for pianoforte and nine players" (MGM).

Light music by Scandinavian composers--Hugo Alfven, Johan Svendsen, Carl Nielson, plus a little Sibelius (C major Romance), played by the Covent Garden Opera Orchestra (MGM).

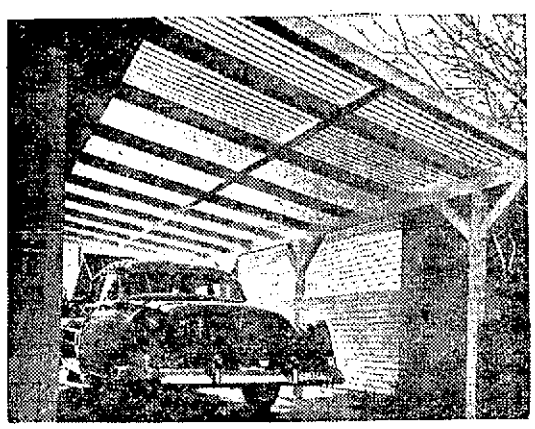

TEN TOP TUNES—Jo Stafford's "Make Love to Me" continues to hold the top spot on your local hit parade this week; (2) "Cross Over the Bridge," Patti Page; (3) "I Get So Lonely," Four Knights; (4) "Young at Heart," Frank Sinatra; (5) "Wanted," Perry Como; (6) "Secret Love," Doris Day; (7) "From the Vine Came the Grape," the Gaylords; (8) "Answer Me My Love," Nat King Cole; (9) "Oh, Mein Papa," Eddie Fisher; and (10) Tony Martin's "Stranger in Paradise."

JO STAFFORD
. . She leads Hit Parade . .

FOLK SONGS interpreted with all the simplicity and freshness of the original, are recorded on lps. New examples found at the Long Beach Public Library are "British Traditional Ballads in America," sung by Shep Ginandes; "Folk Songs of California and the Old West," sung by Sam Hinton; "Jean Ritchie Sings" ("Black is the Color," "One Morning in May," etc.); "Voices of Haiti" (recorded during ceremonials) and "Folk Songs of Newfoundland," sung by Alan Mills, accompanied by guitar. The last record includes sea songs that would make good singing in our beach community: e.g. "Great Big Sea Hove," "Lukey's Boat" and "Jack Was Every Inch a Sailor."

Top reserves at the public library last week were for "Don Juan in Hell," "John Brown's Body," "Romeo and Juliet" (Old Vic Company) and the foreign language records.

Go With the Stranger

THE FASCINATOR, by Theodora Keogh (Farrar, Straus & Young, $3.50).

Author Keogh's premise in this novel is that a woman's desire is to be fought over, and to go with the stronger has never been bred out of her, even through centuries of civilized and proper marital manners.

To Ellen Hunter, a wife and mother, the stronger is also the uglier, a sculptor whose magnetism draws Ellen against her wishes and against her better judgment. She has the devotion of her husband, but as the sly witchery of Zanic casts a sensational spell over Ellen, temptation grows as her fright wanes. At times harsh, the novel still carries a deep-rooted tenderness in its treatment of the bedeviled.—G. L.

SCENES AND PORTRAITS, by Van Wyck Brooks (Dutton, $4.50).

In his memories of childhood and youth, Brooks dwells lovingly on the conditioning that inspired his work in the arts, and on the greats of the turn of the century when living was cheap and writing was good. The years remembered are those between 1886 and the opening of World War I, and the great writers and painters that are remembered are all those whose styles and mannerisms affected a generation of the arts, and not the least of these was Brooks himself. These were the years of the moulding of literary history.—G. L.

EASTER IDEA BOOK, by Charlotte Adams (Barrows, $3.50).

This book will provide more ideas for making Easter a joyous occasion than you ever thought possible: Lenten and Easter dishes, parties for children, coloring Easter eggs, Easter centerpieces and favors, making Easter baskets, rabbits, et cetera, for gifts, pets for Easter gifts, gifts to make for children and grownups, Easter cards and plants.

THE NIGHT WINDS, by Brian Talbot Cleeve (Houghton Mifflin-Ballentine, $2.75 hardbound, $.35 paper).

Trapped in South Africa's bitter melting pot is Ann Burroughs, a girl who despises her black blood, a girl who yearns to start a new life in Europe, where, she is told, she can easily pass as white. A solid, powerful story that leaves much for the reader to remember, this is the first novel by a talented British writer to be published in this country.

AUTUMN OF LIBERTY, by Paul Harver (Hanover House, $2).

What we need is a challenger who will tell us what a difficult and dangerous thing it is to be an American. This quotation employed by Paul Harvey, radio news analyst, winner of various awards for Americanism, expresses the motivation of "Autumn of Liberty." You may not agree with the author's enumeration of all the things wrong with this country; but certainly this is a time when liberty is threatened, and his lessons in patriotism are of real value.

PATTERN FOR PANIC, by Richard S. Prather (Abelard, $2.75).

Here's a slam-bang Mickey Spillane school mystery. The author is probably best known for his creation of detective Shell Scott, who has appeared in several Gold Medal pocket books. The tale is unbelievable, of course, but the hero, Cliff Morgan, does a neat, if gory, job of cleaning out Communists in Mexico City. And sexy? You bet! —J. G.

SHE CAME TO STAY, by Simone de Beauvoir (World, $5).

This is prewar Paris, and it's a confusion of loves and despairs and all of them superbly drawn. The provincial Xavier comes to mingle with the people of the arts of the theater, and she is brought into a relationship with two lovers which leads to treachery and intrigue within the triangle. The setting is exciting, and the picture of the prewar Paris is warm and delightful.—G. L.

THE WARS OF LOVE, by Mark Schorer (McGraw-Hill, $3).

Three boys and a girl grew up together, in the careless way of unrelated children. The growing was while the summer colony lazed through the warm months. The relationships that were only hinted at during adolescence became full-flowered and productive of killing passions when the four mature. Villainy is buried deep in the surface love that holds the four in a spell of dependency, and betrayal is only the width of a whisper away.—G. L.

BUY LOW—SELL HIGH, by Frank V. Fisher (William-Frederick Press).

This is an intimate kind of book, one which makes you feel that you are in the office of an investment counselor who is taking a personal interest in your stock and bond program. The author writes in a scholarly manner, discussing the right time to buy stocks, the right time to sell, as well as what to buy. Chapter endings are marked by witty as well as wise sayings relevant to the stock market.—L. K.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN and Ballentine Books have just published two fast-paced novels. One is "The Coasts of the Earth" ($3 hardbound, $.35 paper), a tale of two young Americans who flew for Israel. This story won for Harold E. Livingston, the author, a Houghton Mifflin Literary Fellowship Award. The other is "West of Justice" ($2.50 hardbound, $.35 paper), in which John Hunter tells the story of a judge who deals out justice with six-guns in the days of the Arizona Territory.

WORLDS OF SPACE, by Martin Caidin (Holt, $4.95).

Buck Rogers will buy this book. It outlines the work already done in rocket research and what remains to be done before improved versions of the rocket are used for travel to the moon and other planets. Sixty-four illustrations by Fred L. Wolff show graphically how such travel may be conducted. One of these illustrations, above, shows a lunar survey ship landing on the moon.

The World of Stamps

By Harry Rickard

THE SPECIAL ISSUES of 1935 seem to give some trouble to new collectors. This is undoubtedly because they have never seen the full sheets of stamps as originally produced and do not know the story behind them.

It all started when James Farley was Postmaster General and some of the top dignitaries of the New Deal were given the large uncut sheets of stamps, which are four times the size of the regular post office panes.

Everything would probably have gone all right if one of the recipients hadn't been a little greedy and tried to sell some of them to a stamp dealer.

From the stamp dealer the news spread until it was the most talked about subject of the day in the philatelic press and thousands of letters were sent to Washington as a result.

To make a long story short, it ended up with the Post Office Department making all 20 of the sheets available to all collectors.

The stamps were on sale for a short time and through the years they have been steadily put on the market so that in years to come a full set of sheets will be quite a rarity.

The five different souvenir sheets are only collected in pairs or blocks with gutters between. This is the only way that you can know that they came from the original large sheets as the original issue prior to the "favors" were just the small souvenir sheets.

The Newburg gutter pairs and Byrd pairs with lines between are the most difficult of the 20 varieties to obtain.

He has exhibited at the California State Fair, Los Angeles County Fair, Los Angeles County Museum, in the Denver annual show and in Tweed Gallery of Minnesota. He is a member of California Water Color Society.

TWENTY ORIGINAL Currier & Ives prints, which have been on tour for the past two years and have been exhibited in many of the nation's outstanding museums, will be exhibited in Moulton Hall at Laguna Beach Art Gallery through April 4.

ART STUDENTS will have an opportunity in the next few weeks to improve their water color technique under the guidance of Arthur Beaumont, World War II official Navy artist, former Long Beach Art Association president, in Long Beach Art Association sponsored classes which meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. each Wednesday in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

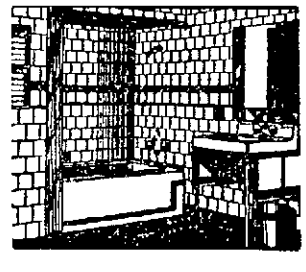

As official Navy artist he is making a historical-pictorial record of naval ships of this era in war and at peace. He was the official artist at Bikini atomic bomb tests and recently made the only painting commissioned by the Navy Department of the atomic submarine, USS Nautilus. His work has appeared in National Geographic, Life, Coronet and Cosmopolitan.

The truth about their long 'feud'

Gift To a Burned Girl

A town's big heart eases tragedy

IRENE DUNNE & husband, Dr. Francis Griffin: A GI's revealing story . . .

Here's What America Means to Me

By IRENE DUNNE — Famous movie star and winner of the Laetare Medal awarded to outstanding Catholic laymen.

ABOUT THREE MONTHS ago I met a most attractive young man—a sergeant in the United States Army—just back from Korea.

He was 23 years old, tall and husky, with clear blue eyes. In short, he was the type of lad whom people think of when they refer to the American ideal.

The sergeant, whose name I may not reveal, had suffered a minor injury just at the time his turn at rotation had come up. Otherwise, he said, he would have attempted to remain in Korea.

I asked him if he really enjoyed foreign duty so much that he would rather serve in Korea than in the U.S. He said:

"My debt to my country is so great I could never repay it even if I were on duty day and night for the rest of my life."

When he told me his story I understood the reason for his deep feeling.

▸ The sergeant had a particularly rocky beginning. He was born blind and spent his childhood in an orphange. His eyesight was restored through a skillful operation at a state-financed clinic.

▸ He was never adopted. But people helped him get an education and thereby build a future for himself.

Today, he looks upon himself as the son of millions of people, all of whom had his interests at heart and to whom he pays a son's tribute. That's why he is making a career of the Army. When I think of the word "America," I think of that story.

Our country is peopled by individuals who are happy and successful because they were given the opportunity to make the most of their capabilities.

America spells out opportunity. And let anyone who takes this blessing for granted consider life today in the countries where it is non-existent—where the very business of staying alive is something of a challenge.

America has been generous indeed in presenting me with opportunities. I have been able to do the kind of work I love.

Beginning early in my career, I was given a chance to prove myself. The door to success was open then, just as it is open to newcomers today.

Wonderful Family Life

AT THE same time, I have been able to build a wonderful family life in pleasant surroundings. I have been given the priceless opportunity, which every mother understands, of watching my daughter grow to budding maturity in safety and serenity, without want.

And finally, I feel fortunate in having had many chances to participate with other Americans in civic activities, to do some small things toward future prevention of dread diseases, to work freely for the political figures I admire and to devote my God-given time and energy to His work in the church of my choice.

These are the opportunities that are the essence of our country and for which Americans should be most grateful. ■

THE PREACHER'S WIFE

● When Mrs. Mamie Marchand was a little girl in pigtails she promised herself never to become a preacher's wife. As a "P.K." (preacher's kid), she grew up in a parsonage and knew what it was like to live in a house where the door was open 24 hours a day.

Today, as the wife of an Indiana pastor, Mrs. Marchand wouldn't trade places with anyone. She has a job she loves—running a home and being the mainstay of her husband's career.

Turn to page 29 to read Mrs. Marchand's heart-warming story.

OVER evening coffee, Mrs. Mamie Marchand listens as husband reads his Sunday sermon.

You're so right...to use TIDE in your precious automatic washer

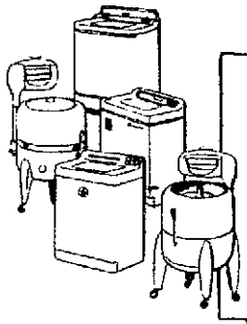

Yes, the makers of 25 Automatics recommend Tide! In their machines, no other washday product known-with or without suds—

NOTHING ELSE WILL WASH AS CLEAN AS TIDE – yet is so mild!

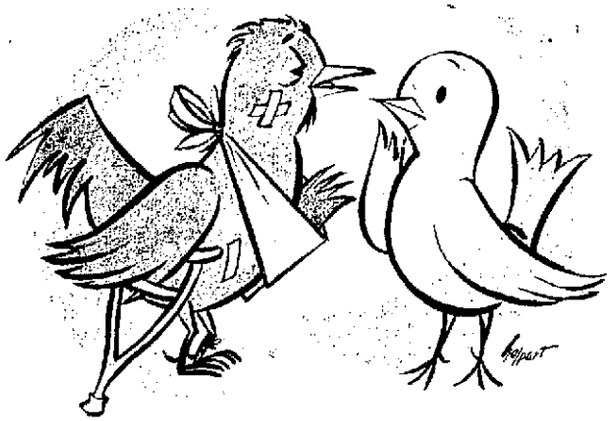

Use Tide in your automatic washer! Follow the example of millions of women. Take the word of the manufacturers who recommend Tide for their automatic washing machines. Remember! No matter whether you own one of their up-to-the-minute automatics, or a popular wringer-type machine—nothing else will wash as clean as Tide, yet is so mild. No washday soap, no other detergent known—including the new low-sudsing products—nothing else can match Tide!

You see, Tide—with its full-action suds—is actually designed to deliver the greatest possible cleaning power in all of these washers. Naturally, you want the cleanest, whitest washes possible . . . so, no matter which of these machines you own, use Tide and nothing but Tide.

IN ANY WASHING MACHINE—AUTOMATIC OR WRINGER-TYPE—THERE'S NOTHING LIKE TIDE!

No wonder more women use Tide in every leading make of washer known than any other product! It's a fact! No matter how you wash . . . there's just nothing like Tide! For clean, clean clothes, use Tide in your washing machine.

"I didn't even see the window—they'd cleaned it with Windex Spray!"

Word travels fast about Windex Spray. For it cleans windows, mirrors, all kinds of glass surfaces in half the time it takes other glass cleaners. And glass shines bright; stays bright longer! For there's no waxy dust to clean afterward—no waxy film to attract dust later.

Windex Spray is a thrifty buy, too. Specially economical in the big 20-oz. size. Get it today at your grocery, drug or hardware store. Also sold in Canada.

So fast, easy, thrifty, it outsells all other glass cleaners combined!

"April Fool or no April Fool—this is the day of the week I put Drāno in all the drains!"

There's no fooling about it—dangerous sewer germs do lurk in every drain. And germs breed in muck that liquid disinfectants can't budge. Drāno's churning, boiling action dissolves the muck—and keeps drains germ-free and free-running. Make one day a week—Drāno day. Put Drāno in every drain for about a penny a drain. Makes septic tanks work even better. Get Drāno today at your grocery, drug or hardware store. Also available in Canada.

There's nothing like DRĀNO—to keep drains free-running and sanitary.

How cops keep dry

It's a new idea from Germany

HANOVER, Germany.

● On a rainy day, Hanover's police force looks like a bunch of oversized snails.

When the weather's bad, the policemen simply climb into their little houses—somewhat like sentry boxes—and off they go.

The houses are issued to all policemen, even if they walk a beat.

Made of light steel and plastic, they are as easy to carry as a raincoat—and much more roomy.

A mother gets tough to defend her son

On last day of her 'strike', Mrs. Dawson sits doggedly beside her son, Frank.

MRS. DAWSON pleads with school board, "I'm just a mother, doing what I did for my son." Frank, she said, was subject to colds, sore throats. Some parents in the meeting room booed.

HER ONLY defender tells group, "Don't be mad. She's doing what she thinks best."

HALF DAY, Ill.

SUPPOSE your 13-year-old son, with a high IQ, was suddenly dropped from eighth to seventh grade and then expelled from school. What would you do?

When it happened to Mrs. Marie Dawson's son, Frank, she knew what to do:

She went on strike.

Textbook open and notebook ready, she sat next to Frank in the eighth grade classroom of Half Day Elementary School here. And she told Principal Charles F. Kerry:

"I'm staying until you put Frank back in eighth grade."

The principal, who doubles as a teacher, explained that he didn't want to demote Frank. But, he pointed out, the boy had been absent 76 days out of 185. He was behind in his work and his questions were holding back the whole class.

And, Kerry added, he had warned Mrs. Dawson that Frank was a chronic truant and didn't pay much attention. She and her husband, Joseph, who was recovering from an operation, had ignored the warnings, Kerry pointed out.

But the angry mother wouldn't budge. And so Kerry began to teach anyway. After a while, the other students took Mrs. Dawson's presence right in stride.

But on the seventh day of Mrs. Dawson's sit-down strike, the principal decided he'd had enough. He called in the State's Attorney of Lake County and Mrs. Dawson was arrested for disorderly conduct.

'Just a Mother'

THAT ended the sit-down, but Mrs. Dawson took her case to the school board of District 103. A huge audience turned out to hear about the strike.

"I am just a mother, and I've been doing what I did . . . for my son," Mrs. Dawson told the board while the crowd booed. She wheeled on the audience.

"What would you have done?" she asked.

"Not what you did!" came the chorus.

Mrs. Dawson explained that Frank was subject to colds and sore throats. And, she said, she tried "to help him participate" in classroom work. Each time, the crowd jeered. The board told her the case was in the court's hands.

In court, Mrs. Dawson fared better. Judge Minard E. Hulse arranged to have Frank sent to another school to "get on with his education—everyone's main concern."

So Frank went back to school, and Mrs. Dawson went back home. The only man to defend her at the stormy school board meeting had summed up her case best:

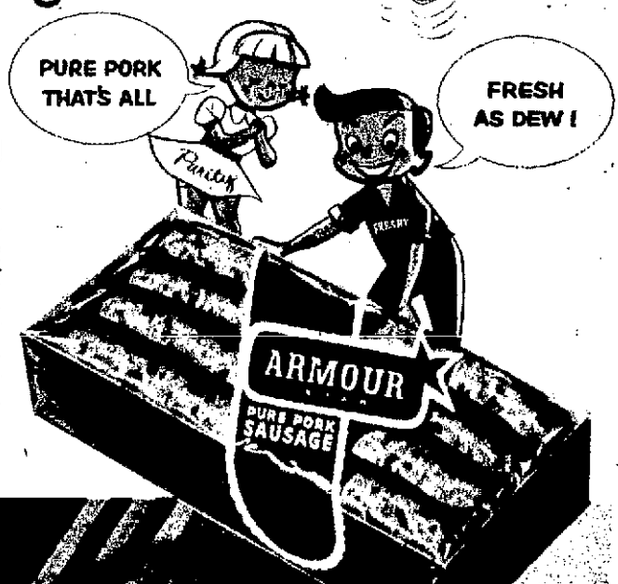

"Don't be mad at her," he pleaded. "She's only a mother, trying to help her son the best she knows how." ■

AUDIENCE snubs Mrs. Dawson as she pleads for support. Most of the parents said she was disrupting the class. Mrs. Dawson said she was "only trying to help my son participate in classwork."

How the Iron Curtain looks to spies . . .

COPYRIGHT BY PARADE PUBLICATION, 1954

How spies

They run a gauntlet of mines,

BECAUSE THIS story discloses undercover activities for the first time, it was shown to Pentagon officials. They said it does not violate national security. The writer knows many free world agents. THE EDITORS.

WEST BERLIN, Germany.

ALONG THE BRISTLING border of a Soviet satellite nation, precisely at 11 p.m., six tough men with machine guns suddenly opened fire from the free world side.

Two more threw heavy satchels onto the tangle of booby-trapped barbed wire. Land mines burst. Flares whooshed into the air.

The rattle of gun fire, the burst of light, and the roar of mines brought Communist soldiers running from all directions, ready to beat back an invasion.

But none came. Not there, anyway.

▶ While Red troops dashed from their posts to bolster the area under attack, a top anti-Communist agent, two miles away, clipped the barbed wire and slipped into satellite territory.

▶ Another spy had poked a hole in the Iron Curtain and pulled himself through. That's called the "end run" technique.

Every night, despite cobwebs of barbed wire, banks of artillery and trigger-happy guards, spies for the free world edge into the Red orbit.

And every night, through the same powder-keg, they slip out again, clutching stolen Red war plans, atomic information or weapons models. Sometimes, they even bring along a Red official seeking freedom.

The satellite nations have beefed up their border patrols, devised new, more deadly weapons. The tempo is stepped up at a feverish rate. A trick used yesterday may not succeed today. Day by day, the ranks of the espionage agents get thinner.

But even in the most thickly-walled areas, about two out of three of these tough, lonely men get there—and get back.

How do they do it?

For security reasons and because they're trade secrets, today's best methods can't be revealed. But some of yesterday's techniques are a matter of open discussion—because, presumably, border patrols are familiar with them, too, by this time.

The "end run" previously described has worked—but it can be disastrous. Furthermore, it can't be used too often.

Generally, this method is held in reserve, to be used when gambling for high stakes. The mission described above was aimed at reaching a high satellite official who, it was learned, was willing to flee to the West.

An old favorite is the "floater" system. Since some rip the Iron Curtain

machine guns and secret police, but two-thirds come back—with Red secrets

Iron Curtain countries are separated from the free world by only a river, agents swim across or float in, using a collapsible rubber raft.

Some agents simply cut a hole in the Curtain—snipping the barbed wire at a carefully-chosen spot where no mines or flares will be touched off.

A few cunning agents use no weapon but nerve. Several "commute" across the Curtain by rail, carrying excellently-forged entry permits and identity cards.

One spy has driven through a border checkpoint in East Germany a dozen times simply by masquerading as a Soviet official.

And the most melodramatic entry of all was used just once—successfully. A former university professor smuggled himself into Hungary in a coffin!

Many agents have their own secret techniques. Even their employers never learn—and don't ask—how they punch through the ring of steel.

At one time, the best "opener" of all was money. For about $100 in Swiss francs, you could buy your way across the East German or Czech frontier.

The Reds put a stop to that with a capitalistic "incentive plan"—rewards and prizes for guards who captured spies.

There are still a few places where money talks. Quite naturally, the spies won't reveal where they are. And the Curtain is made of heavier iron in some places than in others, they've learned.

The Austrian-Hungarian border is rated the hardest to crack. It's fenced all the way around and patrolled up to a depth of 10 miles by soldiers and dogs.

The Yugoslav-Bulgarian border is considered the easiest. Wild, mountainous terrain makes it difficult to patrol.

What once were "soft spots" have been stiffened until they're almost impossible to break through. The Czech-Austrian boundary used to be considered an easy touch. So did the East German border.

It Takes Courage

TO CROSS ANY of the borders calls not so much for tools and weapons as for a boundless supply of courage, a cool head in tight spots, and dogged concentration on detail.

Often, little things can mean the difference between successful espionage and sorry failure.

One of the most successful spies, a young Czech named Peter, uses the "floater" technique—and insists on inflating the raft himself.

He won't use an automatic air cartridge, which would inflate the raft within seconds.

Why? Because a friend, working the same area along the Morava River between Austria and Czechoslovakia, was captured and hanged.

Through underground agents, Peter learned that the cartridge had tipped off border guards. The hiss of air as the raft was inflated carried across the river. Peter immediately ruled out air cartridges.

Peter is typical of the faceless men who crash the Iron Curtain. He was a mechanic in Czechoslovakia until he fled to the West in 1950. Since then, he has "gone home" countless times.

He's a skillful agent because he knows every wrinkle of the terrain, speaks the language, and has dozens of friends and contacts "on the inside".

Like Peter, most agents are refugees from Iron Curtain countries whose love of freedom sends them back again and again to spy for the West.

The reckless American spy in the trench coat exists only in movies. The governments who pay $100 and up a trip feel that knowledge of the territory is more of an asset than bravado.

They Travel Light

A SPY TRAVELS light. Usually he carries only a pocket-size gun, a switchblade knife, money, papers. He may bring in a small radio transmitter so underground cells can beam information to the free world.

Victor, a Hungarian who specializes in the toughest curtain of all, always takes three pairs of pliers. He feels along the barbed wire fence until he finds a fragmentation mine. He steadies the mine with two sets of pliers while an assistant clips the barbed wire. Then he edges past the mine.

The knife and the gun are held in reserve. To use them too often would give the spy away. Victor has used his knife only once.

That time, groping through the darkness near the fence, he collided with a sentry. Victor had no choice but to knife him.

Another team of spies relies more heavily on the knife. They have only crudely-forged passes to justify their presence in the border area.

If a guard questions one of these spies, he usually steps close to inspect the forgeries. Then, the knife is handy.

Papers are mighty important to spies in a police state. The territory is speckled with checkpoints, and documents must be shown often.

In Czechoslovakia, the border area is "zoned." To move through the area, an agent displays a white card—with a brown stripe in one zone, a green stripe in another.

The agent must shuffle his cards to turn up the right one at the right time. Usually he carries them in a pocket sewed into the armpit of his coat.

Papers are just as important once the agent has cracked the barrier and moved inland. Particularly around Prague and Budapest, he needs a sheaf of forged documents.

BY DAY, sharp-eyed border patrolmen keep the boundary under constant observation. By night, searchlights like the one above are the "eyes" of the Red world.

Several expert agents have been trapped deep inside Red territory by sharp-eyed secret police who spotted flaws in their identity papers.

Poor papers are just another misstep an agent can't afford.

For, once he's inside the Curtain, the agent can't relax a bit. There are secret police to contend with.

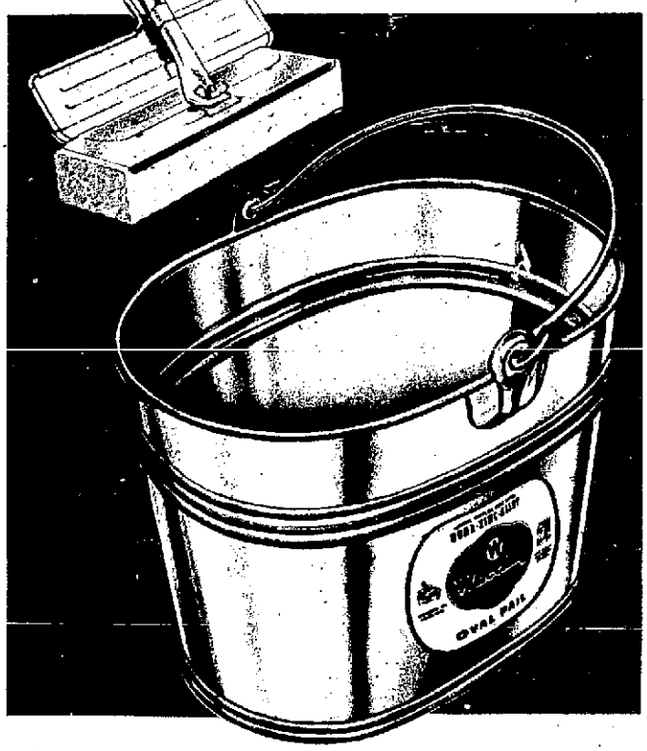

An agent's underground contacts must be people he can trust completely. Sometimes, a few pennies here and a few pennies there help him a lot.

Mines, flares, dogs, faulty papers, mistakes—they all pick off highly-trained agents, one by one. Some men who'd like to work for freedom find they have neither the temperament nor the talent, and quit. A few risk their lives time and again—then suddenly lose their nerve.

But, fortunately, there are always others who step forward to keep a hard core of about 1,000 agents working for the Western nations.

Despite all its defenses and tricks, the Soviet empire never will be safe from men willing to risk everything in the cause of freedom. ■

A town's gift to a girl who was burned

By SID ROSS and ED KIESTER

OPELIKA, Ala.

THE PRETTY brunette shifts carefully in her chair. She clasps and unclasps her scarred hands. You can tell that the scars on her body are still a little painful.

"I'm doing a lot better now," Barbara Thompson says. "I'm up and around and I don't have too much trouble.

"What really bothers me is what to say to people. I think about it and think about it, but I just get all choked up when I try to thank them. Opelika is sure a wonderful town."

Not eloquent, but heartfelt. How does an 18-year-old high school girl describe a small town where the outstanding landmark is a heart of pure gold?

For Opelika gave Barbara Thompson the biggest gift of all—life itself—after a gas heater transformed her into a screaming torch.

The Town Paid

AND TO HER financially-harassed parents, their 15,000 neighbors gave relief – from the money worries that might have followed Barbara's staggering medical bills.

Barbara spent weeks in a hospital bed. She had emergency operations, skin grafts, a bout with pneumonia.

It didn't cost the Thompsons a penny. Opelika picked up the bill. Four days after the tragedy, the Thompsons' neighbors had raised $7,000—more than enough to pay for every hour of care that Barbara needed.

And most of them were sorry they couldn't give even more.

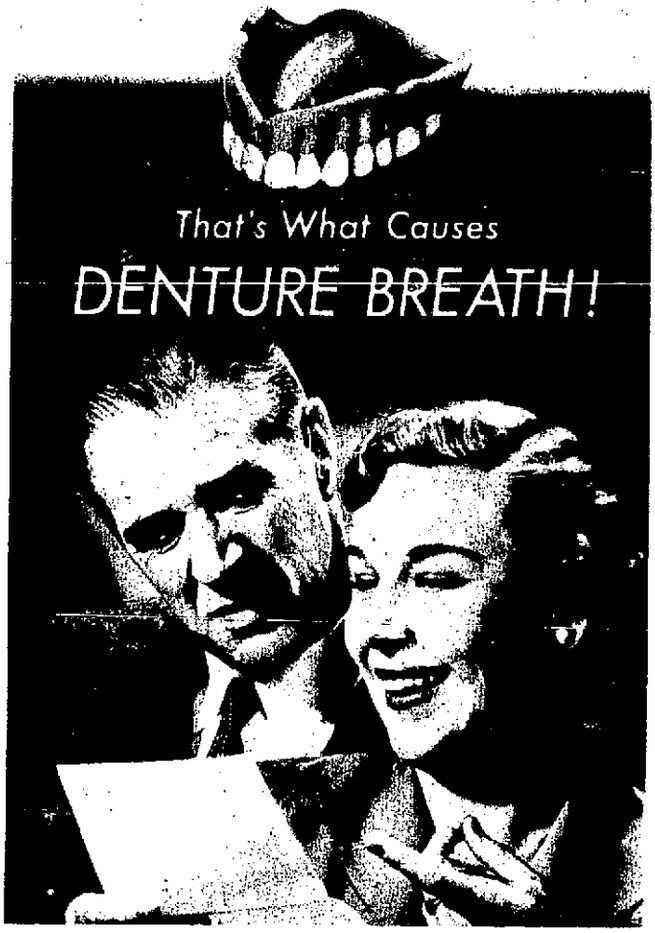

Barbara was rushed to the hospital in the charred shreds of a formal gown.

'There's no wealth here—except in people's hearts'

The night she was burned could have been the happiest of her life.

Radiant in her lavender gown, she had been the belle of the Clift High School ROTC Ball. She and her date, Marion Hays, had been one of the "lead-out" couples. After that she was so popular she'd hardly had a dance with Marion.

At 2:15 Saturday morning, December 19, Barbara kissed Marion goodnight at her door and ran inside.

In the bathroom, she stooped to slip dancing slippers off her weary arches. Her nylon net overskirt brushed against the heater. Suddenly she was gowned in flame.

In their bedroom, her parents listened to the click of the door latch and the tap-tap of her high heels.

Mrs. Martha Thompson, relieved that Barbara was home, waited for her to slip into bed. Then she would tiptoe in and kiss her goodnight.

A minute later, a chilling scream stabbed at her. Her husband, Aubrey, bounded out of bed as they saw a blob of fire move towards them and heard the screams take shape:

"Mother . . . Mother . . ."

"I just lost my head," her father, a workworn carpenter, said. "Instead of running for a blanket, I tried to figure where her face was. I brushed back the flames.

"I ran my hand over her head twice. Then I grabbed across her chest trying to rip the gown off. Everything was red hot like the blast from a furnace.

"The next I remember, Mother handed me a blanket off the bed."

Between them, the frightened parents smothered the flames. Dazed but conscious, Barbara slumped to the floor, her body blackened and charred.

(Doctors said later that 40 per cent of her body was burned. Many of the burns were third degree.)

She was alert enough to tell her mother to call an ambulance. Ironically, Barbara's older sister, Lenora, 21, was operating the town's switchboard.

Barbara's groans came clearly over the wire as Mrs. Thompson sobbed to "call a doctor and an ambulance."

"Dad got on the phone and told me what was wrong," Lenora said. "I didn't get scared, just made the calls. Then I got hot and cold all over."

SCHOOLMATES plan street corner collection on "Barbara Thompson Day". Some people gave three times.

'Squirrel's' Idea

THROUGH THE night, the three paced the halls of Lee County Hospital and prayed.

Not until the next day did Thompson notice that he had burned his hands severely while trying to put out the fire.

News travels fast here. By noon, Opelika (just 27 miles from Columbus, Ga.) was buzzing about Barbara's accident. And an idea began to sprout in the mind of Fire Chief G. A. (Squirrel) Mitchell. Around Opelika, they call him the town's conscience.

He knew the family's circumstances, and he decided their tragedy was the town's tragedy.

The next day, he and Contractor E. A. (Snowdie) Screws talked to the physician who was treating Barbara.

He gave them an estimate of the bills to be expected—$2,500 to $4,000.

Then they visited the Thompsons. The carpenter told him the family had $140 in the bank and some hospital insurance.

"I told him we not only wanted Barbara to get well, we wanted to keep him from losing his home," Mitchell said. "He said, 'All I ask from the people in town is to pray for Barbara.'

"I said, 'We'll do that, too, but we want to do more.'"

By mid-afternoon Monday, when the Opelika Daily News announced "Barbara Thompson Day", the plans were in high gear.

Although it was Christmas vacation time, the high school students wanted to help. Barbara had been a cheer leader and a straight "A" student.

The school paper called her "The Best All Around Girl in School."

With home-made collection boxes, students stood all day in a raw wind and tapped shoppers and passersby.

"Everyone gave something," the leader, football captain John Denson, said. "Some gave three or four times. I saw one old man reach in his pocket and give a dime. It was all he had."

Radio Station WHJO contributed five hours of time for a fund-raising talent show. Students sang and played instruments.

Theater Collection

LEE COUNTY Sheriff Gene (Blue Jean) Lowe sang "Sugar Blues" for anyone who contributed $50.

Another group took up a collection in the Martin Theater.

Chief Mitchell spent 13 hours on the phone, asking for donations. "I just picked up the phone book, started with the A's, and went straight through," he said.

Firemen and policemen picked up the money—in amounts up to $100.

At the end of the day, Opelika learned it had given nearly twice as much as Barbara needed!

One family was excluded – the Thompsons. At Barbara's bedside constantly, they were only half aware of the appeal.

"Squirrel Mitchell told me, 'We'll take care of everything,'" Lenora said, "I never dreamed of anything like this."

The next day, Barbara developed pneumonia. The town prayed. When she recovered, she was sent to Georgia Baptist Hospital, Atlanta, for skin grafts.

Today, new skin has replaced charred tissue on her back, arms, shoulders and chest. But she still faces more operations.

You can't see most of Barbara's scars. Clothes hide them. Her hands are still disfigured, but surgery will take care of them later.

But one mark she'll carry forever—the memory of a town with a warm and generous heart.

Most of the folks who work in Opelika's textile mills and farms nearby haven't much more than the Thompsons. Lenora Thompson probably gives the best description of her town.

"There's not much wealth in Opelika. Most of it is in people's hearts." ■

ARE SLEEPING PILLS THE ANSWER?

When you aren't getting sound, restful, relaxing sleep you may want to turn to sleeping pills. But perhaps there's an answer to your problem without taking drugs. Try a cup of delicious Ovaltine—the food drink—before you go to bed. When blessed sleep follows, it's natural sleep!

It's no joking matter when sleepless nights gnaw at your daytime happiness. When, as a result, the morning finds you feeling tired and dragged out—before you've even started the day—it's understandable why you're willing to try anything, if only it means sleep.

What you want most of all, of course, is natural sleep. So—before you resort to sleeping pills—try Ovaltine. Just put 3 teaspoons of Ovaltine in a cup of hot milk, stir and drink. Smell that wholesome aroma. Taste that pleasant flavor. Feel that glowing warmth. How relaxing—how it sort of untenses you. It makes you want to sleep . . . to climb into bed, pull up the covers, let your head sink deep in the restful pillow—then take a big stretch and yawn. Ahhh . . . that's what comes naturally with Ovaltine.

Yes, there's nothing like a good night's sleep. It's so important for today's busy living . . . your job . . . your home-life . . . your contacts with friends. So, before you turn to sleeping pills, why not try to get a good night's sleep naturally? Give Ovaltine a trial. If, after a fair trial, normal, healthful, relaxing sleep does not come, we suggest that you consult with your family physician. Ovaltine is certainly not a "cure-all" for sleeplessness.

You can get Ovaltine at any grocery store. Remember to get a jar of it next time you go shopping—OVALTINE —for NATURAL SLEEP!

Fashion leaders dote on her trim waist and slender proportions, so easy to create for and easy to fit.

Insurance companies bless her because that slim and youthful look of hers demands a lighter, more sensible diet that keeps her in better health, adds years to her life.

And among her most grateful admirers you can also count Pepsi-Cola and its independent bottlers everywhere. For by keeping pace with her wholesome trend in diet, today's Pepsi has become more popular than ever!

Pepsi-Cola is the modern, the light refreshment. Dry (not too sweet), reduced in calories, it refreshes without filling.

. . . Aunt Margaret Stared

In typical 3½-year-old fashion, Princess Anne licks her lip, and draws an amused glance.

LONDON.

THE MORAL of this candid photo is: Don't stick your tongue out in public if you're in the British royal family.

The wayward tongue belongs to Princess Anne. The sidewise glance comes from Aunt (Princess) Margaret, something of a cut-up herself when she was Anne's age.

It all happened when the royal car rolled slowly to Clarence House where the little princess is staying while her parents, Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, are on an empire tour. ■

TED WILLIAMS: He socked a few into the stands and that changed his mind about playing baseball.

Baseball's new shot in the Teams in both leagues expect a lift from the big names who

JOE CRONIN'S eyes glistened as he sat alone in the Fenway Park grandstand late last summer. Cronin is general manager of the Boston Red Sox, and he had just completed the most persuasive selling job of his career. The selling job had been done on TED WILLIAMS, just back from Korea and just discharged as a captain in the Marines.

Williams, a perfectionist, had been tinkering with the notion of delaying his return to baseball until after lengthy and thorough preparations.

"Maybe you're right, Ted," said Cronin. "But let's go out on the field and I'll have someone pitch to you. You'll get a better idea of what you want to do after you swing a bat."

Ted swung cautiously in the beginning of his private batting practice. But soon he was wheeling with full power until ball after ball went screaming into the distant right field stands. Cronin strolled over.

"Know what, Ted?" he said with a grin. "This is the first time since you left that I've seen anyone in a Red Sox uniform hit the ball into those stands."

That's how Theodore Samuel Williams, a brand new civilian, was trapped into returning to baseball ahead of schedule.

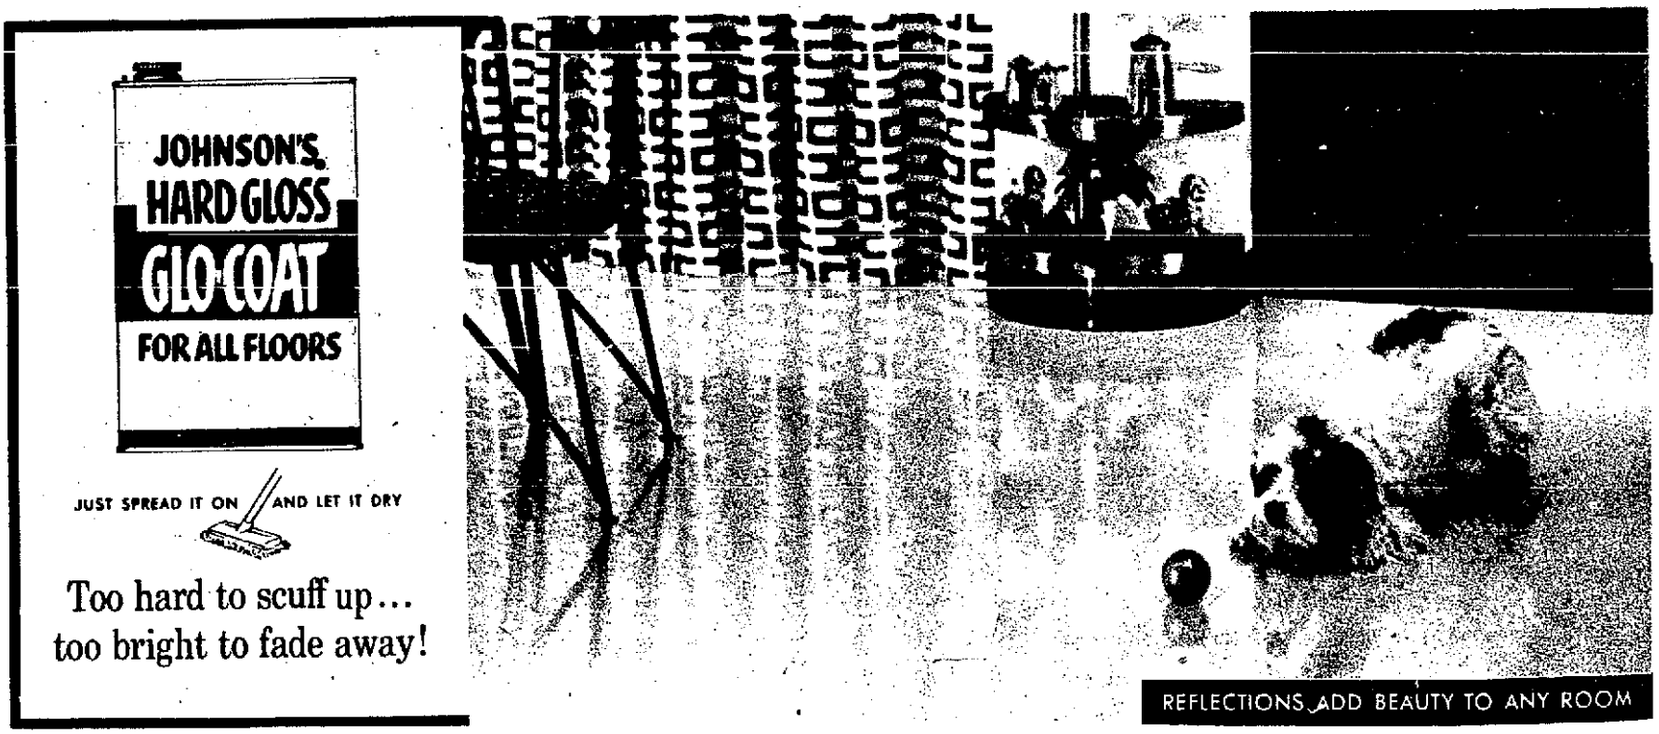

Williams finished the season with a .407 batting average for 37 games and 13 of his 37 hits were home runs. It was an incredible performance for a 35-year-old veteran even though he is "the finest natural hitter since Shoeless Joe Jackson."

Affect Both Races

THE SIGNIFICANCE of Ted's return to baseball from a tour of duty in the armed services will be obvious this season. Far more major leaguers will be coming out of service than are going into it.

Both pennant races are going to be affected by this trend. Three of the National League pennant contenders will receive tremendous reinforcements from the Army. The Dodgers will get back a 20-game winner, the massive DON NEWCOMBE. The Milwaukee Braves will get back their gifted young left-hander CHET NICHOLS, who could be a 20-game winner next season. And the Giants can't wait until WILLIE (The Wonder) MAYS returns.

Johnson's HARD GLOSS Glo-Coat

By KEVIN ROBERTS

arm—ex-GIs

are swapping GI shoes for spikes

The Giants talk of the 22-year-old Mays as though he's the cure for all their ills. All last season they'd say wistfully, "Wait until Willie gets back," or "Willie will solve all our problems." He won't, of course.

On the statistical evidence young Mays is just another outfielder. He hit only .278 in 1951. With The Wonder, though, it wasn't so much what he did but how he did it that counted. Willie is a laughing youngster with the most infectious good-nature in the world.

"When Willie left us," Leo Durocher said glumly, "the spirit of the team went with him."

In game after game Willie would come up with the big play, the saving play. There was, for instance, the time some enemy hitter "singled" to right center. It was a clean hit when the ball left the bat.

But Willie came tearing in. Just as the ball was sinking to the grass tops, Willie took off in a head-first dive. His cap flew off. Willie reached out with his right hand and caught the cap. He reached out with his left hand and caught the ball.

Returning service veterans also will give a lift to the Yankees, the Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers, the Cincinnati Redlegs and the Cards.

Hardly a "name" athlete is still in the service. DICK GROAT, regular Pirate shortstop, went in last season and WILMER (Vinegar Bend) MIZELL of the Cards was inducted at the campaign's end. About the only other ballplayers of any consequence are J. W. PORTER, catcher-outfielder of the Tigers, and FAYE THRONEBERRY, Red Sox outfielder.

The door swung wide at this time a year ago and the boys began to stream back to the diamond. More than one youngster went into service as an unknown and came out with enough maturity to take long steps toward stardom. Oddly enough, most were pitchers.

In that category must be placed BOB BUHL of the Braves, GLENN MICKENS and BOB MILLIKEN of the Dodgers, DON LARSEN and BOB TURLEY of the Orioles and RAY HERBERT of the Tigers.

You'll be hearing more and more about these young men from now on. ■

'THE WONDER'—Willie Mays—takes a bellywhopper to get home in 1951 game. He'll be back with the Giants this year.

FUN IN A FAMILY WORKSHOP

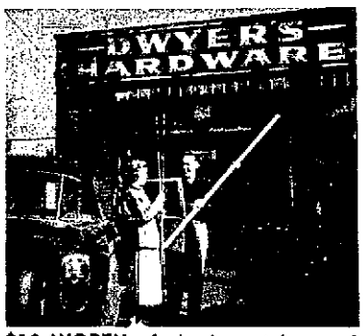

Daughter Sandra Lewis enjoys the homemade lawn chair and table.

How to Make Things out of Aluminum

STAMFORD, Conn.

NOW YOU CAN make aluminum chairs and other household items in your own workshop with ordinary family tools.

Reynolds Aluminum Co. has marketed what it calls "workshop aluminum."

$10 WORTH of aluminum tubes and rods will make Lewis's chair & table.

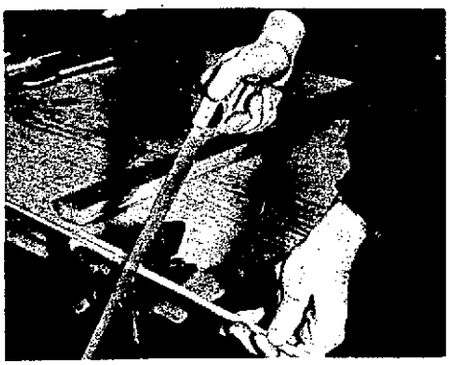

This comes in inexpensive rods, tubes and sheets, which can be sawed, drilled and screwed together like wood.

Here in Stamford, a New York editor, Ralph Lewis, decided to try some of the aluminum. Photos show how tubes and rods are shaped into chairs, table-legs. (Next, Lewis plans to try sheet aluminum which can be shaped into sink splashboards, house signs, trays, even doghouses.)

Total cost of the tube aluminum used for the chair: $8. ■

FOR FREE FACTS . . .

YOU CAN SAW aluminum like wood. Here Lewis saws ⅜-inch rod which will be bent to shape as one of legs for wood-slat table top.

LEWIS DRILLS screw-hole for leg, aided by Editor Harold Highland of "The Family Handyman," who developed designs for furniture.

HOW CHAIR LEG is bent to shape. Aluminum tube (filled with sand) is bent slowly around jig screwed to workbench. Apply even pressure.

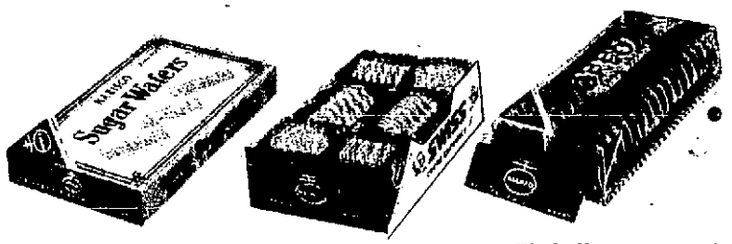

DRILLED TUBES are bolted together, and the chair takes shape. It's been laced with a tough cord which will support any kind of cushion.

This is the great new scientific development you read about in READER'S DIGEST

LISTERINE
Antizyme
TOOTH PASTE

stops the major cause of tooth decay every minute of every day

After years of careful research, the scientists in a famous university discovered a new and better way to stop the major cause of tooth decay—not just temporarily, but for 12 to 24 hours after each brushing.

Reader's Digest names Antizyme by name in reporting this exciting development, the first continuous-action anti-enzyme tooth paste.

Dentists have known for years that most tooth decay is started by a kind of chain reaction: bacteria (always present in everybody's mouth) produce enzymes that attack sugars and can form the decay acids that cause cavities.

Reducing Bacteria Is Not the Answer. No tooth paste can get rid of bacteria in your mouth for more than a few minutes at a time. Only at the "enzyme" stage has it been proven that you can stop this chain reaction that so often leads to tooth decay—stop it 12 to 24 hours! Science has discovered the anti-enzyme.

The anti-enzyme ingredient in Listerine Antizyme Tooth Paste is found in no other tooth paste. When you brush your teeth in the morning, this tasteless, invisible wonder-worker is brushed right onto tooth surfaces and stays there all day long to stop the formation of harmful decay acids on your teeth. (And you'll love that crisp wake-up flavor of pure white Antizyme—and the way your teeth feel smoo-o-o-th all day long)!

No other type of tooth paste—regular, ammoniated or chlorophyll—can protect your teeth for more than a few minutes

THE ACIDOMETER TELLS THE STORY

OTHER TYPES OF TOOTH PASTE—DANGEROUS DECAY ACIDS—IN ½ HOUR—The Acidometer (an instrument which electronically measures decay acids on teeth), proved that other types of tooth paste give only temporary protection . . . ½ hour or less!

ANTIZYME TOOTH PASTE—12 TO 24 HOUR PROTECTION—Exactly the same kinds of tests were made on people using Antizyme Tooth Paste. 9 times out of 10, the Acidometer proved teeth safe . . . no harmful decay acids . . . even 12 to 24 hours after brushing.

Judy Holliday: 'I Starved,

Says Hollywood's wonderful, 'dumb blonde': "My meals

NEW YORK.

I'VE PLAYED a lot of comedy scenes, but the funniest took place right in my own home recently.

My doorbell would ring promptly at 9 a.m.

If I was wearing a dress, I would quickly take it off.

Then, in my slip, I would open the door. Two dignified gentlemen, hats in hand, would nod good morning, follow me into the bathroom. I would step on a scale.

One man would adjust the scale carefully. He would announce my weight in solemn tones and his companion would write it down in a notebook.

This done, both gentlemen would depart.

My mother and my maid who watched this morning ritual were in stitches. But I felt more like crying.

Here's my first cheesecake publicity picture.

You see, I was dieting. I had to lose weight so I could go to Hollywood to make "It Should Happen to You" for Columbia Pictures. If I didn't get thin enough, the picture would be scrapped and a lot of money would be lost.

My morning visitors were a studio doctor and a studio executive, Harry Cohn, Columbia president, had told them to watch my weight—and report to him. They even wired the West Coast when I lost—or gained—an eighth of a pound.

Wall Street had nothing on me. In Columbia's board room they kept a graph on my fluctuating measurements.

Production matters involving lots of money depended on the size of my hips, I was told.

I'm 5' 7" tall and my bones are big. I love to eat and when I eat, I get fat. It's as simple as that. Exercise does nothing for me, except to make my muscles harder.

After my son, Jonathan, was born, I was sure something was wrong with the scales. They kept saying I weighed 172 pounds.

I looked just like a blimp!

By nobly refusing second portions and avoiding the kitchen, I got down to 164 pounds. Then the ax fell.

It was March 24th a year ago and I got word from Hollywood that I had to be down to my normal weight (130 pounds) by May 1st, the starting date for my new film.

That's when I went on my diet. It was such a frightening one that I think maybe it scared the fat off me!

Nobody should attempt it, not even my worst critic. And I mean that.

Even my doctor was upset about it: he checked my condition every other day and gave me special shots to keep me alive so I could refuse food.

This was all I ate for 38 days: hard-boiled eggs, celery, tomatoes, grapefruit and broiled meat. The portions would have disappointed a canary. Sometimes I was finished with a meal before I got comfortable in my chair.

Hard-boiled eggs really grieve me now. I never want to chase another one of them around an empty plate!

Diets make some people feel exalted or purposeful. But I just felt weak. Once I got so weak I had to eat a half cup of honey to keep going. That must have been a rough day for the graph-keepers out in Hollywood.

As long as I was on a diet, everybody around me had to diet, too. The baby was the only person allowed to look a piece of bread in the face.

One day I caught my mother sneaking into the house with a strange-looking package.

"What's in the package?" I asked her weakly. (The diet had affected my voice, but not my curiosity.) She tried to hide it from me but I insisted. Finally, she opened it and held up a great big salami.

Glorious Day

"I CAN'T STAND it another minute," she said. "I'm starving!"

After five weeks of this Spartan life, a glorious day arrived. I stepped on the scale and it read 127 pounds! I'd never been that thin!

Anybody with sense would have celebrated by eating a good meal.

I went out and bought every size 10 dress I could. I went crazy over straight skirts and sheath dresses sent me out of this world. I couldn't get my clothes tight enough!

Believe me, my whole personality changed. All of a sudden, I couldn't pass by a mirror or a window without gaping at my reflection. I loved windows where I got a full-length view. I usually walked past them a second time to get a good look.

I guess my friends hated me. At first all I would talk about was dieting—then I bored them stiff talking about clothes. I didn't even know there was such a thing as world affairs—all I could think of were slinky dresses.

By JUDY HOLLIDAY
as told to KAY SULLIVAN

but I Lost 37 Pounds...'

for five weeks would have disappointed a canary"

Another thing happened: I kept patting myself on the hips. It was hard to believe I had no fat where there had been so much before. When I was heavy, I walked all hunched up, so no one would notice me. Suddenly, I found myself gyrating down the street.

Fortunately, this first delirium wore off and I got back to normal.

The New 'Me'

WHEN I ARRIVED in Hollywood, it was like I had won a Nobel prize. Everyone kept congratulating me. George Cukor, my director, gave me his secret recipe for a salad dressing without calories. Jean Louis, Columbia's dress designer, took one look at me and went pale.

He had made my wardrobe in size 14—and here I was a size 10.

My favorite expression became: "Take this dress in a few inches—it's too big."

They're the best words I know.

My most embarrassing moment came when I was asked to pose in a black chemise for some cheesecake pictures. I didn't know how!

Here's my advice for all would-be dieters:

1. Don't go on a diet like mine: ask a doctor for one to suit you.

2. When you get the call, don't badger all your fat friends to diet, too. Count your own calories and let theirs alone.

3. Get in the right frame of mind: eating is mental—it's an escape, a habit, an indulgence. Decide you'd rather be thin than anything.

4. Don't throw away the clothes you wore when you were fat. You may need them again someday. ■

DIET OVER, I could laugh with Peter Lawford in "It Should Happen to You." I don't have to starve for my next film. It's called "Phfft."

Tommy & Jimmy Dorsey say:

Our coal miner father made us famous...

By Ernest La France

Together again after their 19-year feud, the Dorseys tell how they got started in music

NEW YORK.

IF IT HADN'T been for a music-mad coal miner named Thomas Dorsey, Sr., there'd be no Dorsey Brothers' band to make music history.

There'd probably be a small-town Pennsylvania grocer named Tom Dorsey, Jr., and a second coal miner named Jim Dorsey, instead of the famous Tommy and Jimmy who have delighted jazz lovers for years with their hot-licks on the slush-pump (trombone) and licorice stick (clarinet).

There wouldn't be any gossip column "feud" (now settled), no people dancing themselves goofy to "I'll Never Smile Again" or "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You," and far fewer platters (phonograph records) for you to buy.

"With Dad around," say Tommy (now 48) and Jimmy (now 50), "there wasn't much choice. He bought us some instruments and ordered: 'Learn to play them!'"

"According to the family story," says Tommy, "Dad got hold of a horn (cornet) one day after coming up from the mine and decided to play it. After feeding his mule, he took the horn out to a shanty in back of the house and sat down to play by the light of a kerosene lamp. He got so good at it, he quit the mines for a while and traveled around with a circus band. His closest friend was a young magician named Harry Houdini, who made good.

"But Dad got married and settled down to coal mining. Even so he never gave up music. During the big coal strike of 1902, he took a coal miner band up to Williamsport, Pa., pitched a tent on the river bank, and gave concerts."

Jimmy, Tommy, and their kid sister Mary (now living in California) were taught to play almost as soon as they breathed.

"Mom claims," says Jimmy, "that Dad would kneel down by the crib and study our lips. He had a theory that people with thin lips make good horn players."

At an age when most boys can hardly whistle, Jimmy was playing the horn and saxophone, and taking piano and fiddle lessons on the side. Tommy could play every instrument in a brass band, and Mary played obbligato accompaniment on the trumpet.

"We were well known around Shenandoah, Pa.," says Tommy. "All the neighbors took to wearing ear muffs."

Tommy was the first to play in public. "Dad was coaching eight different miners' bands around Allentown and Reading," he remembers, "and one night one of the trombone players got sick. I filled in."

The three children and their father had what the boys describe as a "regular music act," very popular at local church, civic and fraternal functions. Once in a while, Tommy and Jimmy would be allowed to perform the ORIGINAL Dorsey Quartet: Thomas Dorsey, Sr., and his pupils—Mary, 6; Tommy, 8; and Jimmy, 10. Mary, who is now married, lives in California.

Tommy (left) & Jimmy are now playing in harmony after their "feud."

"William Tell Overture" while Dad looked on, misty-eyed.

"I want them to be successful and go places above the ground," he used to tell people, "not in the coal mines."

Looking back, they can't see how they ever escaped the mines. Tommy only got as far as fifth grade. Dad took him out of school after his school teacher, evidently tone-deaf, hit him in the face with a switch. Jimmy quit in the second year of high school to join a vaudeville act, shortly afterwards returning to work in the mines. Tommy became a delivery boy for a meat market.

"Dad was the only successful one in the family," says Jimmy. "He got a job as music instructor in the Lansford (Pa.) high school."

Several orchestra leaders, including Ray Miller, Roger Wolfe Kahn, Vincent Lopez, and Paul Whiteman are usually credited with giving the Dorseys their start. The Dorseys themselves say it was Dad.

He got occasional playing jobs for himself and the boys and two cousins named Crossan. But when the youngsters started playing jazz, Dad gave up. He helped them form a band of their own, familiarly known locally as "Dorseys' Wild Canaries." By 1922, when the band broke up, they were getting as much as $7 an engagement.

The Feud

DAD was left pretty far behind when they became stars of the big name bands all through the jazzy Twenties.

The famous brotherly feud, which started after they formed their own big-time band in 1934, hurt Dad deeply.

He used to get a kick out of the posters reading "The Dorsey Brothers' Orchestra."

After a quarrel stemming from Jimmy's criticism of Tommy's directing of "I'll Never Say Never Again, Again," they became two bands—Jimmy in California as part of Bing Crosby's radio show, and Tommy in New York. Most people, including Dad, thought they were better together.

For more than a year and a half, the brothers didn't even speak to each other, write, or telephone. Then, one night, to talk about the family, Jimmy called Tommy. After that, they became distantly friendly.

Mom's Favorite

DAD didn't live to see them make up, but he saw them approach it. In 1939, Jimmy admitted Tommy had beaten him in popularity with his huge record sales. Jimmy came to New York and often the two Dorseys were playing in different theaters or clubs close to each other. Dad died in 1942, when Jimmy's records were approaching Tommy's in popularity. Mutual success was erasing the old, bitter rivalry.

Only Mom was around to witness the reunion in 1953. On a quiz show recently, she was asked whose band she liked best. Quick as a flash, she answered: "Guy Lombardo's." ■

New Ways to Wrap Gifts

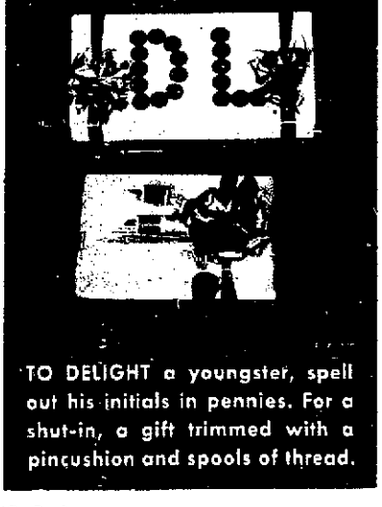

Judy Lynn, star of "Top Banana" (U-A) uses lace paper doilies* to decorate gift.

An expert offers simple, inexpensive ideas

CHEWING gum sticks marked with crayon look like piano keys. Tiny pipe identifies man's gift. Both are wrapped in shelf paper.

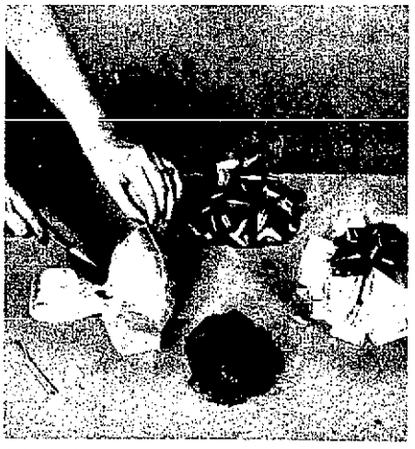

TO DELIGHT a youngster, spell out his initials in pennies. For a shut-in, a gift trimmed with a pincushion and spools of thread.

*By Roylace

ANY GIFT wrapping can look like a work of art. That's what expert Drucella Lowrie says. Mrs. Lowrie has written a book on the subject and estimates she has wrapped over 1,000 packages in her career—in 1,000 different ways.

Her rules: 1—Use ordinary items like shelf paper, lace paper doilies, spools and pennies. 2—Be imaginative—don't always put the bow in the same place. 3—Anchor the trimmings. Nobody likes a gift package that falls apart at first touch.

TO MAKE THESE BOWS: Loop ribbon around fingers. Slip it off fingers holding it securely. Fold loops in half. Then snip off corners at fold. (Scissors point to the cut-out sections.) Tie loops in center of the cut-out "V", then fan out the bow. Combine the big and small bows to vary the effect.

After service, Ruth (upper step) and Beth show Dad their Sunday school lessons.

'I didn't want to marry a preacher . . .'

Said Mrs. Mamie Marchand. But that was 13 years ago

FRANKLIN, Ind.

ONE EVENING recently, the Rev. Mr. Walter Marchand and his family sat down to dinner in the pleasant dining room of the Baptist parsonage here in Franklin.

They said grace and then began their meal, talking about the day's happenings. The children, Beth, six, and Ruthie, three, chattered away happily.

The doorbell rang, Mrs. Marchand answered. A moment later she came back.

"It's Mr. B——" she told her husband. "He'd like to talk to you."

Marchand went to greet the visitor. Five minutes passed, then ten, then twenty. After nearly an hour, Marchand returned.

"Sorry, dear," he said. "Took longer than I thought it would. Guess I'll have time for just a cup of coffee. Got to get over to that young people's meeting at the church."

"Too bad you have to miss dinner again," said Mrs. Marchand with a patient smile. "Everything all right with Mr. B——?"

Marchand nodded. He drank his coffee hurriedly and left for the meeting.

Interrupted meals, canceled plans, racing the clock through the day, week ends crowded with activity—all this is part of life in a parsonage for Mrs. Mamie Marchand.

Being the wife of the pastor of the First Baptist Church is a seven-day-a-week job.

A parsonage is a "goldfish bowl" where something is always happening

DURING a quiet evening at home, the Marchands play duets. Such evenings are rare for them. The preacher was once a professional musician.

"EVERY DAY is full," she says. "It's never the same—but it's always full.

"When I was a child, I promised myself I'd never marry a minister. I grew up a 'P.K.'—preacher's kid. I knew what it was not to have a life of your own. My father was always on call, day or night. It was like living in a goldfish bowl."

But today, Mrs. Marchand actually enjoys life in the "goldfish bowl."

"There are so many things that make up for it—the friendships, the chance to meet so many different people and to help them when they need help most," she says.

For a P.K., says Mrs. Marchand, life was sterner than for most children. It wasn't that things were forbidden—it was just that certain things were expected of P.K.'s.

VISIT cheers shut-in. Mrs. Marchand brought a glass of jelly, girls brought their dolls.

Mrs. Marchand grew up in a home where she wasn't supposed to dance or play cards or do "anything that was undignified." But she vividly remembers the time she danced the Virginia reel in a junior high school program.

"The father of another student," says Mrs. Marchand, "promptly notified my father that this sort of thing wasn't proper for the daughter of a minister."

It wasn't until she went away to college, she says, that she even used lipstick. As to clothes and the little luxuries a girl cherishes, austerity was the keynote.

"It was only after I was out of high school," Mrs. Marchand says, "that I wore my first 'bought' dress. Up to that time my mother had made all my clothes.

"It was a matter of economies. I can't recall what my father's salary was—but it wasn't very much. There was little luxury."

Mrs. Marchand likes to tell the story of a wedding at which her father officiated many years ago. Traditionally, the minister's wife gets the wedding fee. After this particular ceremony, the groom asked the pastor: "Reverend, what do I owe you?"

"Oh, there's no set fee," said Mrs. Marchand's father jokingly, "you pay me what you think the bride is worth."

Without a word, the groom gave him 50¢.

It was in Detroit, in 1938, that Mamie Kose met Walter Marchand.

A student at the Eastman School of Music at Rochester, N. Y., Marchand had come to Detroit as director of a touring chorus of "budding preachers." (They were students of the Baptist Seminary in Rochester, where Walter taught music for room and board.)

In 1941, Mamie Kose and Walter Marchand were married in Detroit. Mamie was teaching school there. Walter was still working on his master's degree in music at Rochester.

During the war, Marchand (he served with the Medical Corps, on a hospital ship) finally decided to enter the ministry.

He was first assigned—as student pastor—to a church near Rochester. Salary: $30 a week. After several other pastorates he took his present post at Franklin.

One experience during those student days stands out in Mrs. Marchand's memory. A seminary professor came to church one Sunday to see how Walter was getting on. This professor had lectured that week on what a minister should not do—try too much.

ON TYPICAL Sunday evening, College Youth Fellowship group drops in at the parsonage for a social hour—plus popcorn and marshmallows and discussion (subject: "free will"). Once Mrs. Marchand had 64 young people as visitors, fed them supper in shifts.

"Well," says Mrs. Marchand, "this Sunday morning Walter had planned to do the following: conduct the service, preach, play a violin solo, sing a duet with the choir soprano.

"When he reached the pulpit, he found he had left a box of big cardboard hymn numbers on top of his Bible. Then when he turned to sit down in the pastor's chair, there was an enormous spider.

"That was one service Walter really sweated out. Afterward, the professor patted Walter on the head and said: 'I certainly enjoyed the program this morning.'"

The Marchands consider the First Baptist Church an ideal pastorate. "We're doing a lot better than most ministers," says Marchand. "They gave us a $700 raise last year. We're getting $5,000 a year now, plus the house and utilities."

For Mrs. Marchand, there is no such thing as routine. There is no "typical day." She takes care of a nine-room house and two children single-handed. From Monday to Saturday there are parsonage visitors to talk to during the day, meetings to attend at night. The telephone rings incessantly.

There are board meetings, church classes, youth groups. On any evening, a group may barge in for a social hour. That ends up with coffee and cake all around—with Mrs. Marchand doing the supplying and serving.

On Sundays, the day when most people rest, the Marchands work hardest. Mrs. Marchand's so busy that she can't hear her husband preach. She helps teach the kindergarten class in Sunday school during the services.

But perhaps it is in little ways that life in a parsonage differs most from life in the average American home.

Marchand must shave three times a day with an electric razor. (It wouldn't do to have visitors catch the pastor with a beard.) And it won't do for Mrs. Marchand to receive visitors in an old house dress.

"We can't even conform to the Indiana custom of going around the house without shoes," says Mrs. Marchand with a laugh. "How would it do to have members of the congregation find the pastor and his wife walking around in stocking feet?"

PRAYERS: Beth said: "Thank You for rain." Ruth: "Thank You for Daddy and Mummy."

NEIGHBOR, Mrs. Grace Foist, brings homemade pie. Mrs. Marchand does own baking.

Cowboys hunt wild burros

ON LOOKOUT for wild burros, three Utah cowboys scan the area. One points to animals he has just sighted on the other side of valley below.

Bringing 'em back alive is the latest hell-for-leather sport

ALTON, Utah.

ON THE CREST of a ridge, three cowpokes squinted down across the valley.

Suddenly one pointed to several small animals clambering up a slope. "There they are," he shouted. "Let's go get 'em."

The three – Merlyn and Gerald Holt and Rodney Leavitt–turned their horses and started down the trail. They were on a burro hunt–latest sport of southern Utah cowboys.

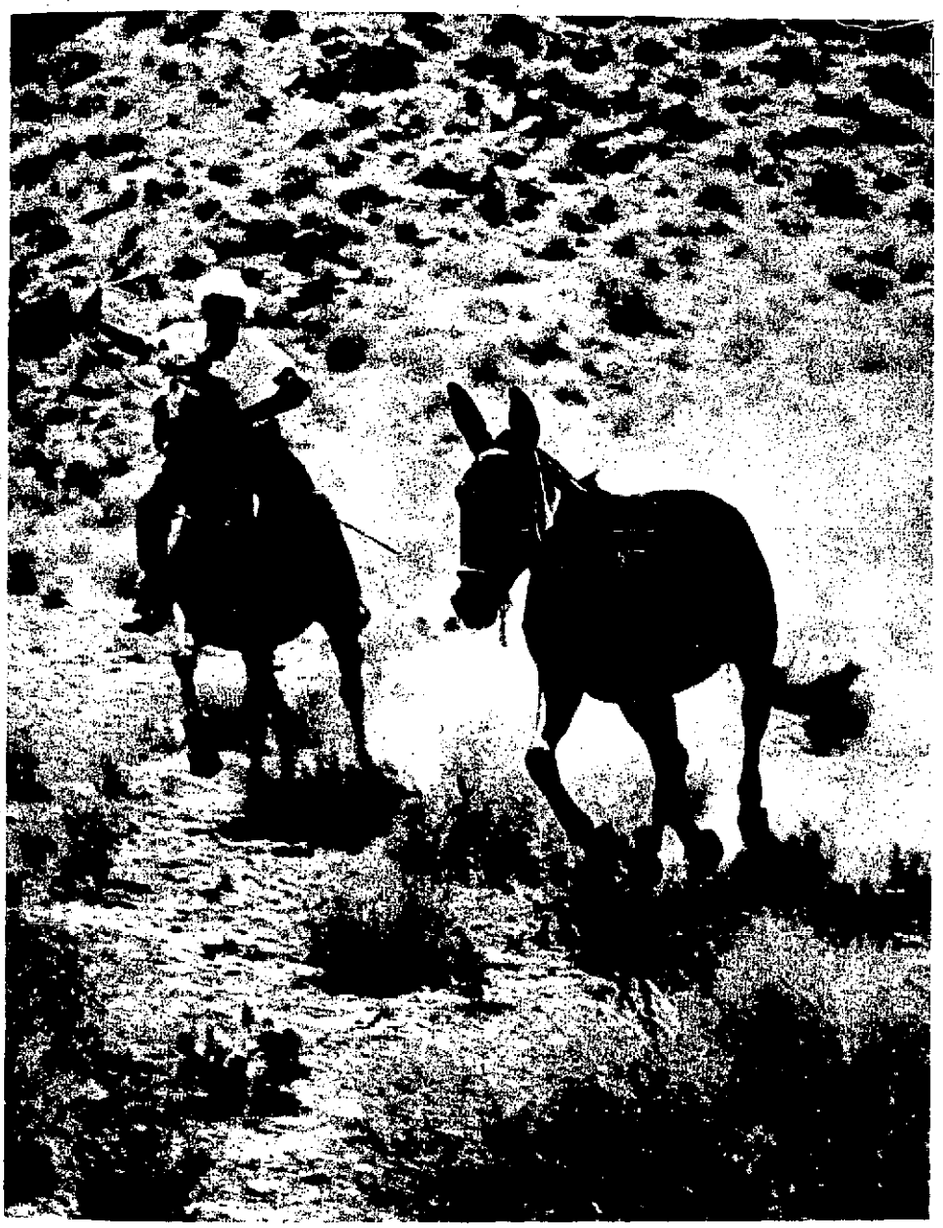

Bringing the animals back alive is more fun, they say, than killing coyotes or suchlike varmints.

The burro, normally an easy-going critter who minds his own business, grows big and wild in southern Utah. It takes a seasoned cowpoke to get close to one–let alone rope him.

But given three cowboys and one burro, the burro usually loses. Occasionally he gets in a bite or kick before he's bulldogged into submission.

The Holt boys and Leavitt have made their sport pay off. They sell their catches to zoos, rodeos, breeders and animal trainers.

What adds zest to the sport is this: burros are rather rare; they once roamed Utah by the thousands, but ranchers and hunters have killed most of them off. ■

CAPTURED, wearing a halter for the first time in his life, a wild burro gallops angrily to escape the lariat. Cowboy let him run until he tired, then brought him in.

STUBBORN burro gives three cowboys a bad time. They usually can throw and hog-tie a burro in short order, but this one kicked, bit and put up a fierce fight.

Radar, which is extremely accurate, may show these cars are going slower — or faster — than their drivers think.

How Fast Are You Going?

Do you know that OLD tires can make your speedometer deceive you?

WASHINGTON, D.C.

AT NOON one recent Sunday, a policeman near here chased a driver traveling at high speed. Finally, he caught the driver.

"You were doing 70," the cop said.

"Seventy?" repeated the driver. "My speedometer must be wrong."

"They all say that," the policeman said.

The motorist grinned. "Look," he said, "will you check my speed for me?"

As a rule police won't do that, but this officer made an exception.

So the motorist followed the policeman down the road.

And the test proved that this driver's speedometer was off. When the policeman's speedometer showed 35, the motorist's showed only 31. (Police speedometers are checked every few days.) When the policeman was doing 55, the motorist thought he was doing 49.

Experts from New York University's Safety Center have spent hours checking speedometers by radar (which is accurate within a mile or two). Result: 50 in every 100 were found wrong.

But most of them say you are going faster (not slower) than you really are.

Check It Yourself

MAINE State Police mechanics have found that even the normal wear of tires may push speedometer readings up as much as 3 or 4 miles an hour at speeds over 65 mph, because with old tires, your wheels become smaller and have to go around more rapidly.

Speedometers made by reputable manufacturers are rugged, quite accurate and durable. But abuse or improper use can distort their readings. The magnets that control your speed readings function reliably for the practical life of the instrument.

But there may be instances when these magnets grow weak with age.

Thus in some old cars you're in danger of exceeding the speed limit and not knowing it.

And you may be going a mile or two faster than your speedometer says when you use oversize, (or overinflated) tires.

Putting on snow treads in the fall, for example, slows your speedometer (if the snow tires are larger than your car's original tires).

And so in winter you may exceed the speed limit without knowing it. Taking snow treads off in spring returns your readings to normal.

"A speedometer," says Dr. Herbert J. Stack of NYU, "is an important thing; yet few motorists check to see whether they're getting accurate readings."

In many cities there are qualified speedometer-checking stations. But there is one way you can check your own speedometer. In every state you'll find mileposts, or "measured miles". Find a measured mile; if your speedometer is correct, you should cover the mile in 120 seconds at 30 mph; 90 seconds at 40 mph; 72 seconds at 50 mph, and 60 seconds at 60 mph.

Be Safe...
You can live to drive again if you stay FAR back of the car ahead.
